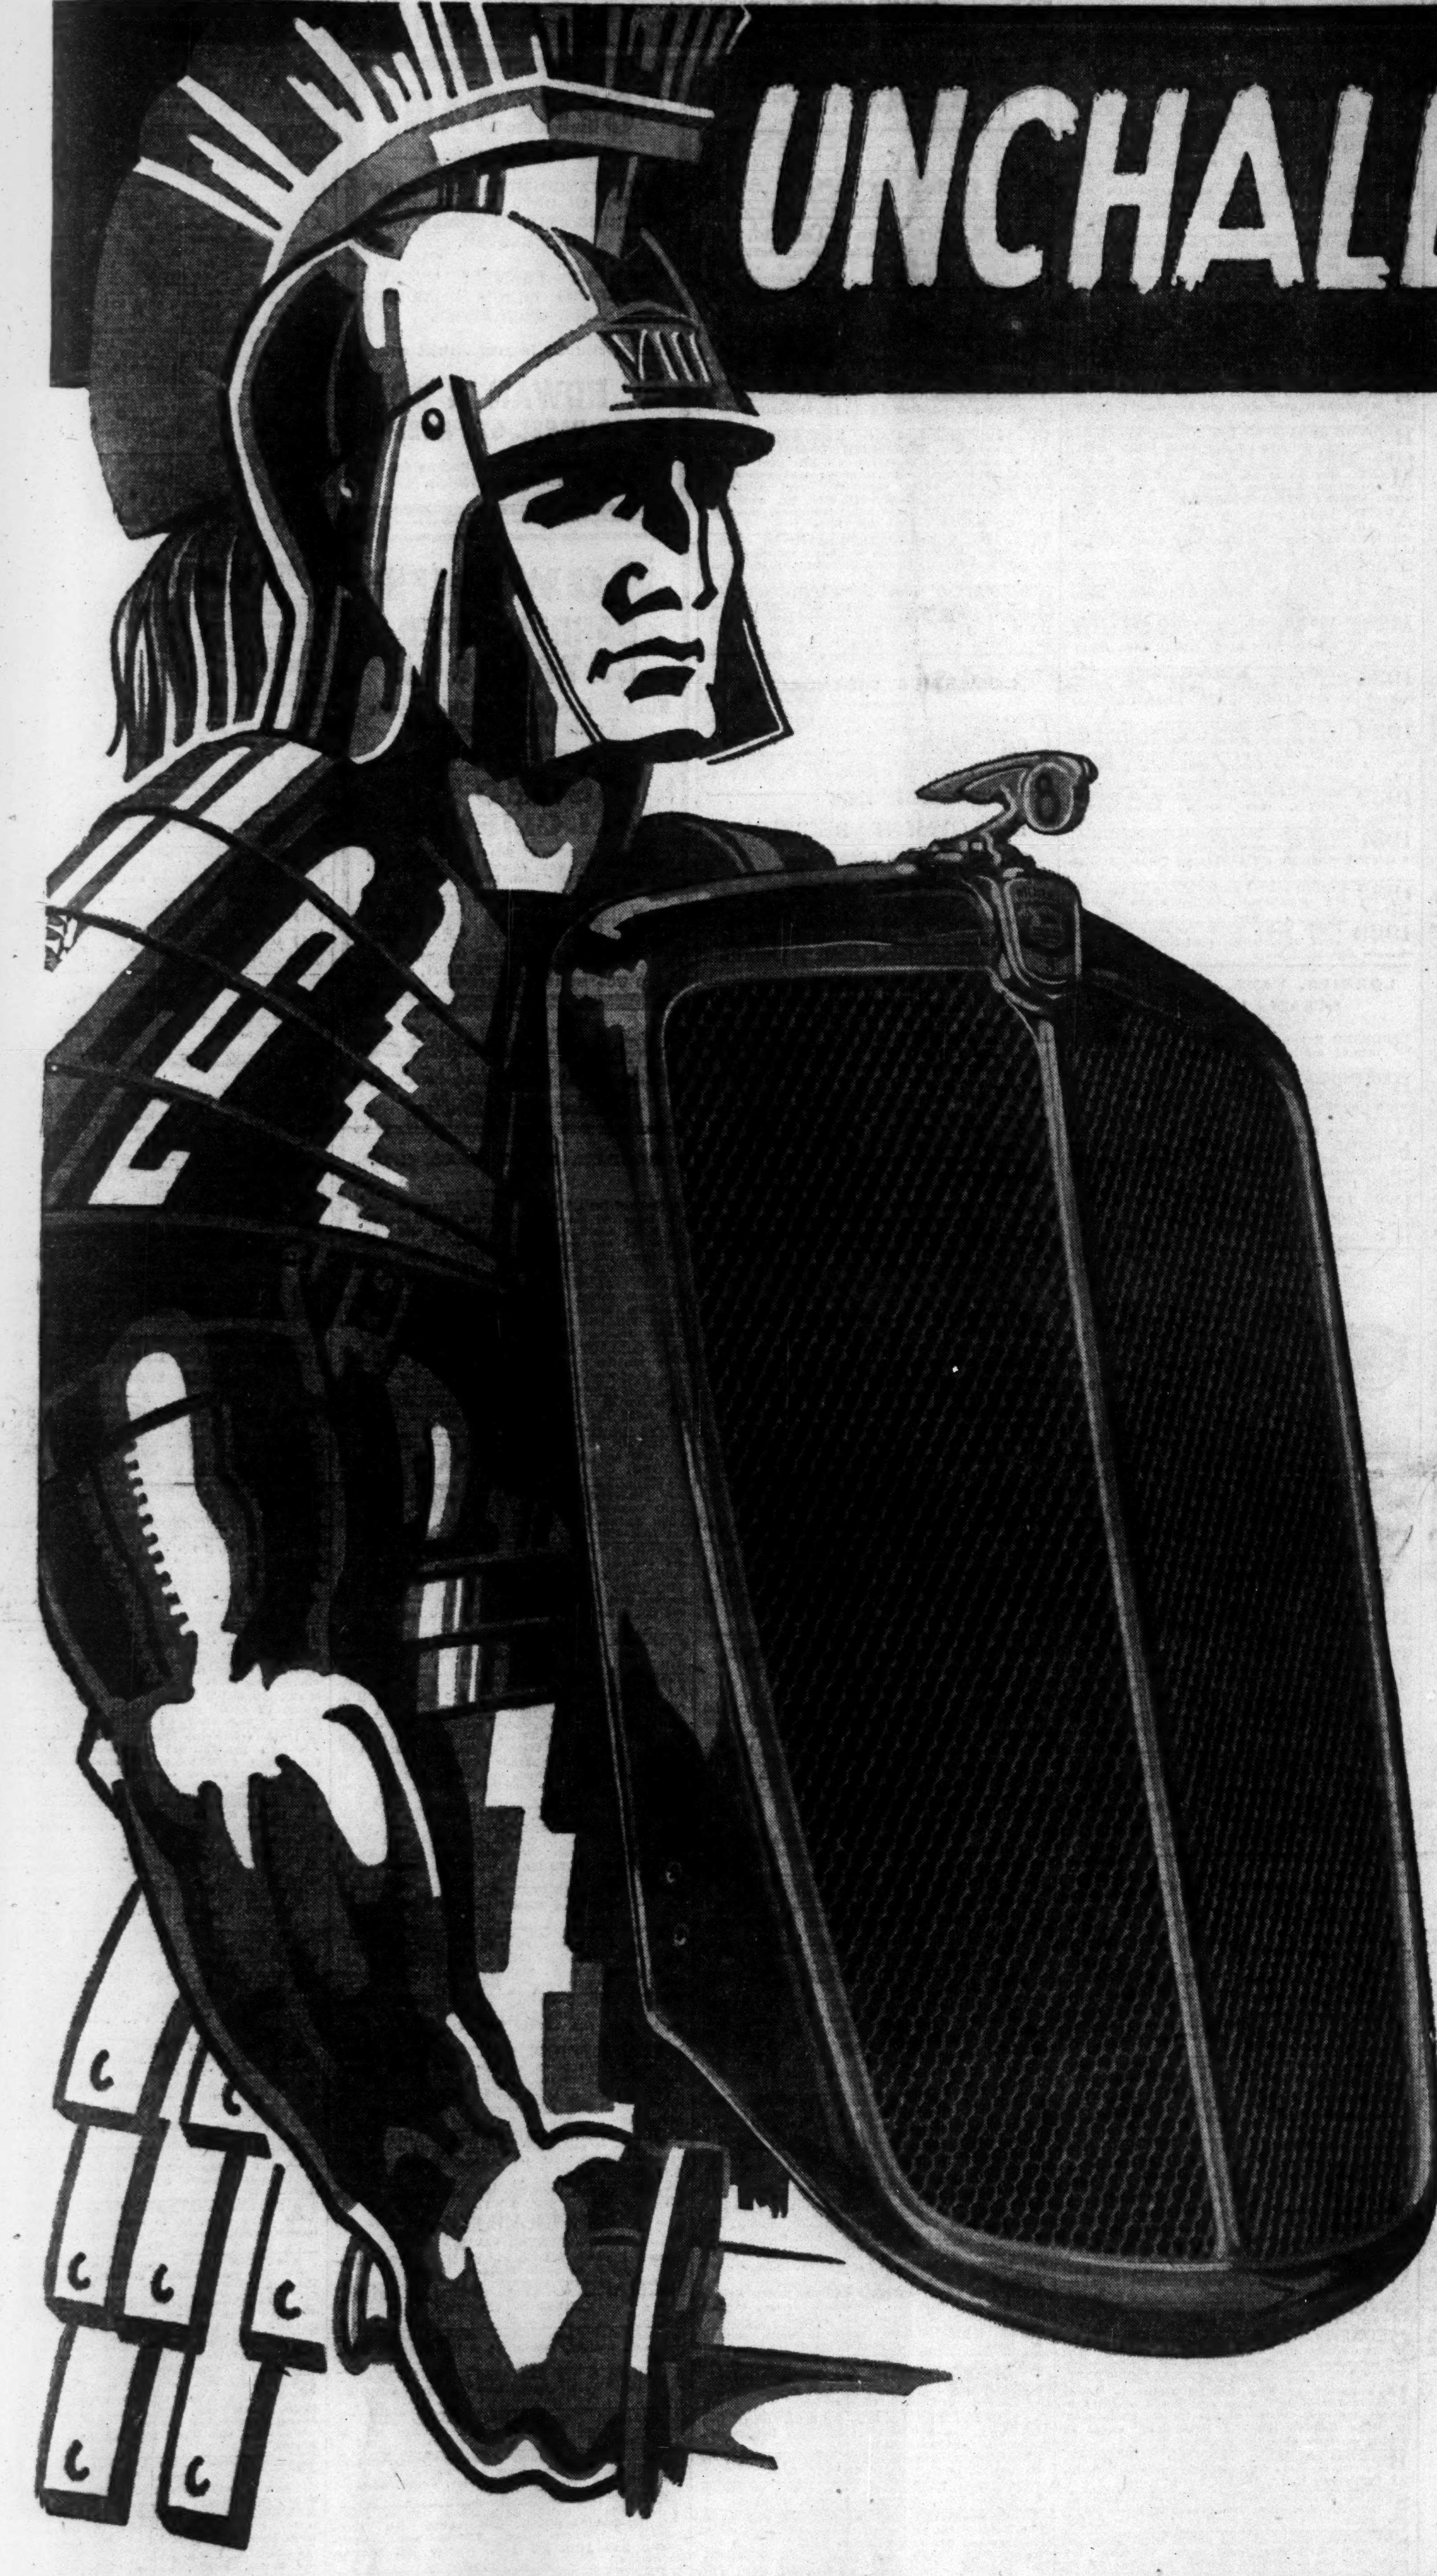
UNCHALLENGEABLE



Twenty centuries ago a spirit of service and of craftsmanship inspired the building of the world's finest roads, aqueducts and bridges. Work worth doing must be done thoroughly, with all the knowledge and skill of the worker — that was the spirit of the Roman, that is the spirit of MORRIS — UNCHALLENGEABLE.

Fifteen huge factories, each specialising in its particular task, are enthusiastically striving to achieve a better and still better car. The motor industry's finest research workers, backed by a great commercial organisation, labour constantly to this end. It is not to be wondered at that to-day MORRIS cars have easily the biggest sales in Great Britain and Ireland — that the Morris Eight is easily the most popular single car in these islands. It is UNCHALLENGEABLE, and this is why . . . .

Improved Lockheed hydraulic brakes. Instantaneous control, horizontal hand brake. Six-stud wheel fixing. Hydraulic shock absorbers. "Dayview" headlights (with dip and switch mechanism). Dunlop low-pressure tyres. Four independent springs. Bishop cam steering. Sprung steering wheel. Synchro-mesh gears. Choice of five colours. Chromium-plated radiator. The room of an ordinary "Ten." Sixty miles per hour. Forty-five miles per gallon. £8 road tax.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

DUBLIN BANK ROBBERY

DUN LAOGHAIRE MAN CHARGED

John J. O'Flanagan, described as an unemployed cost accountant, of Auburn Villa, Tivoli road, Dun Laoghaire, was remanded on bail, until Tuesday next, charged with having, between 10 and 11 a.m. on 23rd June, 1936, while armed with a revolver, robbed John Madden, bank messenger, of £1,931, the property of the O'Connell Street Branch of the Provincial Bank, Ltd. He was also charged with conspiring with two other men not in custody, and with the possession of a firearm not covered by a certificate.

Detective Office, Golden, Donnybrook, said that, with Guard McCormack and Peter Byrne, Jones's Cottages, Monkstown, he went to a licensed premises in Lower George's street, Dun Laoghaire, between 8 and 9 on Thursday night. They remained there for some time, and later, when they were passing through the bar towards the street, the civilian, Byrne, pulled his coat. As a result of what Byrne said, witness went to where three men were in the bar. He asked the defendant, who was seated, to go outside. When they got outside defendant asked what they wanted. Witness said that he was going to take him into custody for armed robbery of a bank messenger. Defendant smiled, and made no reply. When charged and cautioned, defendant said: "I have no statement to make at the moment until I get an opportunity of attaching my memory with the date of the occurrence."

Replying to the defendant, witness said that he was not armed on the occasion, and denied that he told him he was armed.

Bail was fixed at £100 and two independent sureties of £1,000 each.

Mr. J. A. Geary (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted.

Detective Officers P. C. Murphy and T. Murphy were also in the case.

FORGERY CHARGE

Herbert Byrne (43), of Irishtown road, Irishtown, Dublin, was remanded on bail, charged with stealing and uttering cheques, to the total amount of £18, on dates between December, 1935, and December, 1936.

Detective Sergeant Lynch, who, with Detective Officer Farrell, prosecuted, said that the defendant had been employed by Miss Annie Dergan, of 67 St. Stephen's Green. Defendant, added the witness, admitted taking cheques from Miss Dergan's book, forging and uttering them.

BAIL FOR DETECTIVE

(BEFORE MR. CUSSEN, SENIOR DISTRICT JUSTICE.)

Mr. J. J. O'Connor, solicitor, mentioned the case of Thomas Carass, detective officer, Clonmacnoise road, Kimmage, who was returned for trial on Wednesday last, charged with shooting at with intent to murder Detectives Kirwan and Kelly. At the previous hearing Mr. Cussen allowed accused bail, himself in £5 and two sureties of £300 each, to be approved of by the District Justice.

Mr. O'Connor yesterday stated that one of the sureties was ill and could not, by his doctor's orders, leave his house. Mr. O'Connor proposed, he said, to bring a Peace Commissioner to his house to have the bonds arranged.

Mr. Cussen agreed to this course provided that the authorities were agreeable to the proposed securities.

Mr. O'Connor said that no step would be taken without acquainting the Chief State Solicitor's office and the Garda.

CIRCUIT (CRIMINAL) COURT

DEFENDANT ILL

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

The proceedings of the Circuit Criminal Court, Green street, were adjourned yesterday owing to the illness of Michael Rogers, Seapark road, Clontarf, who, with Patrick Gaffney, Peter street, is charged with watching and besetting the premises of Cossor Radio Company, Pearse street.

Judge Shannon said that Rogers, who had sent a medical certificate, should have had his doctor in attendance to give evidence as to his condition. He adjourned the case until next Friday.

Mr. MacLoughlin (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the prosecution.

THE COST OF AN ADVERTISEMENT

APPEAL DISMISSED

In the report of a case in the Dublin Circuit Court, before Judge Davitt, which appeared in our issue of January 20th last, it was stated that the Irish Annuals Press, Ltd., Lower O'Connell street, Dublin, appealed against a District Court order made in the case in which Miss Kathleen Ruane was sued for £4, the price of an advertisement published in the "Catholic Trade Directory of 1936." The fact was that Miss Ruane appealed against the decision of the District Justice in favour of the plaintiffs, and the Circuit judge affirmed the decision of the lower court, and accordingly dismissed the appeal with costs. Mr. R. T. Cherry (instructed by Mr. G. M. Greene) appeared for Irish Annuals Press, Ltd.

MOTORIST FINED £10

WARRANT FOR ARREST

At Dundrum District Court yesterday, before District Justice Reddin, Stanley King, Millbrae, Bird avenue, East, was summoned on nine counts—three for driving a motor car on different dates without an insurance certificate, and the others for not having road tax paid.

The Justice said that he had a communication from the defendant asking for an adjournment, and asked the Guard if he had any objection.

Guard Flynn—Yes, your worship. He told me that he would soon leave the Free State, and would be outside the jurisdiction of the Court. (Laughter.) The Guard went on to say that somebody rang him up to say that defendant had a bad cold and could not attend the court. Witness went to his house, and was informed that defendant was in Belfast. Witness believed that the telephone call was from defendant himself.

Defendant was fined £10 in all. Guard Flynn asked that a warrant against defendant be issued immediately, and this was granted.

Mr. George McBride, Roan, Tassagh, had a good yield of flax. He had 1½ bushels of seed sown, and it yielded 72 stones. The flax was a very fine quality and realised 11s. per stone.

SALE OF "SWEEP" TICKETS

JUDGMENT RESERVED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON, MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN AND MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

The hearing of the appeal in the case of James Robb Stanhope, of Marlborough street, Dublin, and formerly of Durban, South Africa, against Hospitals' Trust, Ltd., was continued.

The appeal was brought on behalf of the defendants from so much of the verdict of the jury and judgment of the High Court as awarded £650 damages to the plaintiff for loss suffered by him, including damage to his reputation, in his action against the defendants for damages for alleged breach of contract and alleged negligence in neglecting to acknowledge the receipt of 52 counterfoils of tickets in the Hospitals' Sweepstake on the Grand National of 1932, which he stated, he sent to the defendants, with the proper payment, and in failing to enter the counterfoils for the draw.

The defendants stated that only two of the counterfoils were received; that seller's and subscribers' receipts had been issued for them, and that these counterfoils took part in the draw.

The appellants submitted that a claim for damages for loss of reputation was not admissible in an action for damages for breach of contract.

Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Mr. P. H. O'Reilly) appeared for the appellants; and Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. Lynn (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle) for the respondent.

Resuming his argument on behalf of the respondent, Mr. McCarthy said that there was no doubt that, so far as the evidence went, the defendants were made aware by the plaintiff what the consequences to him would be of a breach of their duty to acknowledge receipt of the counterfoils. The tickets contained a warning to subscribers to take care that they were buying from a trustworthy person, and the plaintiff, having been selling these tickets for two years, and having been treated by the defendants as a proper person to sell the tickets, it must have been in the contemplation of the parties that, if the defendants failed to honour their obligation, they were running the risk of holding the plaintiff forth as an unworthy person, and that, if the seller did not give to the purchasers their receipts, considerable damage would be done to his credit and to his reputation.

Tracing the principle that, he said, would be applicable to a case of this kind, Mr. McCarthy said that the nearest analogy to be found in the reports was the bankers' line of cases, and, while these cases all were dealt with as an exceptional class, the principle that, he thought, they established was that the failure by a bank to acknowledge, by the proper execution of their part of a transaction, that they had funds to discharge to their customer the obligation that they had contracted to him to discharge, was to damage the customer's credit, and damage could be recovered without proof of special damages. The principle of these cases had been followed in cases which were not banking cases at all in the ordinary sense.

Mr. McCarthy laid stress on his submission that there had been a special contract made, in special circumstances, between the defendants and the plaintiff, and that it was within the functions of the jury to assess damages for loss of plaintiff's reputation as distinct from his loss of business, by reason of the failure of the defendants to acknowledge receipt of the counterfoils received by them from the plaintiff.

Mr. Lynn followed on the same side.

Mr. FitzGerald having replied,

The Court reserved judgment, which, Mr. Justice FitzGibbon announced, would be given on an early date.

Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Mr. Hermann Good), for the plaintiff, said that the defendants had agreed to pay to the plaintiff £235, to include £23 for medical expenses and £35 for costs.

Mr. Justice Maguire made the consent a rule of court.

Messrs. Casey, Clay and Collins were the solicitors for the defendants.

Mrs. Mary Anne Reilly, Parsonstown, Carberry, Co. Kildare, claimed damages against Patrick Sheridan Rathowen, Enfield, for the death of her husband, Patrick Reilly, who died following injuries received on the 24th October, 1936, when a cycle he was riding was, it was stated, in collision with the defendants' motor car at Ballycarran, Enfield.

Mr. P. J. McEnery (instructed by Mr. J. A. Ennis), for the plaintiff, said that the consent provided for the payment of £300 and £75 costs to the plaintiff.

Mr. Justice Maguire made the consent a rule of Court. He allocated £175 of the money to the plaintiff and balance among her three children in varying sums.

Messrs. W. G. Bradley and Son were the solicitors for the defendant.

FATAL FALL FROM CHAIR

A fall from a fireside chair, causing a torn kidney, led to the death of James O'Connor (50), labourer, of 7 East Arran street, Dublin, it was stated at an inquest in St. Vincent's Hospital, Dublin, yesterday before Dr. MacErlean, City Coroner.

Mary Kealy, 7 East Arran street, described how, while reaching for something, O'Connor overbalanced in his chair, which needed repair, and struck the fender on his left side.

Dr. O'Donnell, St. Vincent's Hospital, said that death was due to heart failure and coma, following an injury to the left kidney.

A verdict in accordance with the medical evidence was returned, the Coroner stating that the deceased man was sober at the time of the accident, and that no blame attached to anyone.

SHEEP DIPPING CASES

At Dundrum District Court yesterday, before District Justice Reddin, James Walsh and James Fitzachary, Ballybrack, were summoned by the County Dublin County Council for failing to dip a number of their sheep at the public dipping bath.

Philip Vaughan, inspector, said that Mr. Fitzachary said that he would not bring his sheep to the public dipping bath, as he had one of his own.

Mr. Fitzachary stated that he had 120 sheep. He knew that he was supposed to send the sheep to the public dipping bath provided by the County Council.

The Justice said that Fitzachary and others gave an example of bad citizenship in not complying with the regulations He fined Mr. Fitzachary £6, with £2 2s. costs and 10s. expenses.

Walsh said that he would bring his sheep to the dipping place next time. He was fined 8s 4d and 2d. each in respect of 50 sheep and 21s. costs.

PEACE CONGRESS IN HOLLAND

In the archiepiscopal town of Utrecht was held recently a meeting of the Dutch Catholic League of Peace, presided over by their active head, Father O. Kors. The most important resolution, which was passed, was to hold an international Catholic Congress to further the cause of peace, at La Haye, this year. Those responsible for the guidance of the principal Catholic societies which are working for peace and international concord will be invited from every country. The Dutch League proposes to study and to expound the directions as how best to bring about this peace, which are given by the Sovereign Pontiffs, to be followed by Catholic Action in the cause of universal peace. The bishops of the Low Countries have given their authorisation for the holding of this Congress.

THE VATICAN PRESS EXHIBITION

CLOSING POSTPONED

The closing of the World Catholic Press Exhibition at the Vatican has been postponed until April, it has been announced by Count Dalla Torre, the Director of Osservatore Romano and President of the Committee for the Exposition. In a letter directed to members of the National Committee, the Count says that this decision was made in deference to the petitions forwarded to the Committee by a large number of persons and in keeping with the expressed desire of many in authority.

The letter states:—"The ever-increasing favour that the Exhibition has encountered; the applause of authorities and persons of high authority and of every nation, and, above all, the fervid approval of the Holy Father himself, who, even in his Christmas allocution, had an authoritative and paternal recognition for our Exhibition, make it obligatory to persevere and to insist upon acquiring the greatest interest in the cause which it represents."

Count Dalla Torre calls upon the Committee to request their colleagues in the field of the Catholic Press and Catholic associations to co-operate in every way possible, so that this last period of the Exhibition will be crowned with complete success. The Italian Minister of Communications has ordered that the 70 per cent. reductions in railway fares granted to visitors to the Exhibition shall be continued until April 30th.

"I think the regulations regarding the sale of celluloid dolls are defective," said the Battersea Coroner (Dr. Edwin Smith) when he held an inquest yesterday on a thirteen months old child, who died from burns after she had been found by her mother holding a blazing doll in her hands. "They should be tightened up," added the Coroner, "because anyone can go into a shop and buy one. It is given to a child, who plays with it in front of a fire, and there you have the material for a terrible tragedy."

DEATH OF EMINENT PRIEST BOTANIST

The world of science has sustained a grievous loss in the death of Father Sennen, the great authority on the botany of the Iberian Peninsula, who died recently at Marseilles, where he had come from Barcelona. The work of this famous botanist merits comment. For over thirty years Father Sennen industriously explored every region of Spain, accumulating an incredible quantity of specimens, which he not only studied and classified for the use of botanists, with a wealth of notes and observations, but which he made into vast collections which were apportioned among the principal botanical collections of the world.

These explorations were begun in 1904, and he published his great work on the Excicata in 1906. He was responsible for the distribution among the principal herbal collections of more than 8,000 species of plants, with numerous specimens of each, many of which had been up to then unobserved by other botanists. In the spring of 1930 he went to Morocco, there to continue his great labours for botanical science. Father Sennen was aged 76 years when he died, and had been a religious for sixty years.

HIS WHEAT WILL SOON BE IN

Last year he sowed wheat, partly as an experiment, and he reaped a good crop which paid him well; and this in spite of a season not at all favourable so far as weather conditions were concerned. This year he is giving more ground to the crop, and is losing no opportunity of getting the soil ready. Soon his wheat will all be in. What about yours? Time is getting short. Do not hesitate any longer. Take advantage of the first favourable opportunity which presents itself.

FREE STATE'S EXTERNAL TRADE

SHIPPING AND OTHER FIGURES FOR 1935

FIVE YEARS INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

DECLARED VALUES OF GOODS

HOW the industrial expansion that has been taking place in the Free State during the last five years or so has affected the country's imports and exports is shown in the Trade and Shipping Statistics of the Free State for 1935, which have been compiled by the Department of Industry and Commerce.

The statistics are based on declarations made at the ports and land frontier stations by importers and exporters under the provisions of the Customs Acts. Imports and re-exports of merchandise must be described on appropriate Customs entry and re-export specification forms, and exports the produce of Free State manufacturers are also described on export specification forms. The goods to be declared include all articles imported and exported, except personal luggage, imports of fish of Free State taking, containers and ships' stores and ballast. The values of imports by parcels post are included in the statistics.

A continuous check is kept on the accuracy of the declarations in regard to descriptions, quantities and values by comparison with market prices, consistency of the declarations with others of the same kind, seasonal fluctuations and so forth. Since the introduction of the system of bounties or subsidies on exports some difficulty has been experienced in securing that the values declared for exports are entirely exclusive of bounties or subsidies, therefore it is probable that the values of the exports of some agricultural products in the last quarter of 1932 and in the whole of the years since remain exaggerated.

In 1924 the total trade of the Free State was £119,915,000, the imports amounting to £68,890,000, the exports of domestic produce to £49,721,000, and the re-exports to £1,304,000, and the excess of imports over exports to £17,866,000.

FIGURES FOR ELEVEN YEARS

The following table shows the trade up to 1935:—

WORLD TRADE INFLUENCE

From 1925 to 1929 the value of total trade was maintained at a nigh figure, which was a reflection of the generally prosperous conditions of world trade during the period. The influence of world conditions on Free State trade was evident in the decreases in the following five years. Taking the year 1929 as the basis there was a decline to 94 per cent. in Free State trade and to 81 per cent. in world trade in the following year; 80 per cent. and 62 per cent. respectively in 1931, 63 per cent. and 54 per cent. in 1932, 50 per cent. and 52 per cent. in 1933, 53 per cent. and 55 per cent. in 1934, and 53 per cent. and 58 per cent. in 1935. The decline in imports into the Free State was more gradual than the world trend, due partly to the proportionate increase in volume of imported raw or simply prepared goods, other than foodstuffs and of machinery in relation to total imports.

The decline in exports were also more gradual up to 1932 when there was a steep fall both in volume and in prices, as a result of the British Special duties. This fall was accentuated in 1933 when there was a sharp decline in the exchange of foodstuffs through-the world following an extension in the protection of agricultural commodities and the consequent narrowing of markets for surplus agricultural products.

THE IMPORTS

The volume of imports fell by 15 per cent. from 1929 to 1935 and the volume of domestic exports by 28 per cent., compared with the corresponding decreases in values of 39 per cent. and 58 per cent. as stated above. Of the total decrease in the value of imports lower average prices accounted for 65 per cent., and a decrease in volume for the remaining 35 per cent.

The total imports in the six main classes of distribution in 1929 amounted to £61,316,000, and declined to £37,348,000 in 1935, the figures for the intervening years being: 1930, £56,776,000; 1931, £50,461,000; 1932, £42,574,000; 1933, £35,789,000; 1934, £39,122,000. For example, imports of live animals declined in value from £1,580,000 in 1929 to £526,000 in 1935. The value of the raw materials for food, drink and tobacco declined from £10,314,000 in 1929 to £6,137,000 in 1935, prepared foodstuffs from £12,487,000 in 1929 to £3,673,000 in 1935, raw or simply prepared manufactured goods declined from £6,546,000 in 1929 to £5,464,000 in 1935, manufactured or prepared goods imported declined from £29,295,000 in 1929 to £21,217,000 in 1935, goods imported by parcel post declined from £1,094,000 to £331,000 in the same years.

THE DECLINE IN EXPORTS

The value of domestic exports declined from £46,225,000 in 1929 to £19,615,000 in 1935. The decline under the different heads were as follows:—

	1929. £	1934. £	1935. £
Live animals	19,695,000	6,115,000	7,316,000
Raw or simply prepared food, drink, and tobacco	5,229,000	1,974,000	1,865,000
Manufactured or prepared food, etc.	14,743,000	7,458,000	8,252,000
Other raw materials or manufactured goods simply prepared	2,339,000	1,085,000	1,281,000
Manufactured or prepared	3,477,000	692 000	657,000
Parcel post	742,000	249,000	242,000

A STRIKING SHRINKAGE

Over one-half of the total imports are manufactured goods (other than food, drink, or tobacco). The gradual increase in the percentage proportion which this class bears to all imports was due to the fact that the rate of decrease has been slower than in the case of foodstuffs. For instance, imports of manufactured or prepared foodstuffs fell by £8,814,000, or 71 per cent., while during the same period imports of other manufactured goods fell by £8,078,000, an aggregate decline of approximately the same value, though representing a percentage decrease of only 28 per cent. Accordingly the imports of manufactured goods (other than foodstuffs) represent a considerably higher proportion of the total imports in the last three years than in the previous years. One of the most striking facts shown is the decrease in the imports of foodstuffs from £22,750,000 in 1929 to £9,750,000 in 1935, a decline of 57 per cent. The decline in the imports of non-dutiable parcel post is due to the inclusion in the tariff of many items which formerly were free of duty.

The proportion of live stock to the total value of domestic exports decreased from a maximum of 52 per cent. in 1931 to 35 per cent. in 1934, but increased somewhat again in 1935, while exports of manufactured or prepared food, drink, and tobacco rose proportionately from 27 per cent. in 1931 to 42 per cent. in 1935.

The imports of agricultural products declined from £16,959,000 in 1929 to £6,549,000 in 1933 and to £6,214,000 in 1935 the figure for 1932 being £10,820,000. The figures for "other products" were:—1929, £44,357,000; 1930, £42,285,000; 1931, £38,062,000; 1932, £31,754,000; 1933, £29,240,000; 1934, £32,226,000; and 1935, £31,134,000.

DOMESTIC EXPORTS

In Thousand Pounds.

Domestic Exports.
Agricultural Products	35,777	32,871	27,673,	18,573	13,028	11,933	13,934
Other Products	10,448	10,897	7,873	6,600	5,411	5,641	5,681
Total	46,225	43,768	35,546	25,173	18,439	17,574	19,615

Agricultural products constituted 17 per cent. of the imports and 71 per cent. of domestic exports in 1935, compared with 28 per cent. and 77 per cent. respectively in 1929.

RISES AND FALLS

There was an increase in the value of the principal imports into the Free State from £35,789,000 in 1933 to £37,348,000 in 1935. The value of the imports of horses increased from £341,000 in 1933 to £502,000 in 1935, but other live animals declined from £44,000 to £24,000. Meat extracts increased from £48,000 to £57,000; tea from £1,502,000 to £1,548,000; ale, beer and porter from £131,000 to £168,000; spirits from £167,000 to £176,000; wines from £194,000 to £298,000. The value of the imports in unmanufactured tobacco increased from £312,000 to £750,000, while manufactured tobacco increased from £18,000 to £22,000. Decreases are shown in the following imports:—Wheat, from £2,413,000 to £2,386,000; maize, from £1,245,000 to £1,200,000; sugar, from £746,000 to £265,000, and apples, from £191,000 to £148,000.

In respect of other raw materials and manufactured goods there was an increase in imports of from £24,428,000 in 1933 to £26,681 in 1935. Implements, tools and parts increased from £120,000 to £141,000; clocks, watches and parts from £60,000 to £74,000; wireless apparatus from £226,000 to £230,000; other electrical goods from £408,000 to £570,000; motor vehicles and parts from £731,000 to £1,187,000; bicycles from £234,000 to £379,000; sawn timber from £597,000 to £756,000; textile raw materials from £99,000 to £116,000; cotton yarns and manufactures from £1,495,000 to £1,769,000; woollen yarn from £1,169,000 to £1,395,000; paper cardboard from £1,130,000 to £1,242,000; petroleum lamp oil from £226,000 to £241,000; medicines and medicinal preparations from £273,000 to £295,000, and seeds for sowing from £177,000 to £343,000.

THE APPAREL GROUP

On the other hand, there were decreases in the value of the imports in the apparel group. The value of outer garments declined from £484,000 to £234,000; under garments from £79,000 to £34,000; hosiery from £600,000 to £314,000; boots and shoes from £970,000 to £500,000. Lubricating oil declined from £236,000 to £177,000; newspapers from £134,000 to £104,000; oil seeds, fats, etc., from £201,000 to £178,000; timber and other manufactures from £228,000 to £171,000; rubber tyres and tubes from £226,000 to £210,000.

In the principal exports there was an increase in value from £18,439,000 in 1933 to £19,615,000 in 1935. The exports in live animals, including cattle, sheep, pigs, poultry, horses and greyhounds, however, decreased from £7,512,000 to £7,316,000 in 1935. In the food, drink and tobacco class there was an increase in the exports from £8,862,000 to £10,017,000, the principal increases being, bacon and hame from £706,000 to £1,493,000, salmon and trout from £193,000 to £197,000, porter, beer and ale from £3,402,000 to £3,695,000; spirits from £107,000 to £130,000; iron and steel, old and scrap, from £64,000 to £70,000; wool from £481,000 to £488,000; cattle hides from £143,000 to £244,000; feathers from £36,000 to £55,000. Against these figures there have been decreases in the exports of eggs from £1,078,000 to £995,000; biscuits from £314,000 to £303,000; fresh pork from £483,000 to £353,000; linen goods from £146,000 to £118,000, and machinery from £40,000 to £29,000.

RESULTS OF LEGISLATION

As a result of the various legislative measures there have been many changes during the last five years in the nature of Free State trade, and in particular in the type of goods imported. For example, in wheaten flour there was a decrease in value of £1,555,000 or 93 per cent. from the figure for 1931. There was a 100 per cent. decrease in bacon, 70 per cent. in boots and shoes, 79.8 per cent. in outer garments, 91.6 per cent. in touring motor cars, 66.9 per cent. in sugar, 95.7 in maize, 100 per cent. in offals, 99.6 per cent. in cocoa preparations, 99.7 per cent. in bicycles, 72.5 per cent. in underwear. In commercial vehicles there was a decrease of 98 per cent., and in bakers bread and buns 99.5 per cent., sweets and sweemeats 97.2 per cent., cheese 97.5 per cent., oat products 98.9 per cent., preserved fish 51.7. In the case of many descriptions of manufactured goods produced on a large scale in the Free State the materials are also home-produced. In particular may be mentioned such items as bacon, butter, cheese, wheaten flour, and sugar, which (except sugar) are simply transformed agricultural goods while a number of other items are partly home-produced and partly imported. In this respect it is interesting to note that the principal industries consist of the manufacture of goods, the raw materials of which are of Free State origin.

Among the items showing the largest decreases in imports are wheaten flour, bacon, boots and shoes and wearing apparel. Against decreases in the imports of bacon there were largely reduced exports of pigs. Imports of complete motor vehicles decreased by over one million pounds, but imports of leather dressed, upper, and of sole and insole hides, increased by £226,000. Imports of complete motor vehicles decreased by over one million, but the imports of motor vehicle parts and accessories increased by over half a million. Despite the increased production of Free State woollen mills, the quantity of woollen and worsted tissues imported increased.

RAW MATERIALS

While the imports of certain goods manufactured in the Free State declined, there were increases in many of the raw materials used in the further manufacture in the Free State. For example, the imports in wheat increased by 51 per cent.; parts and accessories of motor vehicles by 88.8 per cent.; woollen and worsted yarns by 113 per cent.; bicycle parts and accessories by 395 per cent.; leather dressed, 219 per cent.; cotton yarn, 532 per cent.; steel bars and rods, 197 per cent.; sheets and plates of tin, 11.7 per cent. and plates and sheets not coated—iron and steel by 140 per cent. In addition to the decreases in imports of manufactured goods and the increases in the imports of certain raw materials, the industrial expansion of the last five years has necessitated large importations of machinery and other capital equipment. The actual increase in the value of imported boot and shoe making machinery in the years 1931-35, as against 1926-30, is £187,939; grain milling, £171,762; textile, £153,515; printing and bookbinding, £149,833; sewing machines and parts, £83,843, and boiler and house-boiler plant, £72,036.

The statistics show the position of trade in some of the principal products. In the case of the export of pigs and pig products the value decreased by £2,357,000 from 1931 to 1935—or by approximately 50 per cent.; if the quantities exported in 1935 were valued at 1931 average prices the value of exports in 1935 would have been approximately £3,100,000; so it may be calculated that lower prices accounted for approximately one-third of the total decrease in value and a decline in the volume of exports for the remaining two-thirds. In 1931 the value of exports of live pigs accounted for 47 per cent. of the total value of exports of pigs and pig products, while bacon and hams accounted for only 26 per cent. By 1935 the relative positions were reversed, and live pigs accounted for only 18 per cent., while bacon and hams had risen to 64 per cent.

WHEAT AND FLOUR

From 1931 to 1935 the imports of wheat increased from 5,636,000 cwts. value £1,573,000 to 7,553,000 cwts. valued at £2,386,000, while the imports of wheaten flour fell from 3,377,000 cwts. value £1,662,000 to 226,000 cwts. value £107,000. Taking wheat and wheaten flour together there was a drop of £750,000, representing almost 6 per cent. of the decrease in the total value of all imports in the period. The decrease in the imports of wheaten flour from over three and a quarter million cwts. in 1931 to less than a quarter of a million in 1935 was due, in the first place, to the imposition in 1932 of a duty of five shillings per sack on all imports in excess of limited quantities, and, in the second place, to the operation of the Agricultural Produce (Cereals) Act, 1933, which prohibited from May, 1933, the import of wheaten flour except under licence. Similar limitations were also imposed by the Act on the importation of wheaten meal, bread, buns, biscuits and other preparations. Imports of other wheat products, including bran, pollard, sharps and middlings, fell from 1,156,526 cwts. value for £388,047 in 1931 to 2,253, cwts. value £3,874 in 1935.

Bakers' bread and buns fell from 236,056 cwt., value £197,469, to 201 cwt., value £997 over the corresponding period. Imports of biscuits fell from 5,470 cwt., value £33,774, to 1,001 cwt., value £3,526, and exports of biscuits declined in value from £385,690 to £303,261 in 1935.

SUGAR AND WOOLLENS

The imports of sugar decreased from 81,000 tons, value for £790,000, to 35,000 tons, value for £265,000, in 1935. In respect of woollen and worsted tissues, the imports increased from 6,567,000 square yards in 1931 to 7,239,000 yards in 1935, while, as would be expected, in view of the restriction on the imports of the dearer qualities of woollen and worsted tissues, the corresponding value decreased from £725,000 to £597,000. Exports have decreased somewhat, but the requirements of the clothing industry have more than compensated for the decline, and the production of woollen and worsted tissues increased from 2,012,000 square yards, value £426,000, in 1931 to 3,853,000 square yards, value £729,000, in 1935.

There has been a reduction of £2,250,000, or over 60 per cent. in the value of the imports of apparel into the Free State between 1931 and 1935, for which outer garments accounted for nearly £1,000,000. Owing to the many additions and alterations made during the period in the Official Import List, chiefly in connection with tariff changes, it was not possible to arrive at exact figures for the imports of men's and boys' and women's and girls' clothing. There has been a steady decrease in the imports of boots and shoes of leather, and an almost corresponding increase in home production in recent years. The home market for heavy boots and shoes is now well supplied, and imports have fallen from 53,000 to 6,000 dozen pairs between 1931 and 1935. The production of lighter boots and shoes has still room for expansion, though imports have fallen from 254,000 dozen pairs to 98,000 dozen pairs in the corresponding period. Boots and shoes for infants' wear have declined from 24,000 dozen pairs in 1934, to 8,000 dozen pairs in 1935.

The increased home production of boots and shoes required heavy imports of leather, the principal raw material. Imports of leather, undressed, increased from 41,000 cwts. in 1931 to 62,000 cwts. in 1935, while dressed leather increased from 13,000 cwts., value £148,000, to 38,000 cwts., value £441,000.

THE EXPORTING COUNTRIES

From the annual import and export price index numbers it is shown that import prices declined to 1933, when there was a gradual recovery. Export prices declined to 1934, when there was a tendency towards stability. Taking 1930 as the base year at 100 per cent., the figures show that there was a fall to 85 per cent. in 1931, 83.3 in 1932, 77.0 in 1933, 77.2 in 1934, and 78.3 in 1935 in respect of imports. The figure for domestic exports in 1931 was 90.5; 1932 78.5; 1933, 64.5; 1934, 60.9; and 1935, 61.7.

In the twelve months ended March 31, 1936, the value of the goods consigned from Great Britain was £25,644,640; from Northern Ireland, £1,639,841; and from other countries, £10,221,198. The other countries include: United States, £1,577,348; India (British), £33,977; Argentina, £694,647; Canada, £842,857; Australia, £1,108,084; Germany, £1,256,743; Belgium, £1,144,625; Finland, £347,574; France, £304,972; Russia, £244,926; Czechoslovakia, £156,706. The above figures are different from those given in respect of the value of the goods originating in any particular country. The country of consignment is not necessarily the country of production.

The imports for domestic consumption of the Free State was 12s. 10d. per head of the population. The figure for Switzerland is 20s., the highest and 3d. for China, which is the lowest.

From Europe during 1935 this country imported goods to the value of £32,377,681. The exports amounted to £19,083,286, and the re-exports to £301,695. The figures for the other places were as follows:—

	Imports. £	Exports. £	Re-exports. £
Asia	234,893	130,798	153
Africa	113,745	89,877	466

ARAB AND JEW IN PALESTINE

MR. DONAL O'SULLIVAN'S BROADCAST

Some common conceptions in regard to the relations between the Jews and Arabs to-day were denied by Mr Donal O'Sullivan, in the second broadcast talk on the position in Palestine, given in the Dublin radio programme last night. Mr. O'Sullivan outlined the conditions under which both races live, and the changes which modern conditions have brought about in their traditional modes of living. He contrasted the unity of the Jews with the Arabs' lack of organisation, and showed the advantages possessed by the former in educational matters and in finance. Having compared the present state of Palestine with that of the South of Ireland during the plantation period in the early eighteenth century, Mr. O'Sullivan concluded with a quotation from a letter by an Arab, who stated that the Arabs would rather be destitute and poor, but independent and free in their country, than prosperous and free in a country which will in a few years' time be theirs no more.

Irish Polo-players in India : Hunting Visitors : New "Gate" Actor : American Cinema Attendances : Dangerous Playthings

Lady Warrender

After a season of winter sport in Switzerland Lady Warrender has arrived in Ireland to hunt. She has, it is understood, gone West to sample the sport with the Galway Blazers. Lady Warrender is the wife of Sir Victor Warrender, and is a daughter of the late Colonel Hamilton Rawson and Lady Beatrice Rawson, whose father was the second Earl of Lichfield. The Warrenders are old Scottish stock who came into prominence with the Hanoverian succession. The first baronet was created in that memorable year 1715. Queen Victoria stood sponsor for the present Baronet, who has held many important offices during his career. Sir Victor and Lady Warrender, who are devoted to sport, have three sons. One of these in particular—Simon Warrender, who is now about fifteen—was his mother's constant companion during her recent ski-ing holiday in Switzerland. Lady Warrender goes well to hounds, and hunted in Ireland last season.

Norman Scace

Norman Scace, who played the part of the Father with such a nice sense of comedy in "Pride and Prejudice" at the Dublin Gate, is remaining for the season with Lord Longford Productions. Mr. Scace—whose name is, by the way, an old Norman French one—has been playing leads in a number of London productions for the past three years. In 1934 he was in "Aureng-Zebe" with Sybil Thorndike at the Westminster. He has played at the Aldwych in "Treasure Island," and another of his leads was in the "Barretts of Wimpole Street." At the Cambridge Festival he took the part of the Cardinal in "Duchess of Malfi." He is at present rehearsing the part of Ferdinand in "The Duchess," which will have its première at the Gate on Monday evening. In Norman Scace, Longford Productions seem to have got hold of an actor of genuine tact and skill.

Visitors

The visitors in search of horses are among the most welcome in Ireland these days. But when one remembers that they are searching for a commodity which is becoming increasingly difficult to supply, then, perhaps, we need not appear grateful for their arrival. When I saw Richard Morgan in Dublin the other evening I sensed 'chasers immediately. The older generation will remember "Dick" Morgan as the glamorous cross-country rider of a quarter of a century ago. He is one of the older Morgans, of Waterford—and the uncle of Tommy, and Danny—the King's jockey.

Dick Morgan never grows old, and had there been film productions like "Wings of the Morning" or such like in London when he was riding in form, he would certainly have been playing the parts now assigned to Steve Donoghue. He would have looked a good advertisement for Irishmen.

Coming back to our horses, Mr. Morgan tells me he and Mr. Blagrave are in Ireland searching for two good 'chasers and a three-year-old. They have been hunting down in Tipperary with the Scarteen Black and Tans.

Polo in India

It may sound strange and unseasonable to speak about polo these days in our latitudes. It is, however, with the game as played in India that I am now concerned. There are great accounts of the three tournaments which were played in Calcutta during the Christmas season. The famous Jaipur team was in action then, but, although it overcame its opposing team, the Darbhanga, the victory was a narrow one. The well-known Kashmir did not enter a side for the Christmas tournaments this year. It did, however, have representation with the Bing Boys' team; for two of its members played with that team on Christmas Day in two matches at Ellenborough, where the Bing Boys met Bhopal. Captain Roark was Bing Boy No. 2, and Captain Chaytor was another of the Boys—both sound very Irish. Of course, Captain Roark is a crack polo player, and I believe Captain Chaytor played so well that he was noted as a crack of the future.

Lady Jean Dundas

Lady Jean Dundas, who came from Yorkshire for the Meath Hunt ball, is the guest of Mrs. Morrogh Ryan at Dunboyne Castle.

Lady Jean is the third daughter of the Marquess of Zetland, and is just twenty. Though she comes often to Ireland she has not hunted here so far, but at home in Yorkshire she regularly follows the Zetland—an old hunt, named after her family, to which it originally belonged.

She is tall, athletic, and a good dancer. These Dundases come of very old Scottish stock, which has produced many distinguished people in the past.

American Cinemas Prosperity

It is stated that the American film and cinema business has never experienced such prosperity as it did last year. During 1936 the gross receipts in American cinemas rose to over two hundred million pounds sterling; being over fifty million pounds more than in the preceding year. Attendances at cinemas, of course, increased proportionately; reaching an average of eighty-one million persons every week. The attendances averaged seventy-two millions weekly during 1935, and towards the end of the year the attendances were half as much again as they were during the depression period.

This increase in attendances was, however, secured by retaining admission prices at about their depression period level. The average admission price at the end of the year was only one shilling, or an increase of twopence on the average price that prevailed during the preceding three years. In the years before the depression struck the United States the average admission price was one shilling and threepence, so that the average has fallen by about a fifth.

Playing With Fire

Passing along a fairly busy thoroughfare the other evening, I was amazed to see a group of small children playing with the electric standards, and to watch the dexterity with which they opened the small door of each and turned out the lights. I approached and expressed my curiosity as to how this was done, and was informed thereupon that all that was necessary was a small stick, or, failing that, a finger was quite adequate. The few adults that gathered were quite chary of putting their hands inside the standards to turn on the light, although they were assured that "all you have to do is to press down the switch."

Apart from the inconvenience to the residents, isn't this rather dangerous for the children, and couldn't something be done about it.

"McCormack Punch Bowl"

Yesterday I alluded to the forthcoming sale at Moore Abbey. Messrs. Battersby and Co., the auctioneers, draw my attention to the fact that the "wonderful suite of Chippendale chairs" is, as a matter of fact, included in the catalogue, Nos. 545 to 551, and illustrations of the chairs are given facing Page 34.

Mr. R. V. Judd, who will conduct this sale, and has been associated with so many of the recent important auctions, points out in reference to this suite that the companion settee is in the Dublin Museum and that great interest has already been manifested in the lots.

IRISH INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

ASSOCIATION'S ANNUAL MEETING

The thirty-first annual general meeting of the Irish Industrial Development Association was held at Grafton Chambers, Dublin, on Thursday last, Mr. William Brown presiding.

The annual report, which was adopted, stated that the Irish trade mark, now in existence, for over thirty years, had been registered during that period in the Argentine, Australia, Canada, Chile, Egypt, France, Great Britain, New Zealand and Nigeria. During the past year a number of firms had been granted licences to use the mark on their manufactures, and a directory of users of the mark had been issued free of charge. Many inquiries from abroad for the names and addresses of Irish firms had been dealt with by the Association, and a good deal of business had been procured in this way. Cases of foreign goods being represented as Irish-made had been investigated, and the necessary action had been taken by the Association. In conclusion, the report tendered the thanks of the Association to all sections of the Press for their support during the year.

The officers and Council elected for the year 1937 were:—Mr. Wm. Brown (President and Hon. Treasurer), Miss Sarah Purser, R.H.A. (Dublin) (Vice-President); Mr. David Baird (Dublin), Mr. George Shackleton (Lucan), Mr. William Cronin (Dublin), Mr. F. Kapp (Dublin), Mr. J. C. Dowdall, LL.D. (Cork); Mr. Gerald Goodbody (Limerick), Mr. R. Dobbyn (Dublin), Mr. Arthur Smalley (Dublin), Col. A. T. S. McGan (Kildare), Mr. R. M. Dixon (Dublin), Mr. J. H. Cooper (Dublin), Mr. John Sweetman (Kells), Mr. T. S. Shackleton (Leixlip).

The outgoing solicitors and auditors were reappointed, viz.:—Arthur Cox and Co., 43 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin; Messrs. M. H. Horgan and Sons, Cork; Messrs. McKenna and Co., 31-34 Basinghall street, London, E.C., and Messrs. J. A. Kinnear and Co., auditors, 3-4 College street, Dublin.

FRENCH PAINTING OF THE 19th CENTURY

DR. GEORGE FURLONG'S LECTURE

Dr. George Furlong, Director of the National Gallery, Dublin, delivered a lecture on French Painting of the 19th Century, at the Royal Dublin Society's premises, Ballsbridge, yesterday

Early in the 19th century, he said, there was a school of painters, not confined to France alone, whose pictures represented occasions or events which were bound up in their minds with certain associations derived from history and literature. Without knowledge of these occasions and events the pictures were meaningless and unimportant They pre-supposed a certain knowledge and education which was, to some extent, further qualified by time and nationality. They were more illustrations than pictures.

This phase was found in France under Ingres and David, but after that 19th century painting gave only what it saw, and everything it meant could be seen in its pictures. No outside knowledge was required. It was done first in a naturalistic manner, as they found in the realism of Courbet and Millet. Still, even here the subject determined the picture. Millet painted simple scenes—peasants or simple landscape. These painters were followed by the Impressionists from Manet to Monet. From these they got the immediate optical impression, a reproduction of the colour mosaic that was mirrored in the eyeball.

DUMB PICTURES

All these pictures, he said, were dumb. They did not tell us anything. The painter or the spectator became an eye-witness who regarded the mere colour appearance as the only immediate and certain reality. With the painters the subjects became more and more "still-life." They were things devoid of any meaning themselves, like words in a dictionary. This was a most highly specialised and subtle form of seeing, which ruled out any information derived either from knowledge or from the other senses. It dissolved the world into atoms. Its ultimate consequence was the Pointilliste technique. The painter withdrew himself a certain distance from the subject, with the result that he had either nothing to say about the probable connection or relation between the different parts of the world around him or had no wish to say it. No further analysis was possible.

A NEW SYNTHESIS

Cezanne realised the danger, and introduced a new synthesis and a new constructive style. In this the emphasis was laid, not on the appearance of the thing, but on its actual existence. Everything was reduced to its simplest form of an almost geometrical nature. The painter became constructive. He no longer gave what one saw actually at one specific moment, but concentrated on those ground elements which constituted its permanent form. Out of these he built his painting, and the whole picture was planned. He related only what everyone else saw.

This art of Cezanne, van Gogh, Gauguin and Modiligiani was highly specialised, yet easy to understand It was of universal application, because it was not dependent on any special accidental knowledge one happened to have acquired as in those historical pictures at the beginning of the century. On the contrary, it was ready to become an integral part of their general culture and education, like Greek art or the Italian Renaissance.

TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES

MEETINGS & DEBATES

LIST OF ELECTORS

UNSUCCESSFUL candidates at the recent "pass" examinations, held at the beginning of this term, will be given their chance of reprieve when a re-examination for all classes will be held on Saturday next. The coming week has its full complement of meetings. On Monday afternoon the Gaelic Society will hear a paper on George Bernard Shaw read by Mr. C. H. Smyth. G. W. Keegan, J. W. Boyle and G. H. Gillespie will speak to the paper. The Mathematical Society will also meet on Monday afternoon, when Mr. D. P. Huddie, Sch., will speak on "Correlation." There are three meetings on Monday night. The Theological Society meets at 8.15 p.m., and Mr. J. P. McKew, B.A., will read a paper on "Modernism," and the speakers will include the Hon. Secretary (Mr. T. H. Blennerhasset) and Mr. J. A. MacDonagh, Sch. The Neophyte Debating Society will debate the motion—"That the Inventor is of Greater Use to Society than the Explorer." The chair will be taken by Mr. E. J. Furlong, Sch. (Mod.), B.A., President of the University Philosophical Society. The motion will be proposed by the Hon. Secretary (Mr. B. Solomons), and the negative will be headed by the Hon. Treasurer (Mr. V. Jennings). The Biological Society also meets, when Mr. J. Grove-White will exhibit a case of Renal Tuberculosis. A paper will also be read by Mr. H. A. Dougan dealing with "Some Aspects of Mental Disease."

Socialist Club

On Tuesday the Modern Languages Society will meet at 3.15 p.m., when a paper will be read on "Milton's Satan," by R. G. Easton. On Wednesday the College Historical will debate the motion—"That the Health of the Individual is the Concern of the State." The motion is being moved by the Auditor (Mr. W. A. Beers, B.A.). It is hoped that members of the Society who are medical students will endeavour to speak on this subject, which should be of particular interest to them. The Law Society met last night, when Mr. D. A. P. Murphy, Sch., read an interesting paper on "The Law of Defamation."

The "Socialist Club," whose doings aroused considerable interest last term, appears to have vanished into the limbo of forgotten things, and its place has now been taken by a new body, which describes itself as the "University Labour Club." This "new" body, which is believed to be composed mainly of the members of the old "Socialist Club," held a meeting for private business last Thursday, and members of the University will watch the progress of this new body with interest.

Backhouse Prize

The following rules were adopted for the Marmaduke Backhouse Prize, founded in the Engineering School in accordance with the wishes of the late Mrs Alice Backhouse, who bequeatheed a sum of £1,000 for this purpose:—(1) That it be awarded to the best answerer at the Engineering School entrance in Trinity Term if sufficient merit be shown, but if not awarded then, it may be awarded in the Michaelmas Term. (2) That it be paid in three equal instalments—one in December in each year. (3) That payment of the second and third instalments will depend on the recommendation of the Professor of Civil Engineering. (4) That special questions be set at the entrance examination for candidates for the prize. (5) That no candidate shall be eligible who has completed his twentieth year before the first of July in the year in which he competes. The Board also decided that the first award should be made in Trinity Term of the present year.

French Gift

Tuesday, the 1st of June, 1937, has been arranged as the date of the examination for the scholarship in the history of European painting. The French Government has very kindly made a presentation to the College library. The gift consists of twenty-three volumes of diplomatic documents dealing with the origin of the European war of 1914.

Mr. A. D. Delap has resigned his post as Lecturer in Sanitary Construction and Planning, and his place has been taken by Mr. A. I. N. Roberts, B.A., B.A.I. Mr. Sidney Smart and Mr. John Barry divided the Wray Prize equally between them.

College Etiquette

A vexed question of College etiquette has just been laid to rest by a recent decision of the Board. For some time past a controversy has raged as to whether scholars of the House are privileged or obliged to wear the full gown commensurate with their academic distinction, and many wordy battles have been waged. The Board has now ruled that all scholars must wear the full gown on commons and at lectures.

The Student Christian Movement has recently been establishing relationships with Wales during recent months. In November a party of Welshmen visited Trinity College for a week-end conference, and last week-end a party of twenty Irish students from both the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland visited Bangor University for a similar conference on the subject of Modern Evangelism. The party also visited and held a debate with Coleg Harlech, a workers' educational college for miners and industrial workers. Bangor is almost entirely Welsh speaking and much interesting information was gained on the problems and benefits of bi-lingualism and of the Churches adjustment to the situation Theology is taught through the medium of Welsh.

List of Electors

A recent notice announced that the Registrar and Assistant Registrar would receive claims and objections to the new list of electors for the University representatives in Dail Eireann. This list is probably the last of its kind which will be published as University representation in the Dail will cease after the next general election, which is almost certain to be held during the present year.

The provisional results of the Night Trial, which was held by the Dublin University Motor Cycle and Light Car Club, now appear at the Front Gate. The name of Mr. R. C. Whitton is given as the winner of the Premier Car award. Mr. Whitton drove a Ford V-Eight.

Athletics Committee

Students will learn with pleasure that the Board has consented to make the necessary advance to the Dublin University Central Athletic Committee for the construction of squash rackets courts, if the committee decides to proceed with the scheme. The various enthusiasts who sponsored the idea may be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

The Rugby XV. will travel to Limerick to engage Limerick Bohemians, and the Hockey XI. meet Railway Union at Park avenue. Both matches will be played to-day.

THE SPRING SHOW

HEAVY TRADE BOOKINGS

From a trade standpoint the success of the coming Spring Show and Saorstat Industries Fair appears to be assured. To-day, barely one month from the time bookings commenced, the Royal Dublin Society announces that the Machinery Paddock and three of the great Exhibition Halls—the Main Hall, Main Hall Annexe and Saorstat Hall—are completely booked out, while in the Serpentine Hall seventy-five per cent. of the space has been taken. There are still three months before the opening of the Show on May 4th, yet out of the 204,000 super-feet of space given over to trade stands within Ballsbridge there now remains only 4,000 super-feet available, and when this has been allotted the Society will have to issue a "House Full" notice, as the capacity of the show grounds from a trade standpoint will then be taxed to its uttermost.

The Serpentine Hall, which was in use for the first time last year, is, like the Saorstat Hall, devoted to Saorstat manufactures. In 1935 the Society found that the Saorstat Hall was inadequate to house the displays of the ever-increasing number of Irish manufacturers who wished to be represented at the Show, and at the close of the Horse Show that year work was immediately commenced on the erection of the new Serpentine Hall adjoining the Veterinary Paddock. Designed and built as an exhibition hall, it is ideal from the standpoint of elevation, lighting and lay-out, and proved immensely popular last year with both exhibitors and visitors.

In the Spring Show is found a combination of agriculture and industry in happy interdependence; to the agriculturist it affords an opportunity to gain first-hand information of the latest industrial developments which will help him in his work and in his home, while the manufacturer is eager to avail himself of that fine publicity medium which an attendance of over 100,000 visitors drawn from all parts of Ireland must ensure. Side by side the two sections of the Show have developed, until last year at Ballsbridge the stables and pens housed over 700 head of stock, while in the Trade Halls over 300 firms provided a trade display, the stand frontages of which exceeded two miles in length.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE BASQUE PROBLEM

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—May I thank Father Gannon for his kindness and courtesy? I am glad that he has taken mercy on me and spared me the ordeal of arguing the case with so expert and trained a dialectician. I am grateful to him for the course of reading he has prescribed for me, perhaps most of all for the reference to his own book, which I might otherwise have missed. I have read Mr. de Blacam's pamphlet; while I am bound to admit Mr. de Blacam's sincerity and fairness, from his own point of view, his arguments have failed to convince me. I should be particularly anxious to know why my Catalan friends of the "Right," as well as those of the "Left," have espoused the "Red" cause. Mr. de Blacam gives me no help there, nor in many other points. Nor does he explain how it comes about that the most eminent scholar in Spain, Señor Menendez Pidal, President of the Spanish Academy, supports the legal and constitutional Government.

One point I concede willingly to Father Gannon. Roland was defeated by the Basques, on whom Charlemagne had been making somewhat unsuccessful war. The Basques were Christians. To console himself Charlemagne had also attacked Saragossa, not, alas! as a Christian Crusader, but as the ally of the infidel Saracen Governor of Barcelona, Ibn el Arabi. He had been unsuccessful there also.

I was, of course, not thinking of the historic Roland, but of the Roland of legend, as he appeared to the Frenchmen of the twelfth century who delivered Saragossa in 1118 and laid down their lives for the Cross in the East. See Jean György: Etude sur la Chanson de Roland (I cite only the very latest contribution to the story of the Spanish Crusades).—Yours, etc.,

THE ARAB CLAIM TO PALESTINE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I shall be obliged if you will permit me to refer to the broadcast by Mr. Donal O'Sullivan on "The Jew and the Arab in Palestine," as reported in your issue of January 30th, as the account therein given of a War-time promise to the Arabs is quite contrary to the facts, and it is of importance that these shall be clearly understood.

The promise of independence to certain Arab territories, on condition that they rendered military assistance to the Allies, was communicated by Sir Henry McMahon, then British High Commissioner in Egypt, to the late King Hussein, then Sherif of Mecca. The delimitation of those territories set forth in Sir Henry's offer excluded Palestine, which was never mentioned in the correspondence, and there is no evidence that the Arabs at that time understood anything different. This is proved by the fact that on January 3rd, 1919, Feisal (son of Hussein), afterwards King of Iraq, signed a Treaty of Friendship with Dr. Weizmann, the Zionist leader, which was in terms clearly implying that Palestine was excluded from the lands that were to receive independence. Moreover, on January 29th, 1919, Feisal, who submitted a Memorandum on the Arab claims to the Peace Conference, stated: "On account of its universal character, I shall leave Palestine on one side for the mutual consideration of all parties concerned. With this exception, I ask for the independence of the Arabic areas enumerated in the Memorandum."

The White Paper of 1922 definitely declares that the whole of Palestine West of the Jordan was excluded from Sir Henry McMahon's pledge, and Sir Henry himself, in a letter written on March 12th, 1922, to the Colonial Office, placed on record that in his letter of October 24th, 1915, it was his intention to exclude Palestine from an independent Arabia.

It must be remembered that the promise of independence was made conditional upon an Arab revolt against the Turks. Hussein revolted and was made King of the Hedjaz. Iraq was also given independence; Transjordan was detached from Palestine and made an Emirate under Abdullah (another son of Hussein); and Syria is also to receive independence. But there was no revolt on the part of the Arabs in Palestine. That country was liberated after 400 years of Turkish domination by General Allenby's army, which contained three Jewish battalions, without any active assistance from the local Arabs.

The only promise made to the Palestinian Arabs was that contained in the Balfour Declaration—viz., "That nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities of Palestine." Not only has that promise been faithfully kept, but the social and economic conditions of the Arabs, thanks to British administration and Jewish colonising activity, have improved to such a considerable extent that tens of thousands of Arabs from the neighbouring countries have been attracted into Palestine by the better opportunities of employment.

It is sometimes alleged that the late Colonel Lawrence supported the claim of the Palestinian Arabs and went into retirement because it was not granted. This allegation, like so many other stories about Lawrence, is quite legendary. Reference to his "Seven Pillars of Wisdom" (p. 276) shows that he wrote with reference to the events of 1921:—

"Mr. Winston Churchill was entrusted by our harassed Cabinet with the settlement of the Middle East; and in a few weeks, at his conference in Cairo, he made straight all the tangle, finding solutions fulfilling (I think) our promises in letter and spirit (where humanly possible) without sacrificing any interest of our Empire and any interest of the peoples concerned."

It will thus be seen that there is absolutely no foundation for the allegation that "the promises to the Arabs to a large extent were broken." On the other hand, the position of the Arabs in Palestine at the present day is incomparably better than it was before the advent of the Mandate.—Yours, etc.,

D.U.T. COMPANY 'BUSES

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—I wish to endorse the complaint of "Camel." I would, if possible, use the Walsh road-Capel street route regularly, and Donnycarney very often, and I can safely say both "services" are farcical. The company pleads shortage of vehicles, but this does not explain the lack of system and irregularity in the working of those available. It is a common thing to see two or three almost together going in one direction, with a consequent long break elsewhere. If the cars were run punctually at even a 15 or 20 minute rate many people could adapt their times to suit, but at present nobody knows how long a wait may be. Another grievance is that the drivers frequently ignore the signals of intending passengers or take advantage of a halted 'bus or tramcar at a stopping place to swing out and go ahead, regardless of how many people may be waiting. Apparently the company will only run cars when and where they are likely to be filled, and the drivers will stop when and where they like, so it is no wonder the public regret the passing of the small owners, who, whatever their faults, gave a frequent and attentive service on their various routes.—Yours, etc.,

"DRUMCON."

A large ape, described as a gorilla, attacked its mistress, Madame Lecomte, in her Paris flat, and ran amok. The ape broke all the furniture in the flat and besieged the kitchen, where its mistress had taken refuge. It was only "arrested" after a furious battle with the police. It was given to Madame Lecomte by her parents when it was a baby, and she had looked after it for thirteen years in a cage in her bedroom.

WALTZ WEEK will be concluded tonight with a half-hour concert by the Irish Radio Orchestra. Earlier in the evening there is a pleasant concert of Tea Time Music given by this orchestra, under Lieutenant J. Doyle. At 8.5 Jim Larkin is going to tell us what he would do if he were Director of Broadcasting. Dublin will relay the running commentary of the Rugby International, Wales v. Scotland, at 2.50. A Saturday night feature of Dublin is the Newcomers' Hour, and it is really worth while for listeners to tune in, even if it is only from the curiosity angle.

There appears to be little else but musical programmes from all the British stations. For the more serious listener his best programmes are to be found in the London Regional at 8 o'clock, or Midland at 7.30, but others should listen to "Music Hall," where, by looking at the list of artistes, one is able to see that an enjoyable hour can be spent. Continental programmes to-night do not offer anything very outstanding, except for Puccini's three-act opera, "The Girl of the Golden West."

NORTHERN IRELAND: Coleridge Taylor Concert, 9.5.

FREE STATE listening to-day comes from three outside sources. Firstly, there is the relay of the running commentary of the Interprovincial Football Final at Carrick-on-Shannon: Connaught v. Ulster. Secondly, the relay from the University College, Galway; and, lastly, a concert relayed from the Opera Hall at Woodbrook. As can be seen below, the programme is varied and entertaining, and many listeners will be glad of the opportunity of hearing Renee Flynn (soprano).

Adrian Boult to-day conducts the fourteenth Sunday Orchestral Concert from London Regional at 6.30. The orchestra are playing works of Dvorák, Haydn and Bliss. A rather interesting feature of B.B.C. National is "Lepanto," a ballad, by G. K. Chesterton, of the great sea battle of 1571, in which Don John of Austria defeated the Turkish Fleet. This broadcast, having been arranged by Val Gielgud, is sure to be successful. This week all British programmes are completely devoid of organ recitals. From the Continent there is "Carmen," from Strasbourg, at 8.10, and, perhaps, a lesser-known opera of Bellini's, "The Puritans." This opera was written just over one hundred years ago. The chief part in the opera, in a musical if not in a dramatic sense, belongs to the tenor. Few tenors since the time of Rubini, for whom it was written, have had voices sufficiently high to be able to sing it from beginning to end in the original keys.

THE POPE'S BROADCAST

Radio Athlone has arranged with the Vatican Broadcasting Station to relay the Pope's blessing to the Eucharistic Congress, now being held at Manila, in the Philippines. The Pope's voice will be heard at 1 o'clock, and the usual translation in English will follow.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

THE BOOK OF THE FILM

FIRST AID FOR "FANS"

HISTORY AND CLASSICS

THE other day the window of a Dublin bookshop contained a display of "The Book of the Film," which interested me greatly. The film was "Under Two Flags," at the time being shown in a Dublin cinema, and the book was, of course, Ouida's most popular work. Forty or fifty years ago Ouida's novel fascinated the fathers and grandfathers of the generations now thrilling in the cinemas to the acting of Ronald Colman and Claudette Colbert. It then set the fashion in Foreign Legion books, which has persisted, more or less, to this day. For a time, it is true, the doings of the French Foreign Legion were eclipsed by the more gigantic campaigning of the World War; but since "Beau Geste" took the new generation back to the scenes of Ouida's "Under Two Flags," the Legion has been assured of the unswerving loyalty of the young.

No Red Indians

Time was when Fennimore Cooper competed with G. A. Henty and Captain Mayne Reid for the allegiance of youth. Nowadays "The Last of the Mohicans" reposes dustily with "The Lion of St. Mark's" on the shelves of the second-hand book shops in provincial towns. The Red Indian is no longer romantic: he is now a sleek, well-fed gentleman, taking his leisured ease on a Government reservation, what time his squaw studies the fashion columns of the latest Sunday edition from Chicago or New York. Was it "The Covered Wagon" that sent the Red man careering on his mustang from the screen? Or was it the cowboy antics of Tom Mix and Tony? Whoever, or whatever, it was, the trick was done: done so thoroughly that even a "clean film" mood in Hollywood fails to bring the Red Indian back again. When youth nowadays talks about "romance" it may be discovered that the glamour hangs about the gangsters and "tough guys" of America's criminal belt. If crime did not pay in the real world it certainly paid on the screen; so that while the real Al Capone languished in jail his impersonators on the screen drew Presidential salaries. Such is the irony of fate; an irony that would have inspired the pen of an Anatole France, a George Meredith, or a Joseph Conrad. "The Way of a Transgressor" may be hard, but it has its compensations in book and film royalties.

Literature and the Screen

Which brings me back to the subject of the relation of books to the cinema. The generations which were mildly shocked by Ouida were loyal to Dickens and Thackeray—if they occasionally had a debauch in the works of Marie Corelli. I wonder what they would think and say if they discovered "Oliver Twist" and "A Tale of Two Cities," "David Copperfield" and "Vanity Fair" announced in all sincerity as being "the books of the films." Possibly they would have prescribed a strong dose of Lord Lytton if the case were very bad, and a study of "Little Lord Fauntelroy" in a mild case. But, in all seriousness, is not there something radically wrong with people who do not read books unless they are advertised as being "the books of the films?" It suggests that the late Andrew Carnegie's princely benefactions in the way of public libraries have not been so efficacious as they might have been; or that the millions of pounds annually expended upon popular education in these two islands for the past fifty years have been largely wasted. It is a sad thought—a thought I have no desire to harbour; but it will persist in intruding whenever I am forced to contemplate a book that is a literary masterpiece, a classic in its language, masquerading as the cheap scenario of a film. The lesser offence, but still a great offence, is that committed by the film magnates when they say that a Dickens or Thackeray masterpiece is the work of some Mr. Blank, the gentleman who converted it into a "screen play."

First-aid Needed

Now that Hollywood has gone all historical we may expect the worst. Historical accuracy must not be expected—it might spoil the dramatic texture of the story. And since Hollywood and Elstree have found history the novelists, particularly the women novelists, have found it also. A little while ago only Marjorie Bowen specialised in historical novels; to-day the film magnates can pick and choose from dozens of writers, and probably from hundreds of novels. Every picture tells a story! Not, however, the story as the historians know it and wrangle about it. Not even the story as the schoolboy knows it. The story offered is that in which Bergner and Dietrich and Garbo and Hepburn can be best presented. When historians snorted about distortion by the Whigs they had a case: what would they say to distortion by the scenarists and the producers? Obviously some assistance is needed to enable the average cinema patron to rectify the distortions of these people. There is a pressing need for another kind of "book of the film"; a series of short brochures written quickly, but in a scholarly, yet readable, style, and with the most scrupulous regard for historical accuracy. This is work for the History Association in Great Britain and for some public-spirited folk in Ireland. It is work that needs to be done if the history-teaching of the schools is not to be obliterated by the glamourous distortions of the film. When it has been done, and is being regularly done, I shall look into the bookshop windows, eagerly seeking "the book of the film."

Inside Abyssinia

Eye-witness in Abyssinia. By Herbert Matthews. London: Seeker and Warburg. 12/6 net.

MR. HERBERT MATTHEWS was one of the few journalists who stayed with the invading Italian Army throughout the duration of the Abyssinian campaign. The others abandoned the whole assignment either because their health had been broken by the heat, or because they could no longer stand being cooped up in Eritrea while important battles were being waged in the heart of the country. It seems that the Italians made very inadequate provision for the despatch of news, so that when, if ever, the journalists were allowed to see what was going on, they then were faced with the almost impossible task of getting the story to their papers. Towards the end of the campaign, however, the journalists were invited personally by Badoglio to the scene of the major engagements, and thus did Mr. Matthews receive the reward for his patience.

His book is absorbing—quite absorbing. He has the American journalist's capacity to take in everything, even the things which he is not supposed to see; and he is not afraid to record his experiences in the most elaborate detail. He is pro-Italian, and his reasons for being pro-Italian will be an eye-opener to supporters of the Negus.

Reminiscences of a Great Zoologist

The Autobiography of Sir Chalmers Mitchell

My Fill of Days. By Sir Peter Chalmers Mitchell. London: Faber and Faber. 15/- net.

THE reminiscences of a great man generally make fascinating reading, but when the man has been for thirty-two years Secretary of one of the greatest Zoological Societies in the world—the London Zoo—it becomes of added interest. As a Dunfermline Scot, he exhibits in these pages the tenacious will to succeed of his race, and all through his life of some seventy-three years to date we find him taking the "ups" and the "downs" with dour equanimity. True, he does not under-estimate his own abilities; but what autobiographer can tell the whole truth except he reveals the part he has played in producing results as they stand?

Biologist

His early bent in life was scientific, and this leaning eventually developed towards biology. In its pursuit he read and studied assiduously. He became university lecturer, technical education organiser and administrator, and the whole course of his studies and experiences fittingly culminated in his appointment as Secretary to the London Zoo. It is in this section of his book that he really grips the reader with his lucid expositions and reasonings on the lives and habits of nature's children. That close observation, which is the major make-up of the scientist, helped him to overthrow many fallacious theories regarding the habits and instincts of many animals. He tells us that climate does not necessarily demand that certain animals should live in that climate. The monkey, for instance, is not of necessity a dweller of tropical steaming heat, as it is also to be found in temperatures below freezing point. Hence the thick fur coat of the monkey to enable it to endure the cold. This is but one example of many to be found in the animal kingdom.

Study of Mankind

Of men, too, he has many shrewd things to say, and he gives some fine analyses of Northcliffe, Wickham Steed, Lloyd George and W. T. Stead.

He tells the following about the wizard from Wales: Wickham Steed and Chalmers were brought to Downing street by Lord Northcliffe, the Director of Propaganda, to lay a draft of proposed peace terms to be submitted to Germany, and here are the salient words as used by Lloyd George on that occasion:—

"I can't have anything to do with this. The Germans are going to surrender. I am a lawyer, and can tell you that possession is nine points of the law. We shall have them in the hollow of our hands." Eventually Lloyd George agreed to accept them, provided his colleagues would acquiesce. Acquiescence was eventually forthcoming from the whole Cabinet. The then Prime Minister must now look at the hollow of his hands and wonder if he had closed his fingers together so as not to let the Germans slip through them.

Lord Northcliffe

Chalmers-Mitchell was closely connected in business with Lord Northcliffe, and gives a fine summing-up of the great man's character:

"He had imagination and the swiftest power of decision. In matters of money he liked being rich, partly because wealth gave him the power of doing what he wished to do, and partly because money represented the stakes for which his game of life was played, and to win money meant that he was winning the game. In politics, national or international, he was an idealist, and I know that the stories as to his having coveted Government office for himself are untrue. That he was often wrong in his judgments, that he made many mistakes, and that he came to over-estimate his own importance—no doubt but these are all valid accusations. But what of it? Which of us, gaining wealth and power by foresight and determination, surrounded by advisers whom he could make or break, flattered and obeyed by high officers of State so long as they could use him or fear him, is going to preserve a balanced integrity of mind?"

Famous Men

But there is a legion of other famous men who flit across the pages of Chalmers Mitchell's book. King George V., the Kaiser, Henley, etc., all have interesting vignettes in its pages.

It would be difficult to chronicle the various activities of the author's life, but it may be recorded that his latest exploit has been to play the "Scarlet Pimpernel" to refugees from Malaga, now one of the focal points of interest in the Spanish civil war.

This is a well-written book, if at times a bit confusing owing to the admitted overlapping of the dated sections. As a biography it ranks high, not only on account of the personality of the author, but of the international celebrities with whom he has come in contact.

All About Fishes

A History of Fishes. J. R. Norman. Ernest Benn, Ltd. 15/- net.

ANGLERS and naturalists will welcome this new book, which is, in all essentials, a reprint of the 1931 edition at about half the price of the previous edition. Mr. Norman, in his work at the British Museum, has a large quantity of material at his disposal, and in this book he has made as much use of it as possible.

The arrangement of the book is superb. There are chapters dealing with the various organs of the fish, their classification and physiology, all of which show that the author has made a close study of the best method of presentation for layman and expert alike. Although a fish may be unknown to you, Colonel Tenison's excellent illustrations immediately depict the points the author wishes to emphasise. The chapters on the relationship between fishes and man give a summary of the use of fishes to mankind, and of a large variety of methods of fishing. Here the author has condensed his subject in a masterly fashion. Myths and legends, dealt with in the last chapter, are explained as far as possible by the author.

This book has brought under one cover a vast amount of information only to be found in scientific journals in many languages, and is, therefore, inaccessible to the general public. For this reason alone the author is to be congratulated on his successful treatment of one of the most difficult subjects in Zoology, and one feels sure that it will be a standard book of reference for the expert for many years to come.

New Novels

Child of Light. Mrs. J. L. Garvin. Jonathan Cape. 7/6 net.

THIS is one of those novels which demand from the reader a sympathy with religious fervour for success. The heroine of the story is the daughter of a bohemian pianist, and is denied a great many of the ordinary pleasures of childhood. She is, in consequence, a prey to emotional disturbances, and, as she has a religious background, religion plays an important rôle in her life. Part of the scene is laid in London and part in the South of France. There are a number of curious and unusual characters in the book, but Mariella never seems to come alive, and the other figures, for all their strangeness, remain similarly inanimate.

The Fire and the Fiddle. By Wynyard Browne. Conden-Sanderson. 7/6 net.

This is a book which might cause a lot of people to exhaust their supplies of superlatives. Even a hardened reviewer must admit that here is something new and fresh. Although the argument is an old one, dating, one would imagine, to Charles Morgan's "Portrait in a Mirror," the treatment is fresh and stimulating.

One feels that the writer of this book is a man with a future, and he has undoubtedly brought a fire of satire to bear on the present story, which will, if it does not bring him fame, at least bring him a great deal of attention. Every serious student of the modern novel should read this book.

The Moon's Our Home. By Faith Baldwin. Sampson Low. 7/6 net.

MISS BALDWIN'S latest lighter-than-air novel deals with the emotional entanglements of one Cherry Chester, a film-star who falls in with a famous explorer bearing the storied name of Smith, Samuel Smith. As both celebrities are incognito and unknown to each other the most unsophisticated reader will be prepared for the complications which logically follow. Here is a set-up which will put no strain on the intellect of even the tiredest businessman—nor any other intellect for that matter. The tone of the novel is set by the original misunderstanding, and with the aid of a mutually unsuspicious marriage a jocund battle of scent bottles and similar guileless incidents a good time is had by all.

Ancient and Fishlike. By Francis Boon. Long. 7/6 net.

Mr. Boon's story is excellent entertainment of a light type. It centres round the efforts of a Low Church party, headed by an objectionable churchwarden, in a respectable English watering-place, to oust the High Church incumbent, and contains a multiplicity of queer and varied characters, all of whom play their parts in a complicated plot. There is abundance of quite clever satire.

Eve's Doctor. By Signe Toksvig. London: Faber and Faber. 7/6 net.

A FOREIGNER looks at Dublin and finds more there than many a Dubliner would suspect; in this excellent novel we are shown the medical world which exists behind the facade of the city's hospitals, a world unfamiliar to most of us, and one which provides excellent fiction material. Surgeons, doctors, students, nurses and patients provide the cast for this quiet book, in which the highlights are a successful operation or an emergency call; the bare, hygienic wards and corridors of a large maternity hospital provide the background, and in the triangle of doctor, wife and patient we have all the drama we need.

Miss Toksvig has an excellent prose style, a deep insight into the Irish character, and, apparently, an equally intimate knowledge of medicine. Quiet and restrained though "Eve's Doctor" is, it holds the attention of the reader to the last page, leaving him there with a problem to solve for himself. A really good novel.

Not With Me. Majorie Deans. Gollancz. 7/6 net.

THIS is a first novel both of achievement and promise. It describes a family of quite ordinary interest, consisting of the Vicar of Little Gadding, his wife, their son, aged sixteen, and their three grown-up daughters. The Farmitoes are delightfully characterised, with sympathy, humour and skill. Miss Deans has quite exceptional ability in that elusive matter of making ordinary people seem very much alive and eye, and a power of translating what she has herself seen into vivid pen pictures. A interesting. She has also a keen, observant portion of the book is devoted to the description of a momentous trip to Italy which the vicar makes, and Miss Deans, quite evidently making use of her own impressions on such a tour, provides us with a wealth of memorable and fresh pictures, which in the hands of most novelists would be flat and unprofitable. The story turns on the effect which the vicar's personal problem has upon each individual member of his family, and it is worked out with imagination and skill.

The Blue Bed. By Glyn Jones. Cape. 7/6 net.

This, "Blue Bed," is a collection of short stories or sketches, or childhood memories or memories of dreams. It is suffused with an extraordinary atmosphere of sensuousness, of unreality, of mystery, and, at times, of bitter tragic-comedy. The stories are all about the Welsh mining valleys; sometimes they picture the misery of these valleys in straightforward fashion; sometimes the valleys, the real valleys, are barely perceptible. Perhaps, we could give a better impression by quoting. A child is imprisoned for a moment by a carthorse. "I was small and I was frightened of him; afraid of the great shaggy hoof-cones, sloped close to my feet, and the massive weight of his hot body; afraid of the barrage of his energy seeming to envelop me, to be collapsing about my head, with terrible strength and power." Mr. Glyn Jones on more than one occasion, is extremely obscure, but he never fails to be stimulating.

These Foolish Things. By Michael Sadleir. Constable. 7/6 net.

MR. SADLEIR'S novel is romantic and sentimental, but it is moving romantic and convincing sentiment. Nicholas has said good bye to his beloved Sally in the rain at Cherbourg. She is going back to her child in America—against her will, but determined that it is the only way to preserve the perfection of her few weeks with Nicholas. As the liner heads out to sea in the rain Nicholas decides to write this book for Sally. It is an account of his own sentimental education from his first affaire up till the time he met her. He recalls his adolescent days with bitter humour, mocking at himself; his unfortunate meeting with Helen in Berlin, and even the more unfortunate contretemps with Danise in the countryside of France. Then come "the foolish things" which remind him of Sally, until in the end we are back at the docks in Cherbourg—in the rain. This is a novel which you may read at one sitting.

The Nine Days' Wonder. By Gwyn Jones. Gollancz. 8/6 net.

Mr. Jones's novel is frank melodrama, with Manchester as a background. There are two step-brothers: one is a successful motor car salesman, who indulges in some lucrative burglary as a side-line; and the other is a young man whose soul is filled with poetry. He does not publish many poems, but he is an impassioned poet all the same. Paul, the salesman, gets engaged to the imbecile and beautiful daughter of his boss, while Christopher goes to live with Sali Morel (née Wragg), a lady who obliges a more or less constant stream of commercial travellers. In the course of time Paul begins to sample the charms of Miss Morel, but Christopher, in a fit of jealousy and wild despair, suffocates her with a pillow. Paul is held for the murder. There is a trial; Paul is acquitted, only to be re-arrested on a charge of burglary, and Christopher kills himself by jumping under a train. The story hurries along relentlessly; it is profoundly exciting and is satisfactorily long.

The Prospects of Being Bombed

A Technical Work on Britain's Air Strategy

Air Strategy. By Lieut.-General N. N. Golovine (in collaboration with a technical expert). London: Gale and Polden. 7/6 net.

APPARENTLY in the next great war capital cities are not going to be bombed into dust so easily as the authors of numerous recent books and newspaper articles would have us believe. "Air Strategy" is a technical work, and, while one cannot read it with the same speed and immediate understanding as, say, Air Commodore Charlton's "War From the Air," which is a work of popular appeal, it is probably the most convincing book upon the aeronautical side of the next big war that we yet have read. There seems to have been altogether too ready an acceptance of the doctrines of the Italian General Giulo Douhet, which are gently criticised by General Golovine; but, in order that this review of "Air Strategy" should be written without prejudice, as it were, we immediately re-read "War From the Air," in which Douhet's doctrines are admirably summarised—and those doctrines did not seem anything like so convincing as they did a year or more ago.

There was no real air strategy in the European War. Aircraft was merely an adjunct to naval and military operations, except for the perpetual offensive by the fighting 'planes of the Royal Flying Corps and (subsequently) the Royal Air Force, which involved a wastage of men and material out of all proportion to the military and moral value of its success. Douhet was the first officer to make an important attempt to formulate an air doctrine. It was outlined in a work entitled "Air Supremacy," published in 1921. His policy since has been elaborated in other books and articles for the Press. Reduced to the fewest and most simple words, the Douhet doctrine is this:—

> The next war will be won by the country which most speedily and most completely bombs the resistance out of the civilian population of the enemy. Armies and navies will occupy merely defensive rôles. No aircraft can be spared for naval and military co-operation. It is a waste of time building fighting 'planes, for they cannot stop fleets of bombers from carrying out their work of destruction. Therefore, build bombers, and as many as the country can afford.

Destruction of Moral

Those who have made a study of Douhet's writings may protest that this summary is crude and capable of a great deal of moderation, but not, we think, without considerable expansion. The big point in the Italian general's plan is a "universal" machine, and that machine would be primarily for the destruction of the enemy's moral behind the lines. His doctrine has been widely accepted by military experts, more or less in the form in which is stated above. In "Modern War and Defence Reconstruction" we find Captain J. R. Kennedy, editor of the Army, Navy and Air Force Gazette, describing the light bomber as "the basic weapon of our tactical structure," and while he considers that concentration upon one form of attack would be a mistake, the bomber is, nevertheless, the "knock-out blow, to which all other activity must be subordinated and to which it all must lead."

General Nolovine's "Air Strategy" is notable for the fact that it, first of all, decries the idea that cities cannot be effectively defended against raiding aircraft; that it relegates the bomber to a second place in the air organisation of the British Empire, and that, instead of a universal machine, it envisages sixteen types of aircraft, exclusive of heavy bombers and training machines, in a peace-time Royal Air Force organisation. Heavy bombers, it is considered, would not be required in the early stages of war, though their utility "for large-scale strategic missions of a retaliatory kind, especially during the final stages of a major conflict," are not denied. They would not be put into mass production, however, until "industrial mobilisation" was decreed.

British Aircraft

Britain's first-line aircraft on a peace-time basis should number 2,500, which would include machines for army co-operation, ground "straffers," communications, transport, the Fleet Air Arm, Metropolitan defence and "mobile" defence. The most numerous type of machine would be the "destroyer," a two-seater low wing monoplane armed with a "cannon," four fixed and four machine-guns on swivelling mounting. Its principal object would be to attack and force down enemy aircraft as far distant as possible from the boundaries of the area to be protected against bomb raids.

The destroyers would constitute London's first line of defence, fighting as far away as Lille and Mons. The actual Metropolitan Defence Force would consist principally of light single seater fighters. Altogether there would be 304 aircraft engaged in the immediate defence of the capital, as well as numerous anti-aircraft batteries and other ground forces, together with an elaborate use of balloon aprons extending up to 8,000 feet. It thus would be rather difficult for a big bombing formation to get to London, and, if they got there, they would be relentlessly harried on their way home.

Defences of London

It is calculated that the number of bombers required to destroy London totally would be 6,500. To that number of craft fighters and other escorts would have to be added. "These figures," writes General Golovine, "make plain that, under present conditions, a total and simultaneous aerial gassing of a capital city is impossible." Retaliatory raids against cities would, to a certain extent, form part of the work of the air force; but the principal objects of bombing machines would be enemy aerodromes and factories. Nevertheless, it is admitted that in any war against Britain the bombing of London would be a very good thing, and the elaborate scheme of defence outlined in "Air Strategy" concerns itself almost entirely with London. The rest of the country will have to take care of itself. Liverpool, Birmingham and Leeds, however, may find satisfaction in the reflection that, notwithstanding the services of the best aircraft of Italy, Germany and Russia, bombing 'planes have done nothing outstanding in the Spanish war except at Madrid, and there they have been operating from a 'drome a few miles from their objective.

Oxford in the Arctic

A Serious Adventure

Arctic Journeys. By Edward Shackleton. London: Hodder and Stoughton. 21/- net.

IN 1934 the Oxford University Ellesmere Land Expedition set out to explore Northern Greenland and points farther North. In the expedition were two experienced Arctic explorers, but the average age of the other four members was twenty-three years. Yet this was no mere joy-ride in search of adventure. The expedition was a serious one, and was backed and advised by such distinguished bodies as the Canadian Government, the British Admiralty, the British Air Ministry, and the British Museum. Each member of the party had his own job to perform. Some were geologists, others botanists, others ornithologists; and all did their work with extreme thoroughness.

An Uncomfortable Winter

Their adventure began badly. They attempted to penetrate the Polar Pack, but on the advice of the captain of the sealer Signalhorn they abandoned this endeavour before damage was done to the ship. As a result, they were forced to winter in Etah, a bleak and windswept cove. Here they built a hut large enough to accommodate them all for the winter, and in the ensuing dark months they made their preparations for the spring journeys of exploration. When the sun reappeared three sledge parties set out, consisting of two white men and three or four Eskimos; and the stories of these three journeys forms the main body of this long book.

Building an Igloo

Mr. Shackleton writes with an entire lack of heroics and of literary frills. The seriousness of the expedition seems to have impressed itself strongly upon him, and it is seldom that he permits himself to indulge in humour. We learn little of the characters of the other five adventurers, or of their reactions to the hardships and terrors to which they were subjected. On the other hand, there is a large amount of unexpected information about the behaviour of dog teams, about the building of an igloo, and about the thousand and one domestic difficulties of life in the Arctic. We learn that icebergs yield fresh water, and that it is unwise to lick them. Your tongue immediately will be frozen to the ice. On this kind of subject Mr. Shackleton is the proverbial mine of information, and if the more serious side of his book fails to hold the attention of the ordinary reader, at least the ordinary reader will learn many things about the Arctic which he never knew before.

Policing Australia

Man Tracks. By Ion L. Idriess. London: Cape. 7/6.

THIS book is interesting on several counts. In the first place, it concerns a large portion of Australia with which the outside world has little enough to do, and, secondly, it describes an aspect of police work which is just as wonderful as the marvels one hears of the desert trackers of the Sudan. That portion of Australian which is dealt with herein embraces nearly all Central Australia, the Northern Territories, Arnhem Land, etc., and that huge, lonely stretch of coast which reaches from Perth to Darwin and then goes right on to the Gulf of Carpentaria. Much of this land is wild inhospitable desert where the great peril is lack of water rather than an aboriginal spear, and the swift effacing sands and elements are powerful abettors of the evil-doer. The police and native trackers who must deal with problems of law and order in this vast portion of the Never Never must continually solve difficulties far above the capabilities of the white man with his civilisation-dulled senses. It is then that the black tracker, with his superhuman alertness and powers of observation, is called in and the erring person, be he white or aboriginal, is sooner or later called to account.

Mr. Idriess, who has had unique experience of this country from both the white man's point of view and the native's—for he lived with an aboriginal tribe for years—has collected a number of stories which tell of hunter and hunted under these conditions. The methods which they reveal are astounding, and the reader will enjoy an entirely novel aspect of life in the great empty wastes of Australia.

Lure of the Legion

The Son of Allah. By Ex-Legionnaire 1384. London: Rich and Cowan. 8/6.

Dead March in the Desert. By W. B. Bannerman. London: Sampson Low. 12/6 net.

THE lure and interest of the French Foreign Legion appears to be unending, and this is hardly surprising, in view of the consistently high level attained by such books as the above. In "The Son of Allah" we have all the ingredients which have made "The White Tuareg" and its fellows so amazingly interesting. Operator 1384, his bosom friend, McCann, the dare-devil, love-making, wine-loving American, and the chivalrous Captain Ducane now find themselves embroiled in a very serious adventure.

A Jihad is being preached by a prophet who calls himself the "Son of Allah," and who united to his very real gifts of personality a real genius for organisation and gun-running. The task of tracing and bringing to justice this evasive person falls to the above three, and they become alternately hunters and hunted in a series of most exciting adventures. The story never flags in its rapid course of adventure, savage brutality and ruthlessness. "Dead March in the Desert" is as grim a tale of cruelty as can ever have been written about the North African deserts. The hero joins the Foreign Legion in order to avenge the desertion of his mother by a man who wronged her grievously. He finds his man, but the sequel is as sad as it is unexpected. The book tells of dreadful things, and contains descriptions of human degradation and stark panic in the face of terrible dangers that are harrowing in the extreme.

MACMILLAN

World's Greatest Airman

My Flying Life. By Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith. London: Melrose. 16/- net.

IN 1927 Kingsford-Smith, Charles Ulm, and Keith Anderson planned the first trans-Pacific flight. All were first-class airmen, but they had failed to make progress. They wanted fame, money, and status, and the accomplishment of a record flight seemed the best way to achieve all three. In "My Flying Life" Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith tells the story of his ambition and its partial realisation. He won fame and status all right and a big number of money prizes came his way, but he never seemed to be in a satisfactory financial condition, the companies in which he invested his money having more than a share of bad luck, so that very often this Air Commodore and Knight was earning his living by giving joy rides in Australia and New Zealand. The three men who planned the first Pacific flight now are dead, all the victims of air crashes. The visit to this country of Kingsford-Smith, and his historic take-off from Portmarnock Strand on the first really successful East to West flight of the Atlantic, long will be remembered. Kingsford-Smith had the most pleasant recollections of his Irish visit, and he expresses his appreciation of our hospitality in his autobiography. He did not agree that he was entitled to be described as the "world's greatest airman," holding that there were so many branches of flying that no one had a claim to be called the greatest. Nevertheless, after reading this book and its story of the numerous records held by Sir Charles, one wonders what airman really was greater. He had a flying life full of romance, adventure and danger, and it makes very good reading.

An Invaluable Reference Book

WHAT Ireland would be without Thom's "Directory" is difficult to imagine. Its bright red covers are now probably the most familiar, as they should be the most conspicuous, objects upon the desk of every Irish business man, or on the reference shelf of everyone whose contacts with the life of the country are close and continuous. The volume is, in fact, absolutely indispensable for every such person, as within its covers will be found such a rich lode of information upon all matters appertaining to Ireland that the prospector for knowledge will rarely have to travel farther. In over 2,600 closely printed pages everything that apparently could be needed in office or study has been included. Information about the Executive Council and the Dail, about the taxation and its expenditure, about the personalities in the public life of Ireland and Great Britain, about Irish industries and industrialists, the professions and learned bodies, will all be found readily by the aid of clear arrangement and an excellent index. Such important matters as lists of Customs duties will be found fully treated; and the fine "Dublin Annals" places a concise history of the city immediately at the disposal of the seeker after facts and dates. The statistics are full and well-arranged; the Commercial Directory of the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland includes all manner of trades and businesses; and the Dublin Street Directory is adequate for all demands. The printers and publishers may be heartily congratulated upon the production of such a work, which reflects upon them as much credit as it imposes upon its user a debt of gratitude.

Shot Guns

The Shot Gun (The Sportsman's Library). By T. D. Purdey and Captain J. A. Purdey. London: Philip Allan. 5/- net.

THIS is a welcome and valuable addition to the "Sportsman's Library" series. The authors will be recognised as members of the well-known firm of gun-makers bearing their name. They have set down in plain language, remarkably free from technicalities, everything that is worth knowing about the different kinds and makes of shot guns, their care at all times, and the correct methods of handling and use in the field. Cartridges and the various qualities and makes of powder are discussed briefly, and an interesting chapter on shot contains a description of the whole process of manufacture from start to finish of chilled and soft shot, and the merits and suitability of the respective sizes are commented upon. The advantage of the shooting school for beginners is discussed, and practical advice is offered on the various types of shooting, including grouse, partridge, pheasant, rough and clay-bird shooting. On the subject of the etiquette of shooting the authors have drawn up a set of rules, which they rightly suggest should be read and well digested by all shooters.

Women in Russia

The Position of Women in the U.S.S.R. By G. N. Serebrennikov. London: Gollancz. 7/6 net.

THIS heavily documented record of the social and material position of Russian women presents a picture of constant struggle against the ignorance and illiteracy which have made progress in all countries so very sluggish, but more, perhaps, in Russia than anywhere else. This ignorance and this illiteracy would seem to be gradually giving way before the new army of Soviet women armed with test-tube or hammer who are challenging their men comrades in every branch of industry and culture.

This is no book to while away the long winter evenings, but will interest those who concern themselves with the emancipation of woman, and grow hot in arguing whether or not the woman's place is in the home. M. Serebrennikov has included a number of statistics which repay close examination.

Man and Universe

The Third Morality. By Gerald Heard. London: Cassell. 10/6 net.

THIS effort to find a place for man in the modern universe makes most interesting reading. Raising as it does all the questions of morality, religion and conduct, it cannot but help us in our search for an adequate attitude to the world surrounding us, and for a morality which will fit the changed conditions of life. Man moves quicker than the rules which govern him, and when he finds himself far ahead of the criteria by which he is judged it is time that those criteria conformed. Mr. Heard endeavours to suggest what direction this conformation will take, and to help us in finding a remedy, since a remedy must be found, for the ills of our century and our generation.

Four Years

We publish elsewhere to-day an analysis of the Trade and Shipping Statistics for 1935, compiled by the Department of Industry and Commerce, and obtainable through any bookseller for the modest sum of half-a-crown. We have had the pleasant duty on other occasions to compliment Mr. Stanley Lyon and the staff of the Statistical Bureau upon the methods of compilation and presentation of these important reports, and we feel that anyone who studies this excellent digest will support our tribute. At this time of day it should not be necessary to stress the importance of accurate statistical information for all who have the duty to control or direct the opinion, the policy, or the economy of this State. We are not sure, however, that those who have the directing and controlling power in their hands always have the essential information in their heads or the statistical reference books on their desks. There is no excuse for such laxity; the reference books, official and otherwise, are cheap, the information is vividly presented, and a very good lead is offered in the interpretation of the figures. There are now few States in the world with such a comprehensive service of official statistics at the disposal of its people, and yet there is probably no other State to-day in which less use is made of that service. The most fantastic statements are accepted as facts if they be luridly coloured, and baseless assertions may be permitted to pass if they be uttered by persons who ought to have accurate knowledge and are presumed to have such knowledge. Almost every aspect and phase of the social and economic life of the nation is now surveyed in the published statistics, from the income and expenditure of the community as a whole to the production, distribution and consumption of all the commodities used by the people; and the bulk of this information is issued annually in an "abstract" which is nothing less than a bird's eye view of the community as it exists and changes from year to year. These statistics are the guides upon which statecraft must depend, the indices from which industrialists and business men will plan their schemes, the quarries from which reformers will dig their dialectical material, the beginning of what will be known more and more as the planned economy.

The volume of Trade and Shipping Statistics for 1935 is especially valuable because it presents in the most vivid form a record of the Fianna Fáil Government's economic achievements since it came into power in 1932. From an examination of the figures it is possible to understand what has been happening to the economy of the Free State; how that economy has been changed; what are the gains of Fianna Fáil's policy and what are the losses. If we look first at the total trade of the Free State it will be seen that when the de Valera Government came into power the total external trade of the Saorstát was valued at nearly 69 million pounds sterling, and that this had fallen to about 57¼ million pounds in 1935. It was still lower in 1934, so that there is a slight upward tendency in 1935 and 1936. During the four years imports declined in value by over 5 million pounds, and exports of domestic produce by about 5¼ millions, and the visible adverse trade balance, having risen to over 21 million pounds in 1934, fell again to about 17½ millions in 1935. It is a matter for congratulation that this adverse trade balance has declined, but it must be remembered that it is still perilously close to the total value of the exports of Free State products. It would be unfair to suggest that any sin of commission or omission of the Fianna Fáil Government was responsible wholly for this fact; but it is equally impossible to exonerate Mr. de Valera's policy from all blame. During the four years from 1932 to 1935 the total value of imports in all the countries of the world tended to rise, but in the Free State the value of imports fell by eight points. During the period world exports rose by four points, but the export trade of the Free State fell by twelve points. Viewing the total trade of the world one sees that while world trade rose in the period by four points the trade of the Saorstát actually declined by ten points. There is, obviously, something operative in the trade of the Free State that is not operative in world trade; that thing is Mr. de Valera's "economic war" and the policy of autarchy for which he has made himself responsible. The "sacrifices" for which he pleaded have been made compulsorily and the only visible statistical result is declining trade and a marked tendency to lag behind the rest of the world in economic recovery.

It cannot be expected that an official document will present the sins of the Government in their most grievous aspect, but this report states that there was "a steep fall both in volume and in prices as a result of the imposition of the British special duties." That statement is really too guileless to be accepted by anybody who realises that the duties were imposed for the recovery of sums which the British Government felt itself legally entitled to receive. The effect of this lamentable dispute has been to reduce the livestock exports from the Free State by 10 per cent. in four years, and to change the incidence of the trade in the national economy. At the same time the exports of food and drink have risen from 28 to 42 per cent. of the total domestic exports, and the exports of other manufactured goods have declined by nearly half. Peculiarly, the imports of manufactured food and drink fell by almost half, while the imports of other manufactured goods improved their relative position in the external trade scale by about 7½ per cent. In the four-year period under review many of the most important of old-time imports have been almost eliminated; such commodities as flour, bacon, boots and shoes, motor-cars, bicycles, sweets, butter, oat products, cheese, and knitwear are produced now almost wholly at home. As if in compensation for this change, and directly in consequence of the new conditions brought about by legislation, there are great increases in the imports of certain partly-finished and raw products. There are also large increases in the imports of machinery, which again indicate the changing nature of the economy of the Free State. It is interesting to note that while the trade in ready-made outer and inner garments undoubtedly has increased at home the imports of woven woollen and worsted tissues increased by nearly a million square yards since 1931, and simultaneously the exports of home-made tissues declined in value by about £25,000. This working survey of four years of autarchy brings to light many unsuspected points which it will be well to study carefully. In any economy which is based upon passion rather than reason the effects are apt to be disconcerting: the effects of the Fianna Fáil adventure into the passionate economics suggest that such modifications as the Coal-Cattle Pact are worth a whole sheaf of trade agreements with Cuba.

The Roosevelt Touch

When just three months ago President Roosevelt was elected for the second time to the White House with a record majority, doubts were expressed regarding his intentions in the matter of his "New Deal." On the one hand, Conservatives and even Liberals took the view that the President had learned a sorry lesson, and that he would modify his plans during his second term of office, while, on the other, the more progressively minded insisted that he had now had a direct mandate from the people to go "full steam ahead." Yesterday Mr. Roosevelt set all doubts at rest. It is quite certain now that he has not repented of his earlier actions; indeed, it looks as if he has determined to intensify his efforts in the direction of reforms. In a completely unexpected message to Congress the President has made an announcement which almost justifies the use of that much abused term "bombshell." He has decided to reorganise the Supreme Court of the United States. This august body, which probably is the finest judicial tribunal in the world, is the pride of every citizen. It consists of nine judges, whose integrity is beyond all dispute, and in a country where the law very often is brought into contempt, it enjoys a well-earned reputation for incorruptibility. During Mr. Roosevelt's last term of office he discovered that the Supreme Court was getting in the way of some of his pet plans for the "New Deal." It found on more than one occasion that his actions were unconstitutional, and blocked his legislation in the most effective way. The President and his friends were furious; but they did not dare to interfere with the Supreme Court in view of its great reputation in the United States, and to a certain extent at any rate the President was forced to admit defeat. Now he has taken a decision that is likely to raise a storm of discussion throughout the Union. He proposes to reorganise the entire judicial system of the United States, beginning with the Supreme Court itself. In the first place, he will increase the number of judges in the Supreme Court from nine to fifteen, thus putting an effective end to the judicial dictatorship of the "nine old men" as they have been dubbed. He also proposes to nominate an additional judge in the other Federal Courts in all cases in which the actual incumbent of the bench has reached the age of seventy years and six months without having either resigned or retired. Thus President Roosevelt hopes not only to "speed up" judicial decisions, but also to ensure that no court in the Union will be in a position to thwart his policy. He might have achieved the same end by a change in the Constitution; but even he is chary of interference with an instrument which in the eyes of every citizen of the United States is sacrosanct. The supporters of the "New Deal" will be delighted at this new move on the President's part; but the Conservatives and many Liberals will regard it as a deliberate attack on the highest institution in the country. Already the President is being accused of an attempt to "pack" the Supreme Court, which, incidentally, is just about to pass judgment upon the Wagner Labour Act. In the eyes of the traditionalists his action savours almost of treason, and many of his supporters will be nervous regarding its wisdom. In some respects the President's latest move is reminiscent of President de Valera's treatment of the Free State Senate. In both cases the object was identical: the Executive was determined to brook no opposition to its will. In the Saorstát the result has been plain for all to see; in the United States the effect is likely to be far-reaching.

Britain's Post Office

Major Tryon, the British Postmaster-General, might be forgiven a lapse from the staid deportment which we are apt to associate with ministerial demeanour if he danced a dance of glee the night before last. On that evening the commercial accounts of his department covering the financial year ended March 31st last were issued for public perusal. They showed that the service, as a whole, had a turnover of £900,778,000 during the twelve-month, and that there was a marked all-round growth of Post Office business in the period under review. Major Tryon's glee will be shared to a great extent by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer; for the accounts provided a surplus of more than twelve and a half million pounds sterling—the largest net surplus on record, and more than half a million pounds in excess of that for the previous year. Most illuminating in the accounts was a figure which showed that during the year there was an increase of 191,204 telephone subscribers, making the total in Britain 2,579,012, also the highest on record; while wireless receiving licences were, at £3,785,700, up by more than three hundred thousand pounds. Many factors contributed to this pleasurable condition of affairs. In the first place, there have been the dynamic energy and great vision of Major Tryon himself. These qualities, helped and aided by an advertising campaign that spoke to the length and breadth of the land, have told a happy tale. It is one that we in the Irish Free State might be proud to recount, even if in smaller measure, for ourselves, and it provides unassailable evidence that in Britain to-day a great wave of prosperity has swept over the land. More people are installing more and more telephones, buying wireless sets, sending letters, and using the Post Office Savings Bank than ever before. Up and down the country more people are earning more money and spending it for the benefit of others. Here is a fact that some of our cross-roads orators and political cranks, prone to foretell the downfall of our nearest and best neighbour, might ponder at their convenience.

The Lusitania

Early next April a huge steel figure will descend into the Atlantic some miles off Kinsale Head; and the Lusitania, after twenty-two years at the bottom of the sea, once again will feel a human being upon her decks. It is a dramatic adventure, one which began, properly, in the autumn of 1935, when Captain Henry Russell, of Glasgow, located the wreck by means of his echo-sounder apparatus. The sounder recorded an object 780 feet long and 84 feet high—and there was tense excitement aboard the salvage ship Ophir. Those were almost exactly the dimensions of the lost liner. Diver James Jarratt was chosen to confirm the find, and in wintry weather he sank down through the seas until at length he stood upon the very decks from which 1,198 people had been drowned those twenty-two years ago. Unluckily he could make no extensive examination of the great hulk below him; for in the rough seas he found it impossible to move about as he would have liked. The new expedition hopes for complete success in the calmer days of the spring; and to ensure that success it will bring with it an invention which was deemed impossible but a few years ago. The ordinary diving suit is limited to a maximum depth of 180 feet, so that it was necessary to use the all-metal type for the Lusitania. With the all-metal type the arms and legs are articulated so that the diver can move about at will; but it was discovered at 300 feet that the joints became immovable from friction under the colossal pressure of the water. A Mr. J. A. Peress began to seek a solution to this problem as early as 1913, but it was not until 1929 that he began to make any considerable headway. Now he has perfected the suit, and, curiously, he derived his inspiration from the human body. He has made a joint which is water tight, and yet is so delicate that a single coin can be picked up with the claws attached to the arms. In this modern armour the chosen diver will be able to penetrate to any part of the ship—and we only hope that he will be able to describe in some small way the astounding things that he must see.

NO "DAILY DOZEN" MUSIC

Intimation that the B.B.C. has no intention of providing broadcast music for the "morning dozen" was made by Mr. George Burnett, public relations officer of the B.B.C. in Scotland, to a reporter in Edinburgh yesterday. He was asked if the Corporation had considered a suggestion that it might radiate slow music for morning exercises, in conjunction with the Government's "Keep Fit" campaign. "We have had no appreciable demand for this by the public as yet," said Mr. Burnett. "America has stopped these broadcasts for some time past, and very few European countries carry on with music of that sort. It does not seem to find favour either in America or Europe, and that completely coincides with our experience.

LONDON LETTER

MR. EDEN'S HOLIDAY

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The intimation that Mr. Eden is to take a fortnight's rest in the South of France has been received with mixed feelings in the political world, where it is pointed out that Herr von Ribbentrop has just returned to London, presumably with instructions from his Government to put forward the question of the return of the former German Colonies. Lord Halifax is to take charge of the Foreign Office, and it is claimed in some directions that he is more sympathetic to Germany than is Mr. Eden, and, therefore, will be inclined to listen with sympathy to anything Herr von Ribbentrop may have to say. This point of view follows upon the rumour that Sir Eric Phipps, the British Ambassador in Berlin, has been transferred to Paris because his independent view of matters was not altogether pleasing to the Nazi rulers. On the other side a number of Conservatives are anxious that the Foreign Office shall not move in the Colonies matter at all, but that the Germans should be left to make their demand publicly so that every country interested may fully realise the situation. It is this section of Government opinion which would rather that Mr. Eden had postponed his holiday for a time. Mr. Eden on his way south, however, is to call on M. Blum and M. Delbos in Paris and discuss the matter with them.

St. Pancras Poll

The result of the North St. Pancras by-election with the Government holding the seat by a majority of only two hundred and sixty-eight votes is a real warning to the supporters of the National Government. It is estimated that the vote was one-half of what it could have been while the Labour poll was estimated at 75 per cent. of strength. In the circumstances it is considered that there were over seventeen thousand electors, who thought it was not worth while going to the poll. Mr. R. Grant Ferris was a remarkably good candidate, while the local organisation was regarded as most efficient. The Government can scarcely be blamed in this case for such a falling off of votes, but their supporters will need to take warning for the future. The London County Council elections will be held next month, and if the present apathy persists there will be another Socialist victory.

Indian Princes and the Duke of Windsor

Reports appearing in the newspapers to-day that the Duke of Windsor is likely to return to England in August to attend the Chapter of the Order of the Garter are premature if not incorrect. The Duke as a Knight of the Garter will certainly receive an invitation to the ceremony, but as these will not be sent out for some months yet it is, of course, unknown whether he will accept. Some of the ruling Princes of India have expressed anxiety about the financial position of the Duke, thinking that abdication has left him without resources. Suggestions have been conveyed to the authorities in India that the Princes would be willing and even eager to make provisions for the Duke as a token of affection. It is understood that the Princes have been assured that such a gesture, though appreciated, is unnecessary. At the same time there is a somewhat similar feeling here where many people would be very glad to hear that a substantial provision had been made for the Duke, particularly as it is realised that he has but small private means. There are difficulties with the Labour Party, however, and negotiations are taking place before the civil list bill is introduced.

South Africa and the Coronation Oath

The announcement from South Africa that the King will take an oath in respect of all the Dominions at the Coronation has aroused interest here, because it is known that the pro-British Party in the Union think that the divisibility of the Crown is over emphasised, while the Nationalist Party think that the divisibility is not sufficiently emphasised. The legal position as defined in the status of the Union Act, 1934, is that South Africa is one of the autonomous communities within the British Empire a sovereign and independent State. No Act of Parliament extends to the Union without the consent of its Parliament, and the Oath of Allegiance is taken as to the King of South Africa, not as King of Great Britain. The new status of the Dominions makes it apparent that a visit by the King as soon as possible after the Coronation has now become a real necessity.

Television Problems

The decision of the Government to eliminate for the present one of the methods of television transmission if not altogether welcomed is quite conceivably a good one, and it may speed up the development of the industry, all the receivers so far have had to be made in a form which will accept the two methods of transmission, and they have been very costly, the number sold being comparatively small. The pictures which they have been able to show have not been large, and the cost of service has been considerable, while it has been found impossible to sell the machines for less than one hundred pounds a piece. The decision will put the manufacturers into a new position as they will now know in what direction to concentrate their efforts. One problem to be overcome is to increase the size of the picture, and another to improve the programmes. It is not yet known how far the receiver production companies have progressed, but there are people of the opinion that with the Cathode Ray method of reception used by most of the manufacturers the size of pictures cannot be increased. This remains to be seen, however, and it is possible before long a big advance will be recorded.

Empire Air Service

The new Empire air programme will be inaugurated to-morrow, when the flying boat Castor leaves the marine base at Hythe, Southampton. This will be the first regular all-air flying boat service from England to India and Australia. The entire journey will be carried out by the same machine which will proceed to Sydney, with calls at the regular stopping places. The Castor has been well tested in actual service, having been operating in the Mediterranean for some weeks, and on the journey from Alexandria to Southampton, where it arrived yesterday, it carried ten passengers and over a ton of mails, making the journey of nearly two thousand five hundred miles in just over two days.

REORGANISING OF SUPREME COURT

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S BOLD PLAN

PRESERVING "NEW DEAL" LEGISLATION

TREATMENT OF CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTIONS

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in a surprise message to Congress yesterday, first revealed his sweeping new plans to reorganise the United States of America's Supreme Court, whose judgments have overturned much of his "new deal" legislation.

The President recommends increasing the "nine old men"—the present Supreme Court judges—to fifteen, and nominating an additional judge in other Federal Courts where the incumbent has reached the age of 70½ without retiring.

New methods of speeding up High Court decisions on constitutional questions are also envisaged.

The tentative draft of the bill, accompanying the message to Congress, listed four specific recommendations, which, he said, did not raise any issue of constitutional importance.

The average age of the judges of the U.S. Supreme Court is at present 71.2.

The oldest judge is Mr. Louis Dembitz Brandeis, who will be 81 next birthday, and the youngest is Mr. Owen J. Roberts, who is 61.

WIDESPREAD RELIEF

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

THE President's revolutionary plan has brought widespread relief that the long period of presidential hesitancy now is over, and that Congress can now choose either to enforce the new scheme, and win the New Deal's objectives by "packing the court," or else amend the Constitution.

Meanwhile many people here are stunned by the boldness of the plan, and the bluntness with which the President revealed his motives.

The "bombshell," which comes just three months after his re-election, is regarded as illustrating the President's genius for timing his actions. The Supreme Court is just about to pass judgment on the Wagner Labour Act, and few New Dealers think that the Act can survive the test.

Moreover, during the current epidemic of strikes some Labour leaders have expressed doubts about Roosevelt, fearing that he is becoming more Conservative, and that he cannot be counted on any further to fight Labour's battles. To-day's smashing announcement must end all doubts.

NEW JUDGES

The new plan would enable the President to appoint forthwith sufficient new judges to ensure the passage of any carefully drawn up New Deal bills. While it will delight New Deal supporters, the President's plan is bound to arouse a storm of recrimination from Conservatives throughout America. In the eyes of Conservatives any "tampering" with the Court verges on treason, and even Liberals consider such action very grave.

The President's four specific recommendations are:—

1—Power for the President to nominate an additional judge in any court when an incumbent has reached the age of seventy and has held office for ten years, and within six months after reaching seventy has neither retired nor resigned.

2—Power for the Supreme Court to appoint an administrative assistant or "proctor" to watch the lower court calendars and permit the Chief Justice to assign District or Circuit Judges temporarily to area where dockets are congested.

3—Provision that no decision, injunction, judgment or decree on any constitutional question be promulgated by any Federal Court without previous ample notice to the Attorney-General of the United States, and an opportunity for the United States to present evidence and be heard.

4—That when any inferior court determines a question of constitutionality there shall be a direct and immediate appeal to the Supreme Court, and such cases shall take precedence of all other matters pending in that court.

SPEEDING-UP JUSTICE

SCOPE OF THE PROPOSALS

In backing up his recommendations President Roosevelt pointed out that the need for legislative action arose because the personnel of the Federal Judiciary was insufficient to meet the business before them.

"Delay in any Court," he said, "results in injustices, and makes lawsuits a luxury only available to the few who can afford them, or have property interests sufficiently large to repay the cost."

The President cited figures showing that the Supreme Court, in exercising the right to refuse to hear appeals in many classes of cases in the last fiscal year had declined to hear 717 petitions out of 867 presented, and he asks whether full justice is achieved when a court is so overburdened with business that it is forced to decline, without even an explanation, to hear eighty-seven per cent. of the cases presented to it by private litigants.

AGED JUSTICES

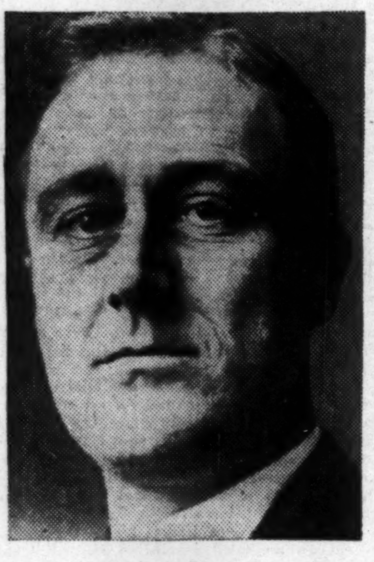
Referring to the matter of aged and infirm justices, President Roosevelt pointed out that there are altogether 237 life tenure judgeships, twenty-five of which are now held by judges who are over seventy.

The life-tenure of judges, assured by the Constitution, was designed to place the courts beyond temptations and influences, which might impair judgments. It was not intended to create a static Judiciary.

The proposals presented to Congress for increasing judgeships did not suggest that any form of compulsory retirement should be incumbent on judges. Indeed, those who reached the retirement age, but desired to continue judicial work, will be able to do so under less physical and mental strain.

"NEW DEAL" CASES

Referring to Court decisions in various 'New Deal" cases, President Roosevelt said that the welter of conflict decisions on the constitutionality of every form of important legislation brought the law, the courts, and, indeed, the entire administration of justice, dangerously near disrepute, while the processes of Government itself were completely brought to a stand still from time to time by injunctions issued almost automatically, sometimes without notice to the Government, and not infrequently in clear violation of the principle of equity.



PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

HOLDING UP ACTS

"It matters not," the President said, "that Congress has enacted a law, the Executive signed it, and the administrative machinery is waiting to function. No important statute can take effect against any individual or organisation with means to engage in far-flung legislation until it has passed through a whole hierarchy of courts. Thus the Judiciary, by postponing the effective date of acts of Congress, is assuming an additional function, and is coming more and more to constitute a scattered, loosely organised, and slowly operating third House of the National Legislature."

WALL STREET'S REACTION

RE-ENACTMENT OF NEW DEAL MEASURES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Friday.

While the Presidential "bombshell" plunged Congress into a furore of controversy the break on Wall street to-day reflected visions of a forthcoming re-enactment of drastic New Deal measures—earlier rendered invalid by the Supreme Court—and a renewed bold drive by the Administration towards planned economy under what it is held the Administration regards as a "mandate from the people."

So far there has been a marked reluctance in Wall street to comment on the situation. However, in the light of the outcome of the election the majority seems resigned to the belief that the Administration cannot be stopped.

With the passage of the Presidential proposal taken for granted a revival of the principles of the National Recovery Administration and Supreme Court confirmation of such important measures as the Utility Holding Company Act and the Wagner Labour Relations Act are considered as assured and as paving the way for the further extension of Government supervision of business.

While the immediate reaction of the market was bearish, some quarters believe that a sharp Government turn to the Left eventually might easily be accompanied by a marked revival of inflationary sentiment.

The King has consented to attend a luncheon of the Empire Parliamentary Association, in Westminster Hall on May 7, to meet the Prime Ministers and members of various Legislatures of the Empire, who will be in London for the Imperial Conference and for the Empire Parliamentary Conference.

CAPTURING A VILLAGE

FOUR IRISHMEN KILLED IN SPAIN

SEVEN REPORTED WOUNDED

FOUR more Irishmen have been killed and seven wounded while fighting with the Spanish Government forces, it was learned in Dublin yesterday. They were members of the Irish column serving under Mr. Frank Ryan on the Madrid front.

THE DEAD AND WOUNDED

The four killed are:—

Dan Boyle, Dublin.
Frank Conroy, Kildare.
James Meehan, Galway.
William Beattie, Belfast.

The wounded are Jerry Doran, Donal O'Reilly, Jack Nalty, Seamus Hillen, and Patrick Smith, all of Dublin; J. J. O'Beirne, Belturbet, Co. Cavan; and Patrick Murphy, London.

It is stated that the Irish Column suffered these losses when they were ordered to take a village held by a battery of insurgent artillery in the Guadarrama sector. The Irishmen rushed the village, capturing it after a fierce struggle.

A number of prisoners and five machine guns were taken and sent back to headquarters.

TOTAL CASUALTIES

The total casualties in the Irish Column now number five dead and thirteen wounded, it is stated.

Among the latest casualties are several well-known men. Mr. Donal O'Reilly, a son of J. K. O'Reilly, was one of the four young sons marched out by his father to take part in the 1916 Rising.

Mr. Jack Nalty is an ex-I.R.A. officer, and was interned during the civil war. He served two further periods of imprisonment under the late Government. Mr. Nalty is a well-known cross-country runner and athlete. A member of Dublin City Harriers, he represented Ireland on three occasions.

TRANSFERRED TO MADRID

In a letter received in Dublin yesterday, Mr. Frank Ryan states that, after playing a considerable part in the fighting on the Andalusian front, where they were the only non-Spanish section, the Irish column were transferred to Madrid, where they joined the International Brigade.

Mr. Ryan states that Jack Nalty was wounded in the chest by a burst of machine-gun fire. With a broken arm in addition, he walked three miles to the nearest dressing station.

"The moral of my boys is amazing," adds Mr. Ryan, "and no higher courage has ever been displayed by Irishmen.

"Mick May did great work one black day in Andalucia, covering off his comrades as they went back under shell and machine-gun fire. Frank Conroy, now dead, fought like a hero the same day.

"We buried Dinny Coady in Torrclodenes, his comrades, under Kit Conway, firing three volleys over his grave. A true man and a fine soldier. I have his cigarette case for his brother."

ARRIVALS FROM NEW YORK

It is learned that reinforcements have arrived from New York for the Irish column. They are members of Clan na Gael and other Irish-American organisations.

50 MILE FRONT IN ANDALUCIA

THE BATTLE FOR MALAGA

VALENCIA, Friday.

GOVERNMENT troops are fighting a series of actions along a fifty-mile front in Central Andalucia, from Pozo Blanco, north of Cordoba, to Arjonila, south of Andujar.

The insurgent lines of communications, the Government claim, are threatened, especially those leading to the Porcuna sector.

It is reported, but not yet officially confirmed, that the Government forces have captured the large villages of Montor and Villa Franco de Cordoba.

The civil population in the sector have been completely evacuated.

The insurgents appear to be fighting with small flying columns.

A Barcelona telegram says: According to reports from Malaga there has been very heavy fighting on all fronts to-day in the battle which began yesterday with the launch of an insurgent offensive on Malaga.

The Government claim that the advance has been checked, despite heavy reinforcements of the insurgents.

CATALONIA'S FUTURE

VALENCIA, Friday.

"Catalonia definitely is moving at the present moment towards closer collaboration with the Central (Valencia) Government."

This statement was made to-day by Señor Juan Comorera, Secretary of the Unified Socialist Party of Catalonia, in an interview with the Spanish Press Agency.

"The present objective," he added, "is to win the war. Agreement on this issue means an advanced democratic Republic in Catalonia, and for Spain, in general, such a Republic implies defence of the small and middle peasants so numerous in Catalonia. Their loyalty is assured by the resolution on the land question. The transfer of the lands of the Fascist owners to the needy peasants already is completed, and this is laying the major premise for a democratic Republic."

TO STOP VOLUNTEERS

OTTAWA, Friday.

A bill providing for penalties against Canadians seeking to join the military or naval forces in Spain is being drafted, it is revealed by the Department of Justice.

It is intended to introduce the measure in Parliament at an early date.

MR. BALDWIN AND THE PREMIERSHIP

"NOT GOING ON MUCH LONGER," SAYS M.P.

"I am afraid that we shall not have Mr. Stanley Baldwin for our Prime Minister for very much longer," said Mr. John Crowder, M.P. for Finchley, at an East Finchley Conservative Association meeting last night.

"He seems very well and cheerful, but I am told that he is determined that he is not going on for more than twelve months."

BOYLE MURDER CHARGE

DEATH SENTENCE QUASHED

RE-TRIAL ORDERED IN "UNIQUE CASE"

THE hearing was resumed, in the Court of Criminal Appeal yesterday, before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Hanna and Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, of an appeal by Thomas J. Kelly against his conviction and sentence of death on the charge of having murdered Patrick Henry, with whom he had lived at Boyle, Co. Roscommon. The appeal was on the ground that there were now available witnesses whose evidence was not available at the time of the trial, to prove that Henry was alive on September 12, 1935, when Kelly had left Boyle.

Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C., and Mr. R. S. Hogan (instructed by Mr. C. E. Callan) appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the Attorney-General.

One witness was examined by Mr. Brereton Barry, and cross-examined by Mr. Haugh, and another witness was examined by Mr. Maguire, and cross-examined by Mr. Brereton Barry.

At the conclusion of the evidence, Mr. Brereton Barry asked that the conviction be quashed.

Mr. Martin Maguire said that the Court must be satisfied about the bona fides of the appeal, and, next, that the new evidence was of such accuracy, reliability and truthfulness that the verdict of the jury ought to be set aside. If the Court was disposed to entertain the appeal it would be his duty to ask for a new trial. This was a very serious case. There had never been anything like it before, as far as the Court records showed.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that he believed that this was the first case in which that Court had been asked to give a new trial on the ground merely of new evidence being available

The Chief Justice said that it was unprecedented.

UNIQUE

Mr. Maguire said that the case was unique from every point of view.

The Chief Justice, announcing the decision of the Court, said that the case made by the prosecution at the trial was that Henry was seen going into the house in which Kelly had lived with him, between 7 and 8 p.m., on September 10th, 1935, and that that was the last occasion on which he was seen alive by any person other than Kelly. Kelly was seen leaving the house between 1 and 2 p.m. on September 11th, and he left Boyle by 'bus that evening. Five witnesses gave evidence on behalf of the accused man at the trial that they had seen, and one that he had spoken to, Henry, on September 12th, the day after Kelly left the district. As the jury had convicted, it must be inferred that no juror believed the evidence of any of those five witnesses. The accused man now asked that the conviction be quashed or that a new trial be ordered, so that he might submit to the jury the evidence of seven additional witnesses, who would say that they saw Henry alive on September 12th. That Court had thought it right to hear that evidence before determining the appeal. There were three courses open to the Court: it might refuse to reverse the conviction; it might reverse the conviction and direct that the accused man be discharged; or it might reverse the conviction and direct a re-trial.

"In the present case," the Chief Justice proceeded, "this Court is of opinion that in the interests of justice it should direct a re-trial, in order that the whole evidence should be submitted to a jury for their consideration. This Court expresses no opinion whatever as to the weight that this Court would attach to that evidence if this Court had to determine the guilt or innocence of the accused man, or as to the weight that the jury should attach to it when it is submitted for their consideration; that will be a matter entirely for them."

It was directed that Kelly be detained in custody pending the re-trial.

IMPERIAL TOBACCO PROFITS

AN INCREASE OF £368,300

The full report of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland for the year ended October 31st, 1936, the preliminary figures of which appeared on January 21st, shows that the net profit amounted to £10,642,952—an increase of £368,349. The corresponding figure for 1934-35 was £10,274,603. Adding transfer fees and deducting £10,000 for directors' fees, and £250,000 against £500,000 transferred to reserve, there is a balance of £10,386,316, which, with £1,040,422 brought in, makes a total of £11,426,737 available.

As already known, the directors proposal is to raise the total distribution on the Ordinary stock by 1 per cent., with a final dividend of 7½ per cent. and a bonus of 10 per cent., which leaves a carry-forward of £1,183,767.

The balance-sheet also reflects the company's increased prosperity. Stock-in-trade, including leaf in transit, etc., amounts to £33,304,786, compared with £31,239,987; and land, buildings, etc., at cost, less amounts written off, total £4,962,703, against £4,812,619. Cash at £3,640,744 shows a decline of £189,457, but investments in subsidiary and associated companies are up from £12,036,044 to £12,111,012.

Deposits by, and current accounts with, subsidiary and associated companies are over £200,000 higher at £739,085, against £525,929. Creditors have expanded by almost £1,000,000 to £17,126,322, and at £8,791,197 debtors show a rise on the twelve months of £415,908.

GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAYS

DIVIDENDS ON GUARANTEED STOCK

The directors of the Great Southern Railways Company, at their meeting yesterday, decided to recommend the payment of the arrears of dividends on the 4 per Cent. Guaranteed Preference Stock for the year 1935.

The directors further decided to recommend that a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum be paid on the 4 per Cent. Guaranteed Preference Stock for the year ended 31st December, 1936.

The directors regret that no profits are yet available for dividends on the Preference or Ordinary Stocks of the company.

The dividends now recommended clear off all interest due on the Guaranteed Stock up to December 31, 1936, and are up to market expectations. Before the decision was made known yesterday the Guaranteed Stock was dealt in at 91½, a fall of 1½ points.

LAHINCH'S FIGHT WITH THE OCEAN

BOMBARDED BY GREAT WAVES

UNDERMINING OF HOUSES FEARED

COUNTY SURVEYOR'S FEAR FOR THE TOWN

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ENNIS, Friday.

FOUR times this week, from early on Monday morning to late on Tuesday evening, mountainous seas, whipped by great gales, relentlessly battered the houses and the already damaged promenade at Lahinch, the popular holiday resort, situated on the West coast of Clare.

The occupiers of houses on the sea front refuse to leave their homes, bravely facing the future in the hope that the Government, in co-operation with the Clare County Council, will do something effective to assist them in the never-ending fight with the Atlantic Ocean.

SURVEYOR'S BELIEF

Mr. Frank Dowling, B.E., County Surveyor for Clare, in an interview with me, said:—"I am quite convinced that if steps are not taken in the very near future to properly safeguard Lahinch the whole village will be swept out of existence. All the houses are built on sand, and once the tide encroaches there is nothing to bar its progress. If something is not done soon what I foresee is that the sea will cut through the centre of the village and isolate the famous golf links."

At about 4 a.m. on Monday one of the worst storms remembered by the oldest inhabitant swept over the village. Huge waves dashed against the promenade, swept over house tops into adjoining streets and flooded a number of premises. In one case the waves crashed through a front door and out through the back door. Enormous quantities of water carried in their path big boulders and slabs of concrete which were hurled against the walls of houses. This was repeated on Tuesday morning.

THE POLICE BARRACK

Sergeant Dooley, of the Lahinch Guards, stated that this week's heavy seas enlarged some holes that already existed at the base of the promenade. He believes that for a distance of about fifteen to twenty yards inwards the promenade and some houses are completely undermined.

"In fact," he said, "I would compare the present condition to rabbit burrows in a ditch." During every high tide houses in the vicinity of the promenade are shaken by the water rushing in underneath the foundations.

On one occasion he himself clearly heard the water entering and receding beneath the foundations of the barrack, which is within about twenty feet of the back portion of the promenade. He brought the matter to the notice of his authorities, and, although the barrack is listed as a "married station," he was ordered to leave the married quarters and procure alternative accommodation for himself and family. Nobody now resides at night in the barrack except the barrack orderly. Even he (Guard Daly) was forced to leave the building on Tuesday morning by the storm

IN SERIOUS DANGER

Eight or nine houses situated on the verge of the promenade are in serious danger. In line with these are the ruins of three houses demolished some years ago by the fury of the sea. Opposite the barrack is a rebuilt house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. B. Morris, the original premises having been destroyed at the same time as the other three. When interviewed Mrs. Morris said she had never experienced such a terrifying time as she had on Monday and Tuesday mornings. "The tide," she said, "carried big stones which battered the house and shook it time after time."

Some years ago the promenade, now so badly battered, was an imposing structure, with iron railings running along its entire length. The iron railings, the greater portion of the promenade, and a substantial pier have all disappeared. Nothing now remains but tiered steps of concrete to form a break-water against future tides. This break-water, which was specially constructed by Mr. Dowling out of limited financial resources, has done its work up to the present, and, as a matter of fact, has exceeded expectations; but, as he himself says, if now undermined, it is difficult to see how the remains of the promenade and the houses nearby can be saved unless the necessary financial assistance is forthcoming to construct a permanent and effective sea-wall.

TWO-SEATER OF THE AIR

'Plane Which Does 30 To the Gallon

BY OUR AIR CORRESPONDENT.

An Irish test pilot, Mr. Richard Grubb, of Clogheen, Co. Tipperary, has arrived in this country with a new type of British aircraft which is claimed to be "the light car of the air."

It is an Aeronca cabin monoplane which is now being built in England, although it was originally designed in the United States. Mr. Grubb took me on a flight in this machine yesterday. The pilot and passenger sit side by side in a comfortable cabin, with quite a good range of vision. The machine, powered with a 38 h.p. opposed twin-cylinder engine, climbs rapidly, and had a top speed of 90 m.p.h. and a cruising speed of 82 m.p.h. The landing speed—35 m.p.h.—was very low, and the ease with which the Aeronca can be pulled up in a short distance on the ground by its wheel brakes commends it for getting in and out of small fields.

The cruising range of this aeroplane is 230 miles, and its petrol consumption is 30 miles per gallon. It may be recalled that Flying-Officer Llewellyn made the 9,090 miles flight from Croydon to Johannesburg in an Aeronca, and the flight is said to have cost only £24 in running expenses.

Mr. Grubb, who is test pilot to the builders of these machines, proposes to fly to Fermoy to-day, and will demonstrate the capabilities of his machine before he visits his home at Clogheen and several other parts of Ireland during the coming week.

Mr. Bernard McDonagh (68), of Drumcaghey, Ederney, Co. Fermanagh, died suddenly in his home on Wednesday evening. He was a well-known cattle dealer in Fermanagh and Tyrone and leaves a widow and family to mourn his loss.

RECOVERY OF THE POPE

TO-MORROW'S BROADCAST

TO BE RELAYED FROM MANY STATIONS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

VATICAN CITY, Friday.

VATICAN CITY officials are amazed and delighted at the remarkable recovery which the Pope has made as revealed by to-day's official bulletin.

It is no secret that at some stages of his illness his death was expected from one day to another.

To-day's he is reported to be in much better spirits, and he told one of his visitors this morning that he now feels better than before his illness.

MEDICAL OPINION

The Pope announced his intention of going to stay in his villa at Castel Gandolfo in May, if his health continues to improve. He wanted to go earlier even next month, but Dr. Milani had the moisture measured in the neighbourhood of the villa, which is near Lake Albano, and it was found to be too damp at present to make a stay there advisable for His Holiness.

The latest medical report shows that the Pope's physical condition has really improved, though he will never be quite rid of the defective blood circulation and the symptoms of myocarditis.

EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

The broadcast which the Pope will make to the Manila Eucharistic Congress on Sunday will consist of about six hundred words and a short blessing.

The address will be given at 1 p.m. (G.M.T.) to coincide with the closing of the Congress, and will be broadcast from the Vatican short-wave station on a wave-length of 19.84 metres.

A translation will follow immediately, and the address will be relayed by many stations.

SHIPS HELD UP AT DUBLIN

TWO STEAMERS' CREWS PAID OFF

The crews of the s.s. City of Antwerp and s.s. City of Limerick, numbering about 30 men, were paid off last night as a result of the Dublin dockers' dispute. It is expected that a third vessel will pay off almost immediately.

In the meantime the s.s. City of Bremen has sailed from Cork with only portion of her cargo discharged. The vessel is taking cargo consigned to Dublin back to the port of Antwerp.

The s.s. Trito (Rotterdam) has sailed from Dublin with her full cargo, which the Dublin dockers refused to discharge.

Checkers and boy assistants employed by Messrs. Palgrave, Murphy, Ltd., were withdrawn by the Irish Seamen's and Port Workers' Union yesterday. These workers, together with the discharged seamen and the dockers directly involved in the dispute, will be paid dispute benefit by the union.

The s.s. Danegarth Force is held up at Dublin as a result of the stoppage, and a chartered vessel at Cork, which is to convey Irish cattle to the Continent, may be involved to-day.

There seems little hope of an immediate settlement.

WAR MINISTER AND CONSCRIPTION

MR. DUFF COOPER DOES NOT WANT IT

Mr. Duff Cooper, Secretary of State for War, told a Cleckheaton, Yorkshire, audience last night that he does not believe in conscription, and does not want it.

"I should hate to see any method of force introduced into Great Britain," he said, "because, in the first place, I believe our young men only need to know what their duty is in order to do it.

"The introduction of conscription in Great Britain would not solve, or even materially assist in solving, our particular and immediate problem. The greater part of our armament is employed, not here, but abroad in various parts of the Empire.

"I have never heard it suggested that conscription should be introduced for foreign service. I do not want conscription. I do not believe in it, and I do not believe that in time of peace it would assist us or be necessary."

While he did not desire to see conscription, he thought that more should be asked of young people.

"The greatest contribution that can be made to world peace to-day is a strongly defended, efficiently armed Great Britain."

M.C.C. AT GEELONG

WORTHINGTON SOON OUT

GEELONG (VICTORIA), Saturday.

R. W. V. Robins, taking over the captaincy of the M.C.C. team in the absence of G. O. Allen, won the toss and gave his side first knock on a good wicket. The locals soon put the small crowd of 1,500 in a good humour by getting the luckless Worthington out with only 14 runs on the board. Worthington, who had Verity as his opening partner, was clean bowled by Collins, a fast-medium right-hand bowler, for 3.

Hardstaff joined Verity, and the home side had a great chance of getting another cheap wicket. The Notts player had made only 5 when he was missed at the wicket by Hassett, Mair being the unlucky bowler. Verity, revealing fine stroke production, and Hardstaff, gradually mastered the bowling, and the 50 was hoisted in 62 minutes.

125,000 ATTEND MIDNIGHT MASS

MANILA'S OPEN-AIR CATHEDRAL

THE POPE SENDS HIS BLESSING

EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS FERVOUR

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

MANILA, Friday.

THE special event of to-day's Eucharistic Congress was a cablegram from Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State, on behalf of the Pope, conveying the praise and blessing of the Holy Father for the "magnificent triumph of the great assemblage of the International Congress."

The cablegram, which was received by Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia, the Papal Legate, further declared that "the Holy See was profoundly moved by the loving homage and prayerful solicitude for His Vicar on earth," and that the Pope imparted his paternal Apostolic Benediction as "a pledge of his copious thanks for the abundant fruits of your devoted labours."

The Pontifical Mass, which is celebrated on the first Friday of the month, had special significance to-day in view of the Pope's message. Moreover, it was sung by Bishop H. Peylin, of Namur, who was celebrating his eighty-first birthday.

IMPRESSIVE SCENE

Brilliant lighting this evening converted the lovely Luneta Park into a vast open-air cathedral for the men's Midnight Mass, which was attended by about 125,000 men from fifty-four nations. Richly-robed Cardinals, with a retinue of priests, administered the Sacrament before the great Eucharistic altar, and Archbishop O'Doherty acted as Communion celebrant.

The special sermon for men was delivered by Archbishop John Mitty, of San Francisco, who, in the course of his address, declared: "If to-day we are thinking of spreading the truth it is in the broken Body of Our Lord: it is in the Eucharist that we shall conquer."

A PRAYER

He prayed that "a Manila galleon might go forth from the islands, freighted not with mere material riches of the Orient, but with the graces of the Holy Eucharist. May it bring to every shore," he prayed, "throughout the world the blessings of Our Lord and Saviour, Christ Jesus."

Archbishop Mitty then referred to the Filipinos as "the most Catholic nation of the East," and exhorted the host of devoted natives who swelled the congregation as "the last born of the Commonwealths on the face of the earth to hold fast that which you have, to fight the good fight, and to keep the faith."

CHURCH BELLS RING OUT

Hardly had the men's general Communion terminated than the church bells rang out summoning the faithful to early morning Masses, which are part of the day-long renewal of devotions of the five-day Congress.

Later in the day a downpour of tropical rain interrupted the second international assembly of the Congress, which had been arranged for the early evening, and the thousands who had gathered for it in the Luneta Park were forced to rush for shelter in every direction.

Prelates and laymen then transferred the session to the broadcasting station, and six speeches were broadcast while steady rain drenched the outdoor sitting.

SPANISH INSURGENTS

The Right Rev. Silvester Sancho, Spanish Rector of the Santo Tomas University, Manila, asked the Catholics of the world to pray for the success of the Spanish insurgents.

There is, he said, "being waged in Spain a fight to the death between the Eucharist, which is the living Jesus, and atheism, disguised under the cloak of Communism."

CHILDREN'S DAY

At the end of the day's ceremonies officials at once began preparations to handle the 80,000 children who are expected to take part in the outdoor Communion and Mass at Luneta Park early to-morrow morning.

It was stated in reliable Church circles to-day that the next International Eucharistic Congress would probably be held in the summer of 1938 at Budapest, Hungary.

THE PRINCESS ROYAL

ON WAY TO VISIT DUKE OF WINDSOR

The Princess Royal arrived in London last night from Leeds, on her way to visit her brother, the Duke of Windsor, at Castle Enzesfeld, near Vienna.

The Princess travelled with one of her Ladies-in-Waiting, and there was a big crowd at King's Cross Station when she arrived. She looked very well, and was wearing a dress of Royal purple, with a hat of the same shade.

To-day the Princess, with her husband, the Earl of Harewood, will leave London for Vienna.

BAN ON FREE STATE DOCTORS

CASE IN BELFAST COURT

CONDITIONAL ORDER AGAINST MINISTRY

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

A FREE State doctor applied in the King's Bench, Belfast, to-day for a conditional writ of mandamus to compel the Northern Ministry of Home Affairs to sanction his appointment, made by the Newry Board of Guardians. The matter arose over the Ministry's order that only doctors qualifying in Great Britain and Northern Ireland should be appointed to public positions.

Lord Justice Andrews held that a prima facie case had been made and granted a conditional order.

Mr. C. L. Sheil (instructed by Mr. P. J. McMahon), for Dr. McGeough, read the affidavit of the applicant, in which he said that in November, 1935, Newry Guardians advertised for a medical officer for Mullaghglass Dispensary District, and he applied for the position and fulfilled all the conditions required by the advertisement and held all the qualifications then required by the Ministry of Home Affairs. At the meeting of the Guardians on November 14, 1935, he was appointed and took up duty.

"I am a British subject," went on the affidavit, "and was born in Ireland and lived at Monaghan, in County Monaghan, until November, 1935, when I took up residence at Carrickcloughan, County Armagh, where I still reside and which is in the Mullaghglass Dispensary District.

"I am informed by my solicitor and believe that on or about November 26, 1935, the Ministry of Home Affairs for Northern Ireland made an order.

"The Ministry, purporting to act under the terms of that order, have refused to sanction my appointment, though repeatedly requested by the Guardians to do so."

A BRITISH SUBJECT

Mr. Sheil (for the appellant) said that their case was that the proceedings were ultra vires on the ground that the applicant, being a British subject, the Ministry had no right to say to him that "though you are a qualified doctor we have made a new order under which you cannot be appointed."

Lord Justice Andrews—When was the appointment completed? Was it at the date when the Ministry sanctioned it?

Mr. Sheil said that the Ministry had refused to sanction the appointment under an order made by them after the Guardians had made the appointment. The applicant had all the medical qualifications, but the Ministry said that they were entitled to change their minds.

"It appears to me," said counsel, "that if this thing went unchallenged the Ministry may do as they like. I ask for a conditional order on the ground that the order of the Ministry was ultra vires."

Lord Justice Andrews—Was the notice of making the appointment sent to the Ministry before the order?

Mr. Sheil said that he could not say.

Lord Justice Andrews said that counsel had made a sufficient prima facie case for a conditional order, and he would grant it without expressing any opinion in the slightest degree on the merits of the application.

On Mr. Sheil's application, his lordship ordered service on the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry and the Clerk of Newry Guardians.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGES

CORK OFFICIALS SENT FOR TRIAL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Friday.

Cork District Court was again engaged for some hours to-day in taking further depositions in the cases against the three Bankruptcy Court and Land Registry officials, Richard Fitzgibbon, Bernard Crawley, and William J. Ryan, against whom there are a series of charges of embezzlement, conspiracy to defraud, fraudulent removal of Land Registry stamps from documents, and fraudulent affixation of stamps.

Bernard Crawley, having been told he need not answer any question which might incriminate himself, gave evidence in detail as to searches for solicitors and the disposal of the fees obtained for the work.

After hearing the evidence one charge of embezzling £1 2s. 0d., against Ryan, was withdrawn; two charges in respect of two 2s. 6d. stamps, against Fitzgibbon, were altered to one charge in regard to a 5s. stamp, and all three accused were returned for trial on continuing bails.

Among causes of fires in Dundee, mentioned by Firemaster J. S. Weir in his annual report, appears "mice chewing matches." The responsibility of the smoking habit as a fire risk is shown by the fact that 28 fires are attributed to matches and cigarette ends carelessly thrown down, four to people smoking in bed, and one to a hot tobacco pipe left in a coat pocket.

MOTOR RACE VICTIMS

FIVE CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES

WRITS OUTSIDE THE JURISDICTION

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

THE fatal accidents at Newtownards during the T.T. motor car race in September last, when eight people were killed and thirty injured, was the subject of an application before Lord Justice Andrews in the King's Bench, Belfast, to-day, when leave was granted to issue and serve writs out of the jurisdiction on Automobile Proprietary, Ltd., having its registered office at the Royal Automobile Club Buildings, Pall Mall, London, S.W.; A. W. Phillips, secretary of the Royal Automobile Club, and George Dixon Spain, major in H.H. Army, both of the Royal Automobile Club, London

Counsel said that a writ had already been served on another defendant, John Chambers, driver of the ill-fated car, of 104 Donegall Pass, Belfast.

The applicants were:—

Mrs. Jane M'Auley, widow, 45 Mill street, Newtownards, who claimed in respect of the death of her husband, Samuel M'Auley.

Robert M'Gimpsey, Scrabo road, Newtownards, who claimed in respect of the death of his son, William A. M'Gimpsey

George Carlisle, 46 George street, who claimed for personal injuries.

Mrs. Hannah Warden, John street, Newtownards, who claimed for the death of her husband, Alexander Warden, and for personal injuries (described by counsel as most serious).

Lord Justice Andrews granted the orders sought.

Mr. J. D. Chambers (instructed by Mr. T. C. G. Mackintosh), for the applicants, explained that the claims arose out of the accident at Newtownards during the T.T. Race last year, and said that he grounded the applications on the affidavit of Mr. Thomas C. G. Mackintosh, solicitor, which, having set out the causes of action, went on: The defendant company, the Automobile Proprietary, Ltd., is a company which has among its main objects the organisation of races and competitions relative to auto motor vehicles. . the company is a British company.

The defendant, A. W. Phillips, is secretary of the Royal Automobile Club, Pall Mall, London, and is a official of that club and was in charge of the arrangements for and management of the race, and the writ can be served on them at that address.

The defendant, Spain, was another official of the R.A.C., and was responsible for the organisation, management and control of the race.

The Royal Automobile Club was a club established, maintained and conducted by the defendant company, Automobile Proprietary, Ltd.

NEGLIGENCE ALLEGED

"I say," went on deponent, "that the plaintiff will, at the trial of this action, be able to establish the negligence of the defendants, and of each of their servants and agents, in their conduct, control and management of the said motor race.

"I beg to refer to the correspondence which has passed between me and the solicitors acting for the Royal Automobile Club and Automobile Proprietary, Ltd., and say I have been unable to obtain a definite answer from this company as to whether they will accept responsibility for the conduct of its servants or agents, and the defendants, and each of them, have made no offer to compensate the plaintiff, and none of the defendants has accepted liability in respect of the matters complained of in this action.

"All the matters complained of in this action are matters arising within the jurisdiction of this honourable Court, and I say that the three first-named defendants are essential parties to this action, and that the other defendant, John Chambers, has already been served with the writ of summons in this action. All the defendants are British subjects.

"I believe that this action can be most cheaply and conveniently tried in Northern Ireland; for I say that the witnesses who will be called to substantiate the plaintiff's case are for the most part resident in Northern Ireland."

Counsel went on to apply for concurrent writs out of the jurisdiction.

Lord Justice Andrews—Take the order.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE IN ENGLAND

The Free State Department of Agriculture have been officially informed by the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries that a further outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease has been confirmed at Donnington, Ledbury, Herefordshire.

The usual precautions which have been taken by the British Ministry to prevent the spread of the disease remain in force over an area which includes parts of the Counties of Gloucester, Hereford and Worcester.

ALONE

"Alone, alone, all all alone,
Alone on a wide wide sea."

What a beautiful thing mere repetition can be in the hands of a master? Alas! that but a few such wizards are to be found in a generation.

Our oft-repeated slogan "on merit alone" possesses no such bewitching beauty. It has to be severely terse and practical. You buy a tin of Science Polish and try it. You continue to buy it when you are satisfied that its equal cannot be found. That is all.

On Merit Alone.

THE CLONTARF CYCLE SMASH

HOW TWO MEN LOST THEIR LIVES

EVIDENCE ABOUT A SUDDEN GUST OF WIND

AFTER an investigation which occupied three hours the jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence at the inquest, held in Jervis Street Hospital yesterday by Dr. D. A. MacErlean, City Coroner, on Gerard McDonnell (23), of Liffey Bank Junction, Glasnevin, and Cyril Newham (20), of Haliday square, off Oxmantown road, Dublin.

Both men, who were radio mechanics employed at the Central Radio, Rathmines road, sustained fatal injuries when a motor cycle combination, in which they were driving, collided with a fire alarm post at the junction of St. Lawrence and Clontarf roads on Thursday last.

JURY'S RECOMMENDATION

The jury added a rider to the effect that the island and the fire-alarm post at the junction of the roads were a danger to the traffic, and should be removed to some safe position.

Francis McDonnell said that his brother, Gerard McDonnell, had never, to his knowledge, driven a motor cycle.

Maurice Newham said that he never saw his brother driving a motor cycle, and, to his knowledge, he had not got a driver's licence.

Dr. A. Morris, Jervis Street Hospital, stated that death in both cases was due to shock and hæmorrhage following extensive injuries.

Desmond Neville, 17 Castle avenue, said that he saw the motor cycle approach St. Lawrence road, coming from the direction of the city, and travelling at between thirty and forty miles per hour. Near the junction the machine swerved suddenly to the left and struck the alarm post. As a result of the impact the sidecar separated from the cycle, and both men were thrown on to the road. Before the machine swerved he saw the driver put his right foot on the carriageway, and it seemed as if the brakes had refused to work.

A GUST OF WIND

William Cleary, Summerhill, stated that the driver seemed to lose control when caught by a sudden gust of wind, and seemed to be unable to avoid colliding with the post.

Robert Owens, 'bus driver, 36 Fleming road, Drumcondra, corroborated the evidence of the last witness, adding that in his opinion the driver was travelling very fast. He did not think that the driver intended to turn up St. Lawrence road, but a sudden gust of wind put him off. his course.

Guard M. Byrne, Carriage Department, said that for an inexperienced driver a sudden gust of wind would have the effect of blowing him off his course.

A youth named George Bunting said that the machine passed him as he was cycling, and the engine was roaring. The motor cycle was only a few feet away from the witness when the steering seemed to become locked, and the machine took a direct course for the fire alarm. The witness was not affected by the gust of wind.

EMPLOYER'S EVIDENCE

Arthur Sevitt, 6 Grosvenor terrace, Rathmines, proprietor of the Central Radio, said that both the deceased men were employed by him as wireless mechanics. He had purchased the motor cycle combination involved in the accident. He did not give permission to either of the deceased men to use the machine. He was satisfied that Newham could drive a motor cycle, and he had told the witness that he had a driver's licence.

Patrick J. Egan, 20 John street, Pimlico, also employed in the Central Radio, said that Newham was a good driver, and had told witness that he had a driver's licence.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

ECONOMIC DEFENCE

The Times, in a leading article on economic defences, says: While economists and bankers are discussing methods of stabilising prosperity and of preventing recovery from running wild in excessive expansion and unhealthy speculation, industrialists are having forced on their attention the near and the more distant consequences of the rearmament programme and its bearing on the fortunes of their industries. These industrialists do not attempt to estimate the broad effects of the large unproductive expenditure which the Government have released in a spate along certain channels, but they are concerned with dislocations of production that might, in their view, be diminished if not prevented.

It is necessary to remember—and Government Departments do not always seem to know it well enough—that within the difficulty of satisfying in time the demands of the Government for defence is the second difficulty of maintaining unimpaired the ability of industry to sustain the national life at a high level. The Government's work makes a heavy draft on the national resources, which industry must feed and replenish. In the first place, industry has to adjust itself suddenly to large, but temporary, demands which must have priority, and, in the second place, to prepare for the readjustment that will be required almost as suddenly when the emergency demands have been met. There is imminent danger that the building industry may enter upon a period of feverish activity, shortness of materials and inflated prices and wages, and then relapse into depression in which it will drag others with it. If the industry is overfed with orders this year and next it will as surely suffer stringency in the following years. A similar danger of congestion now and of leanness later confronts other industries, and their circumstances, if foreign trade has to be sacrificed in order to meet the Government's requirements, may, in the end, be worse.

Industry and trade are the foundations of our economic strength, and from that strength is derived the means of defence. The nation does not grudge the demands for defence, for without national security there would be no economic security. All that is required will be forthcoming. But the business of providing defence should be conducted in such a way that the bill of costs will be presented only once, and not once in increased taxation, and again in loss of trade, diminishing incomes from profits and wages, and further additions to the weight of taxation. To ward off this second time of payment measures must be taken to maintain our oversea trade, to set an even course for business at home, so far as order and plan can secure it, and to foster recovery and industrial activity in the distressed areas, so that tracts of economic wilderness may once again be made productive and a source of energy, not of weakness.

FEWER UNEMPLOYED

FREE STATE FIGURE DROPS BY 4.800

Official figures published last evening show that between the 25th January and the 1st February there was a fall in the number of persons unemployed in the Free State of 4,846. The figures for the former date were 100,177, and for the latter 95,331. On 18th January the number unemployed was 104,797.

"THERE WILL BE NO WAR"

WORDS OF DR. GOEBBELS

"NO ONE DARE ATTACK US"

BERLIN, Friday.

STRIKING references to the international situation made by Dr. Goebbels, in a speech in Hamburg, which were not published in the Berlin newspapers, are contained in a report of the address in the "Hamburger Fremdenblatt" to-night.

According to this paper, Dr. Goebbels said, when addressing a huge mass meeting at Hamburg last night:—

"Are you under the impression that France feels she would like to walk across the Rhine and on to Berlin? A German army is lined up on the frontier to-day, also along the frontier in the west.

VERSAILLES

"What did our predecessors say when they referred to Versailles? They stammered that an attempt should be made by using friendliness and patience to make an irreconcilable opponent more kindly disposed towards us. What did we do? We tore up Versailles. (Applause.)

"In four years of reconstruction Germany has once more become a great Power. We still lack a few things to make us happy, but I hope that we shall get them too.

"The growing of a new Continental military Power in the heart of Europe cannot leave the development of world affairs uninfluenced.

MR. EDEN

"It is true the British Foreign Secretary Eden stated that he did not want Europe to split into two camps. But there exists a nation of 180 millions at the border of Europe which is determined to cast Europe into anarchism.

"If the charge is made against us Germans that we are silent about Czechoslovakia, or speak only in very unfriendly terms, this is due to the fact that we are under the impression that its military alliance with Moscow is a great danger for Western Europe."

LESS CHANCE LATER

Referring to the possibility of a war arising from the "existing crises," Dr. Goebbels said:—"I can assure you most definitely that this conflict will not arise. It will not arise, not because we do not yield to everything our adversaries demand of us, but because no one dares to attack us.

"Some may say not now, but later. Later there is even less chance of that happening than to-day, because later we shall be stronger than to-day."

'PLANES IN COLLISION

TWO DEAD

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ALEXANDRIA, Friday.

Lieutenant G. A. Vardon (attached to R.A.F.), and Telegraphist Bert Overal were killed when two 'planes from H.M. aircraft carrier Glorious collided off Alexandria to-day.

The accident occurred when the machines were carrying out a mock torpedo attack on H.M.S. Courageous, and, according to an eye witness, the collision took place immediately over the bows of the destroyer.

Lieutenant Vardon's 'plane nose-dived into the sea, and he and the telegraphist were killed outright.

The other machine flew round for a short time and then came near a destroyer. The pilot was rescued uninjured, but the 'plane was wrecked.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

The Air Ministry announced last night that Lieutenant Gerald Arthur Vardon, R.N., Flying officer, R.A.F., and Telegraphist Bert Overal, R.N., lost their lives as the result of a collision in the air which occurred off Alexandria to-day between two aircraft of No. 825 Fleet Spotter Reconnaissance Squadron, embarked on H.M.S. Glorious.

Lieutenant Vardon and Telegraphist Overal were the pilot and passenger of one aircraft.

The occupants of the second aircraft are safe and uninjured.

This is the ninth R.A.F. accident this year, bringing the death roll to twelve. Two of the other accidents have been in the Egyptian district, one at Kantara (Egypt) and the other at Pibor Post (Sudan).

"THE PLOUGH AND THE STARS"

FIRST VIEW OF NEW FILM IN LONDON

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

Mr. John W. Dulanty, the Free State High Commissioner in London, was present at the world-premiere of "The Plough and the Stars," based on Seán O'Casey's play, at the Regal Cinema, Marble Arch, London, this evening.

In 1934-'35 Radio Pictures produced in Hollywood "The Informer," based on Liam O'Flaherty's novel, for which high awards were bestowed on John Ford, the director. "The Plough and the Stars" is likely to repeat that welcome, for it has been guided to the screen by the same director; made in the same studios and by the same producing staff; adapted by the same scenarist, and authentic colour brought to the scenes by the Abbey Players, who were brought specially from Dublin—Barry Fitzgerald, Eileen Crowe, Dennis O'Dea, F. J. McCormick, and Arthur Shields, who also acted as assistant director. They are supported by Una O'Connor and J. M. Kerrigan also of Abbey fame.

The picture is humorous throughout, thanks to Barry Fitzgerald, Denis O'Dea, as the young Covey; Eileen Crowe, as Bessie Burgess; Una O'Connor, as Maggie Gogan, and J. M. Kerrigan, as Peter Flynn.

F. J. McCormick, as Pearse, and Moroni Olsen, as James Connolly, gave good performances, and F. J. McCormick as Brennan, was most realistic. Barbara Stanwyck and Preston Foster were fine in the leads as Nora and Jack Clitheroe, but the Abbey Players steal the picture.

The story is told with biting character analysis, but ends with a note of lightness; while the play ends with a much more sombre note.

THE LATE MR. P. M. SEALES

At the meeting of the Council of the Incorporated Law Society of Ireland held on the 4th inst. a resolution was passed regretting the death of Mr. Peter M. LEAGUE'S PART IN PEACE

CAN IT BE MADE EFFECTIVE?

MR. McGILLIGAN ON HORRORS OF WAR

THE University College, Dublin, Law Society held its inaugural meeting in the College last night, when the Auditor (Mr. T. F. O'Higgins) delivered his address on "International Justice." Mr. P. McGilligan, T.D.; Mr. M. C. Maguire, K.C.; Mr. P. J. Roe, K.C., and the Rev. Denis O'Keefe, M.A., were the principal speakers.

Dr. Coffey, President of the College, welcomed the speakers.

Mr. P. McGilligan said that if there were going to be no League of Nations they were going to have war, and if they had war they would have horrors one hundred times worse than those which had been experienced in the last war. In the last war about 300 tons of explosives were dropped on the different countries. It was estimated that in any single twenty-four hours that amount of explosives could be dropped and repeated continually. And they would not only be explosive bombs, but they would be incendiary bombs which would spread poison gas.

One article of the League would, at any rate, have to be scrapped, and that was the article which stereotyped territorially the division of the earth. That might bring about a re-adjustment of men's minds, with some hope then of progress. The International Court had not failed because of its personnel or through adjustment of problems which had come before it, but because not enough problems had been brought before it.

The League of Nations had failed to face the big problems, but it had faced the smaller issues and found a solution for them. Concluding, Mr. McGilligan said that small nations could help in the cause of world peace a great deal by taking an active interest in international matters.

LEAGUE'S FAILURE

Mr. M. C. Maguire, K.C., seconding the vote of thanks, said that he thought there had been undue pessimism in the speeches of both the Auditor and Mr. McGilligan. From the tenor of their remarks one would think that international law was a thing of the past. That he refused to believe. Nobody, however, would fail to believe that the League of Nations had failed. Personally, he thought that the word "failure" was too mild. The League had been guilty of one of the greatest betrayals in history—and with its eyes open. It had betrayed and shattered the confidence of all the nations of the world.

The conception of international justice which they had put before themselves was not justice at all, but a justice founded upon expediency, and that expediency had been dictated all along the line by the dominant Powers for the maintenance of an intolerable status quo. It was time that the influence of the Vatican should be restored to world affairs. For centuries the Pope, as head of Christendom, was appealed to by the nations of Christendom, and he settled their disputes upon fair lines and proper justice. The voice of the Pope should be restored to the Council of the Nations at Geneva, or wherever the new Council would be set up.

Mr. P. J Roe, K.C., who proposed that the Society was worthy of support, said that he was not in favour of war, but he was equally not in favour of peace at any price. Everybody agreed that there should not be war, but everybody also agreed that there would be war There never would be peace until men forgot their different nationalities and joined in one great brotherhood. That never could happen until they had a central authority, powerful enough to keep the rest of the world at peace. He preferred to risk occasional war, rather than to be a standardised citizen under either Communism or Fascism.

The Rev. Denis O'Keeffe, M.A., seconding the motion, said that in the sphere of international labour and international morality the League had accomplished most useful work. The difficulty of securing any international institution was that it was hard to obtain the affection and loyalty of the peoples of the world generally. A man's emotional range was strictly limited to his family, his village, his city and his country. When Max Beerbohm was asked what thought the British Empire inspired in him, he replied:—"A determination never to visit it." (Laughter.) A man could not take an active interest in the whole world.

AUDITOR'S ADDRESS

In the course of his adderss, the Auditor said that it was one of the saddest chapters in the world's history that the glorious chance of future peace, which the foundation of the League of Nations had given them, had not been grasped by the world's statesmen, and that nations had been so forgetful of their duty to mankind as to violate their pledged word and honour in the lust for power. The fact that Italy had emerged successfully and with increased prestige from the Abyssinian war was itself a damning repudiation of the supposed perfection of modern international law. Of what use was the sanction if it was not enforced?

Referring to the alternatives which faced those who would seek to preserve the peace of the world, he said that one was to recognise frankly the failure of the League and to abolish it. To-day the nations of the world were dividing themselves into various groups and alliances for various purposes. Why not give that fact universal recognition, and divide the world into regional spheres, governed by the different Powers? Let Japan, said Mr. Higgins, look after the interests of the Orient; let the United States be responsible for the American continent; and let Britain rule that quarter of the globe which comprised the Empire. This would, at least, ensure the predominance of a sanctioned law over certain portions of the world's territory; it would end the friction of opposing national ideas which was so apparent in Geneva; and it would restore to the world the comparative stability of the concert of Europe.

The alternative was to strengthen the Covenant of the League of Nations, to preserve the whole system of international law by strengthening the organs through which it expressed itself, and by eradicating the principal causes which had led to the present chaos in international dealings.

If the system of international law was to be preserved a pledge of non-intervention must be extracted from all nations. To-day they found Russian soldiers fighting in the trenches round Madrid, and Germans, Italians and Irishmen marching behind the banners of the insurgents

In regard to the relations between the Free State and England, the Auditor said that if there was a strengthening of the system of international arbitration the natural reluctance of nations to diminish their sovereignty by submitting to arbitration would be overcome. Such reluctance was amplified by the economic dispute at present marring friendly relations between Great Britain and the Free State, and, though arbitration had been mentioned several times, no arbitral board had yet been set up.

THE LAUNDRIES' DISPUTE

POSSIBILITY OF A SETTLEMENT

The 1,500 members of the Irish Women Workers' Union employed in the Dublin laundry trade will meet this afternoon to consider an expected offer from the Leinster Laundries' Association. The workers were offered 2s. increase yesterday, but their representatives would not agree to recommend less than 2s. 6d. per week for time and piece workers, and the employers' representatives agreed to convey this suggestion to their members.

A further conference regarding the wages of vanmen was held in Jury's Hotel last night

The women workers' conference was held under the auspices of the Department of Industry and Commerce at 51 Dawson street.

VIEWS ON PEACE AND WAR

BISHOP DENOUNCES PACIFISTS

DEBATE AT CHURCH ASSEMBLY

THE Bishop of London (Dr. Winnington Ingram) pleaded for an adequate defence force, and stressed the danger of the Pacifist policy at the meeting of the Church Assembly in London yesterday. The Pacifists, in his opinion, were the real danger to the peace of the world to-day.

There is no great danger of war if we are strong enough he said. If we had taken the view of the Pacifists in 1914, either the German Emperor or Herr Hitler would now be in Whitehall; this island of ours would be a German Province.

When the Assembly resumed the debate on Peace and National Defence, the Bishop of Southwark (Dr. R. G. Parsons) moved that the Assembly affirmed the responsibility of Christian people to support, criticise, or oppose all defence programmes in the light of Christian principles.

Lord Daryngton, seconding. the proposal, said that he would much rather the world should come to an end than that we should have another outbreak of war.

DR. INGRAM'S VIEWS

The Bishop of London, having made the reference to the situation in 1914 (quoted above) said:—

Coming to later times, I should have thought that Abyssinia would have cured every pacifist in the world. If we have no force at our disposal the dictators of the world will triumph over the democracies of the world.

Referring to Dr. Barnes's speech made on Thursday, Dr. Ingram said: "I hate opposing the Bishop of Birmingham, because I have a great affection and admiration for him. I would rather die than see bombs dropping on the children and burning their flesh while we stand by doing nothing. If the Bishop of Birmingham saw a little child being ill treated he would be the first to go and hit out and defend the child.

Dealing with the Government's rearmament programme, Dr. Ingram said: "I am all for watching the Government, and I do not wish to give a blank cheque to any Government, but as our Government is intent on peace, let us, for God's sake, stand behind it." (Applause.)

CANON SHEPPARD FOR PEACE

Canon "Dick" Sheppard urged that war is the ultimate expression of man's futility and wickedness, and it is not the part of Christians either to take part in it or to have anything whatever to do with it.

Mr. Hubert Upward, of St. Alban's, expressed the view that the vast majority of the younger educated people to-day were opposed to war, tooth and nail.

"The people who want war are across the Channel," declared the Rev. H. G. Crabtree, also of St. Alban's. "It is monstrous to suggest that we are promoting war. If the Bishop of Birmingham, Canon Sheppard and others want to preach to the unconverted, they should go and talk to Hitler. They might go to Rome and have a meeting with Mussolini in the chair.

"Let them go to Russia. To talk to us in this Assembly is a waste of time, because we all want peace."

The Archbishop of York (Dr. Temple)—said "Supposing that bombs are dropped on the Bishop of London's Christmas party, the Pacifist question is whether the Bishop is prepared to send somebody to drop bombs on somebody else's Christmas party. He is not for a moment denying that it may be our duty to die for our country. His only question is whether it is our duty to kill for our country." Dr. Temple maintained that Christians were not bound to the condition that in no circumstances whatsoever might they take the life of a brother. At the same time the conditions must be watched with the utmost vigilance.

"It can be a Christian duty to kill," went on Dr. Temple. "I think it is true that Pacifist agitation is increasing the danger of war."

The original resolution deplored general world rearmament; called on all Christians to redouble efforts to promote international good-will, and welcomed the Government's policy to adhere to the League Covenant and to use armed forces only for defence and in the interests of international security and peace.

When a vote was taken it was decided to accept an amended resolution stating "this Assembly recognises the right of the Government to maintain such forces as the Imperial Parliament deems necessary for the pursuance of this policy, and believes that so long as this policy is maintained Christian citizens may bear arms in the service of their country."

It was also decided by a large majority to adopt the Bishop of Southwark's addendum.

OFFICIAL REPORTS OF DAIL DEBATES

The practice formerly observed in connection with the publication of the official reports of the Dail of issuing them separately for each day has now been resumed. For several years past the publication has been weekly—that is to say, reports for all the sittings of the week were grouped together in one publication. Beginning with the sitting of last Wednesday, the report of each day's proceedings will be available on the following day. These daily reports will, as was done in the case of the weekly reports, be collected into bound volumes for permanent preservation.

GRESFORD MINE DISASTER

THE INSPECTOR'S FINDINGS

DISTRESSING FEATURE OF THE INQUIRY

SIR HENRY WALKER, Chief Inspector of Mines in Great Britain, whose inquiry into the disastrous explosion at Gresford Colliery, when 265 lives were lost, occupied thirty days, finds that the initial mistake was the failure to carry out a big scheme of ventilation some years previously.

In his report, which was issued yesterday, he says that workmen and officials alike had been responsible for breaking the law with regard to shot firing and the eight hours' day.

THE ASSESSORS' REPORTS

Mr. John Brass, colliery director and Past President of the Institution of Mining Engineers, one of the assessors, came to the conclusion that the point of explosion was near the clutch, due to firedamp being ignited by use of the telephone.

His opinion was that the great loss of life was not primarily due to the explosion, but to the resulting fire.

Mr. Joseph Jones, President of the Mineworkers' Federation, the other assessor, disagreed with the suggestion that the ignition was at the telephone. He considered that the evidence established beyond all dubiety that "14S" district was a veritable "gasometer," awaiting the unfortunate coincidence of ignition, which would produce such a "catastrophic explosion."

Sir Henry Walker, reviewing the inquiry, commented on the evidence of witnesses called by the North Wales Mine Workers' Association, and stated:—"It was to the effect that for several months before the explosion the occurrences of gas in 14S. District were of a very grave character, and that there were present frequently, if not continuously, at the top end of the face, large bodies of gas in explosive proportions."

Some of the witnesses, however, drew little distinction between heat and gas. All, except one, based their evidence on general impression, and had not made any specific test by means of their flame safety lamps.

"UNEASY FEELING"

The Inspector recalled that Mr. Bonsall, the manager, declared that he had always found that he could get what he wanted in the way of money to carry out his wishes in regard to appliances and safety precautions.

"I have an uneasy feeling," Sir Henry went on, "that Bonsall was over-ridden. After a fall on May 24th the position became so precarious that drastic remedies should have been taken."

On the question of shot-firing, the Inspector said:—"My conclusion is that it was carried on in 14S. District with little regard for the requirements laid down in the Coal Mines Order. According to their evidence there were many workmen who not only saw the deputies and shot-firers breaking the law, but also assisted them in their offences.

"While officials who do not obey the regulations have no excuse, workmen who aid and abet these officials cannot be held to be free from blame."

DISTRESSING FEATURE

Sir Henry spoke of the evidence that men had been allowed to work longer hours than were permitted by the Coal Mines Regulations Act, 1908, and remarked: "The question of preventing the working of illegal overtime is one within the power of the men themselves and their trade unions, and I regret the increasing extent to which of recent years it has taken up the time of H.M. Inspectors, and encroached on their proper duties of attending to matters directly concerned with health and safety.

"It is a distressing feature of the inquiry that there were so many workmen who knew of, and were alarmed at, conditions which were considered dangerous and yet took no steps to secure for themselves or their fellow-workers the protection to which they were entitled."

Sir Henry said that he found no justification for imputing any neglect or incompetency on the part of H M. inspectors concerned.

Mr. Jones, in his report, alleged that Mr. William Bonsall, the manager, had been guilty of fourteen breaches of the Coal Mines Act, 1911, and that other officials had been guilty of "flagrant and persistent breaches" of the Act and regulations, and should be dealt with by the law.

OBITUARY

SIR H. MALLABY-DEELEY

Sir Harry Mallaby-Deeley, whose death at Cannes is reported by Reuter, was for more than a quarter of a century one of the most prominent figures in London's financial circles. He was a Napoleon of property deals, which brought him world-wide reputation. The biggest deal was his purchase of the Duke of Bedford's Covent Garden estate in 1913 for £2,000,000. The estate included freehold rights to private boxes at the Covent Garden Opera House, Drury Lane Theatre, and the Aldwych and Strand Theatres. It was afterwards sold to Sir Joseph Beecham. As a property dealer, Sir Harry's name became almost a legend. In a case in the High Court, the late Mr. Justice Darling remarked slyly: "Mr. Mallaby-Deeley has bought the rest of London, I suppose." In 1920 he became famous as the leader in tailoring on mass production lines. Sir Mallaby-Deeley had Irish associations in as much as his name was prominently associated with the ownership of a life interest in Carton, the Duke of Leinster's estate at Maynooth. His heir is Mr. Guy Meyrick Mallaby-Deeley, formerly a lieutenant in the 5th Dragoon Guards. He is thirty-nine years of age. The Funeral Service will be held on Monday at St. George's Memorial Church, Cannes. The body will be taken to England for interment.

After teaching for some time in England he was appointed Assistant Master of Cork Grammar School, where he worked for eleven years, after which he became curate at Clonegam, where he spent three years before being elected diocesan curate for Lismore and Waterford. In 1913 he became Treasurer of Waterford Cathedral for eight years, after which he became Rector of St. Patrick's and Ballinakill. DUBLIN HEALTH BOARD ESTIMATE

INCREASE OF £11,000

An estimate for the coming year of £94,700—an increase of £11,000 over last year—was submitted to a special meeting of the Dublin Board of Health by the Secretary, Mr. P. J. Murphy, yesterday.

As several members of the Board were absent through illness, consideration of the estimate was postponed until next Monday, when another special meeting will be held. The Secretary was instructed in the meantime to reduce, so far as he could, the estimate.

Mr. R. Blake presided at the meeting.

NEW CANONS FOR BORDEAUX

Last week one Titular Canon and eight Honorary Canons were installed in the Cathedral of Saint Andre, in Bordeaux. The Titular Canon was the Abbe Fauchey and the Honorary Canons were the Abbes Abadie, Tournier, Duchamps, Termos, Godet, Pouzet, Lagrave, and Moura. In addition to a large ecclesiastical attendance, the laity were present in great numbers. His Excellency the Archbishop of Bordeaux, Monsignor Feltin, presided amid the Chapter and the Honorary Canons. The Profession of Faith and a sermon against modernist tendencies were delivered by Canon Fauchey, after which the new Canons took part in the ceremony of the kissing of the altar. The music was sung by the huge choir behind the grand altar. In the absence of Father Giraudin, the Vicar-General, the new Canons were presented to their colleagues by the Vicar-General, Father Juilles, who expressed his good wishes for the well-being and spiritual advancement of each of the newly elected Canons. Afterwards the prayer to St. Andre was recited by each Canon in turn, who then took his place in the stall which had been appointed to him. Mass was said by the Abbe Fauchey, and afterwards the whole Chapter took part in the Office of Sext.

CHRISTIAN FRONT RESOLUTION

Following the opening session of the Irish Christian Front National Convention in the Ormond Hotel, Dublin, on Wednesday last, a second session was held in private, and a number of notices of motion were dealt with. Among the resolutions which were passed was the following, proposed by Lord ffrench, and seconded by Dr. C. O'Malley, Galway:—"That, while not desiring to embarrass the Government of this country, or to enter into any party political controversy, this convention is of opinion that this country should break off all relations with the Communist Government of Spain, and should recognise the National Government of that country, which, on the authority of the Cardinal Primate of Spain, is fighting the cause of Christ against the forces of anti-Christ."

George Frederick Howison, Mather road, Birkenhead, was returned for trial at the Commission when he appeared at the Belfast Custody Court yesterday, before Mr. H. Toppin, R.M., charged with stealing a cheque book and a pair of trousers, obtaining articles of clothing by means of a worthless cheque, and attempting to obtain articles by means of a worthless cheque.

BISECTED STAMPS

RARE BRITISH SPECIMENS

The keenest interest is being taken in philatelic circles in the sale of three of the most rare British stamps, which takes place on Saturday afternoon, February 13, at the offices of Mr. Robson Lowe, in London.

The stamps to be sold are the three twopenny blues, which nearly one hundred years ago a solicitor's clerk in the North of England bisected and used the halves as pennies. The Post Office conveyed the letters and accepted the half-stamps as adequate payment.

These three stamps are the only known bisected stamps of their kind, and there is in consequence no guide to value. Some indication of the worth of early bisected stamps may be obtained from the United States 10-cent stamp of 1847, of which seven bisected copies are known. These have been sold at prices ranging from £125 to £175, according to condition.

There is, therefore, the keenest interest and speculation as to the prices which will be realised by the more rare British bisects.

BRAY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

It seldom occurs that two stained glass windows are dedicated at one Service. The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Bray, have installed a window to commemorate the life and work of their late Minister, the Rev. Ernest James McKee, B.A., LL.D., which will be unveiled by Mrs. McKee at the 10.30 a.m. Service to-morrow.

The late Miss Elizabeth Jewell Austin, whose family were among some of the oldest members of the church, bequeathed a fund to provide a window in memory of her father and mother, the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Austin. This window will be unveiled by Miss Rose Austin.

The Service will be conducted by the Rev. John Knowles, B.A. (Tullylish), the Rev. A. W. Neill, M.A. (Armagh), and the Rev. R. Crossett, B.A., the Minister of the Church.

At Castlederg Petty Sessions yesterday, Robert H. Young, Ballyfolliard, was fined £10 for harbouring five head of cattle, alleged to have been smuggled. Mr. G. Murnaghan, defending, said defendant only tried to oblige other people.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

COURSE WATERLOGGED

Hurst Park Card Postponed: Call Boy's Owner Dead

LONDON, Friday.

RACING could not take place at Hurst Park yesterday owing to the amount of water on the course. There had been a lot of rain during the night and again this morning. When the Stewards inspected the course a portion of the track at the open ditch, near the river side, was found to be under water. Thereupon the Stewards decided it would be unsafe to race.

According to the usual procedure adopted under National Hunt Rules, the first day's card was postponed until to-morrow and the second day's programme abandoned.

The abandonment of the Saturday's programme is particularly unfortunate, as the meeting of Royal Mail, the present favourite for the Grand National, and Reynoldstown, dual winner of the big Aintree steeplechase, had been keenly anticipated. They were to contest the Hampton Court Steeplechase.

Trainer Disappointed

Major Furlong, owner of Reynoldstown, will be very disappointed, as he wished his charge to run for the Hurst Park race as part of his training before contesting the Gold Cup at Cheltenham. It was stated to-day that he will now meet one engagement before the Gold Cup, but which race that will be has not yet been decided. Reynoldstown had missed an engagement last week at Leicester on account of the bad state of the going, caused through rains.

Provided no more rain falls, prospects for racing to-morrow are considered fair. The Stewards will inspect the course at 10 a.m.

The R. E. Sassoon Memorial Steeplechase, one of the features of the abandoned programme, will be run at the March fixture. This race was carried forward to the March meeting last year, as this week's corresponding fixture of 1936 had to be abandoned in consequence of frost.

To-day's meeting was the seventh day lost to National Hunt racing this season. Earlier in the week racing at Warwick was postponed on account of the rain-soaked state of the course. Other meetings to suffer have been Gatwick (December 9), Kempton Park (December 26), Derby (January 18), Lingfield Park (January 21), and Newbury (January 30).

Call Boy's Stud Failure

Sir H. Mallaby-Deeley, whose death at Cannes was announced yesterday, will be remembered as the man who paid the record sum of £60,000 for the 1927 Derby winner, Call Boy, to prevent the horse being sold to go abroad. Call Boy was owned by Mr. Frank Curzon, a brother of Sir H. Mallaby-Deeley, when he won the Epsom "classic." Mr. Curzon died in July of the same year.

At the end of the season Call Boy was retired to the stud at a fee of 400 guineas. He was booked for several seasons at that fee, but he did not prove the success anticipated. His popularity with breeders declined to such an extent that in 1934 the mares which visited him numbered only five, despite the fact that his fee had been reduced to 48 sovs. During his short racing career Call Boy won four races and £19,062 in stake money.

BEL ET BON BEST BET

Lobau Gets Confident Vote for Roehampton Hurdle

IT is to be hoped that rain has not fallen in any quantity in the neighbourhood of Hurst Park overnight, as it might prevent the postponed card of Friday from being decided to-day. The Stewards, who reluctantly found the course in an unfit state for racing yesterday, will inspect the track again to-day at 10 a.m. In the event of racing being practicable conditions underfoot will be of an exceptionally heavy nature.

Mr. Whitelaw, who had sent Bel et Bon and Manteau Royal to run for respective engagements, has had to wait a day before seeing whether the promise of a "double" will duly materialise. Both horses have useful form and will represent me.

Especially am I enamoured of the chance of in the New Century 'Chase. I take him to be the best bet of the day. After a successful course of hurdling Bel et Bon proved that he was a jumper of merit when winning over the larger obstacles at Birmingham. Bel et Bon jumped without blemish, and eventually ran out an easy winner by ten lengths from Halftime Jimmy.

Veinarde, who has 1lb. less to carry than Bel et Bon, won a 'chase at Kempton Park recently. This was her first effort over the larger obstacles. She nearly lost the race through inexperience. It was only exceptional speed that enabled her to catch and pass Don Bosco on the flat.

Max, a usually safe jumper, fell at Newbury last Friday, when favourite for the Sefton 'Chase. He is not expected to repeat his lapse. His supporters may be right in giving him another chance.

The younger Sable Marten must be mentioned. He was far from disgraced at Lingfield, where he showed that, with more experience over the larger obstacles, he should soon be a force with which to reckon. Prior to this Sable Marten had won a hurdle race over the same course from a big field last November.

Manteau Royal was well fancied for Menton's race at Windsor last month. Menton won so easily then that too much notice need not be taken of the order in which those unplaced finished. In selecting for the Isis Hurdle, I prefer to rely on his form when second to the useful Lobau in a big field at Gatwick previously.

Tincture is a hurdler of promise, and advices from Newmarket speak highly in his favour. He is expected to improve on his fourth to Sculptress at the last meeting here.

Tuscus has not run since third to Citadel and Eastway at Newbury. The subsequent good displays of Citadel enhance the Newbury form of Tuscus.

Hill Song has made the journey from Middleham to contest the Roehampton Long Distance Hurdle. He may, however, find one too good for him in Lobau, to whom he is set to concede 4lb.

Lobau beat Manteau Royal, my selection for the Isis Hurdle, at Gatwick by five lengths. Through the smart Menton, who was fifth, I take this Gatwick race as representing form of a high class. Consequently is chosen with confidence.

I hear that the two Newmarket horses, Mandritsara and Penny-a-Liner, are expected to run well.

Holbeton Point, who has finished second in his last three races, may again find one too good for him in the Ranelagh 'Chase. I refer to Atlantic Blue, who was beaten two lengths by Golliwology at Gatwick on January 9th. In receipt of 9lb. from Holbeton Point, will run for me.

ATLANTIC BLUE

Only a small field will contest the opening event, the Imber Selling 'Chase. I favour the chances of who finished fifth in a higher-class race to Misdemeanour II. and Dryburgh at Windsor.

BOOZER'S GLOOM

may be capable of accounting for moderate opposition in the Motspur Selling Hurdle.

HUNTING

ISLAND HOUNDS

A sullen sky and cold east wind predominated when these hounds met at Clone on Friday, the 29th January, and "probably no scent" was the general verdict. The result, however, again upset the theorists and we had one of the best hunts of the season.

Finding almost at once in the big wood, our fox broke at the south end with hounds almost on his brush, they ran with a grand cry through the upper wood and across the road into Sinnott's land. Then right-handed through Killabeg and The Relm into Salsboro' woods and through Ballinabarna to Finchogue. They crossed the Enniscorthy-Oulart road into Drumgould and went through Gally and Crefogue to Brownswood covert, leaving which the quarry ran through Salville and Kilagolie, and swinging hight-handed to Springfarm, where he went to ground in a fence and was quickly evicted. The best point was seven miles. Time—1 hour and 10 minutes.

PROGRAMME FOR NAAS

NINETY RUNNERS

Red Freeman Fancied for the Handicap Steeplechase

Train—Kingsbridge, 1.30.

NINETY horses have been declared as runners for the Naas meeting this afternoon, which in itself is a guarantee that the racing will be of an attractive kind, as it always is at this venue. The fine weather of the past few days has helped to put the course in good galloping order and, provided there is a continuance of it, there should be a big attendance.

Tote Double on Fourth and Sixth Races.

The outstanding race is the Naas Steeplechase, for which the two top weights, Red Freeman and Lucky Fool, are among the declared runners. Both have shown good form recently, and Red Freeman's success in a flat race at Leopardstown showed that, as well as being a useful steeplechaser, he has a fair turn of speed. His last appearance in a steeplechase was when he won the Maiden Plate at Punchestown, and even though the Punchestown course may be the type more suited to him, he is sure to run well here. Jack's the Boy, another recent easy winner, must also hold a good chance, and others likely to show up well are Water Gipsy, Boherlug and Hot Prince. It is an open race and probably will be won by RED FREEMAN.

Galli Galli's name is missing from the declared runners for the Dublin Steeplechase, nor will Fair Outlook be a runner, and in the absence of this pair The Word may prove best.

Mariegoulde, who won several Scurry Plates during the flat racing season, is set a stiff task in the Kildare Hurdle race and may not beat Old French, who appears to be coming back to something like his best form.

Sir Jonah, if he misses his engagement in the Kildare Plate, should about win the Clane Plate, in which the chief danger to him may be Pretty Land. Up Sabre looks to have the winning of the Sallins Plate, and the Stewards' Plate may be left to Carrigdown. Selections:—

Kildare Plate—Old French.
Clane Plate—Sir Jonah.
Sallins Plate—Up Sabre.
Naas Plate—Red Freeman.
Dublin Plate—The Word.
Stewards' Plate—Carrigdown.

AMATEUR BOXING

FOR UNIVERSITIES' TITLES

BIG ENTRY FOR TO-DAY'S COMPETITIONS

One of the most interesting events of the Irish amateur boxing year will be the British Universities' and Hospitals' Championships, which commence with the preliminary series in the various weights at the Gymnasium, College Park, at 2.45 this afternoon. The finals will be held at Collins Barracks at 7.45 this evening. A full representative entry in most of the weights has been received from the English Universities, North and South, the University of Wales, and from the United Hospitals, while Trinity, University College, Dublin, University College, Cork, University College, Galway, and Queen's, Belfast, will all have men competing.

Trinity have a strong team this year, with outstanding men in Stafford, Craigie, and Graham, so they should make a big effort to regain the championship, which they have won frequently. Of the cross-Channel competitors, C. Halamandras in the light-weights and A. Luntz, the Liverpool heavy-weight, the probably outstanding, but the general standard at this meeting is high, and plenty of good, honest fighting, should be seen throughout the day. The entries are as follows:—

Fly—N. Lee (Leeds), R. N. Lewis (United Hospitals), C. McSweeny (London University), C. S. Jones (University of Wales), V. Stewart (Dublin University).

RUGBY FOOTBALL

SCOTS' FIRST MATCH

Irish Players Resting in View Of Twickenham

THE second stage of the international tournament will be entered on to-day, when Wales and Scotland meet at Swansea. Wales have already suffered a narrow defeat by England, and, apparently dissatisfied with the team's showing, the selectors made wholesale changes for to-day's game, no fewer than seven of the former side being dropped, including Claude Davey and W. H. Davies. Scotland, too, are experimenting, for their side includes six new caps, but it is believed that the team is a strong one and capable of lowering the colours of the Welshmen. Much will depend upon the forward battle, and the likelihood is that the Scottish eight will not prove such a formidable lot as the English pack. Provided the Welsh backs get even an equal service of the ball as their opponents they should be capable of turning it to winning advantage.

Of the five senior club matches arranged for Dublin that between Bective Rangers and Clontarf will likely provide the best game. The latter side will be without their internationals, G. L. Morgan and F. Moran, who are resting in view of Ireland's game with England at Twickenham next Saturday. L. B. McMahon will, for a similar reason, be missing from the Blackrock side playing Wanderers at Lansdowne road Palmerston will be visited by Lansdowne at Clonskeagh, and Monkstown meet Old Wesley at Sydney Parade. Dublin University will be at Cork, where they play the concluding match of their Southern tour against University College, Cork, and University College, Dublin, will be at home to Malone at Belfield.

GAELIC GAMES

THE RAILWAY CUP SEMI-FINAL

CONNAUGHT EXPECTED TO BEAT ULSTER

(BY PAT'O.)

At Carrick-on-Shannon the Connaught and Ulster football selections will line up on the new ground in the semi-final of the Railway Cup. Connaught, holders of the Cup, are firm favourites on the strength of Mayo's form at the end of the 1936 activities. Latest information from Ulster expresses more hope than confidence; a defeat of Connaught will be a big surprise. Ulster, however, have youth and enthusiasm on their side. I expect the challengers to set a fast pace, but do not think they can finish the hour with the same steadiness as their Western rivals. Teams are expected to line out as follows:—

Connaught—Burke (Mayo), goal; McGowan (do.), Quinn (do.), Kelly (do.); O'Regan (do.), Beggs (Galway), O'Sullivan (do.), Kenny (Mayo), Flannelly (do.); Carney (do.), Dunne (Galway), Laffey (Mayo), J. Munnelly (do.), Moclair (do.), Nestor (Galway).

A TEST

To-morrow's game will afford another test of the efficacy of a team-basis as opposed to a wide selection. Connaught fields eleven of Mayo's champion side with four Galwegians, while Ulster has picked the best footballers in the North irrespective of county. They were largely guided by form in back-end League games. All fifteen are skilled footballers; whether they can combine against the closely-fitting forces of Connaught or not remains to be seen.

O'Donnell and Doyle, of Donegal, Murphy (Armagh), and Boylan, McElroy and Crawley, of Monaghan, are all young footballers who have been prominent in current Leagues. There is a healthy leavening of experienced men in the side—Houlihan, Valelly, Dinneny. O'Reilly and Morgan are no strangers to Railway Cup finals. Connaught's better balance may qualify them for the final on March 17th. The other semi-final, Munster v. Leinster, is listed for Portlaoighise on February 21st.

Cork heads the Hurling League table, but they have dropped three points as against Limerick's two. The Garryowen men have a game in hand and should collect full points at Nowlan Park to-morrow. Kilkenny have no prospects in the League and may be reserving their talents for the bigger issues in mid-summer. They will be trying out some new men to-morrow, but Limerick will take no risks.

CORK'S TASK

Long road journeys in winter time lead to surprise results, and we may be prepared for heavy upsets of form in the later rounds of the League. Cork are set a formidable task at the Clare venue, beside Killaloe. Tipperary should win at Clonmel; Leix will extend Galway at Portumna, though the Leinster men are without a very brilliant attacker in Smeaton, who has gone to England.

The fact is that all our hurlers are palpably short of practice for many reasons—illness, wet pitches, want of competition. Accurate forecasts are impossible and teams will not be fit for a month or more.

In the Dublin Football League half-a-dozen attractive games are down for decision. Army Metro and St. Mary's will serve up a keen struggle at Saggard in the afternoon (2.30).

LEINSTER FINAL TO-DAY

Pembroke Wanderers' Chance In the Irish Cup

AFTER their long passage through the Leinster section of the Irish Senior Cup, Pembroke Wanderers should reap the reward of hard endeavour this afternoon at Londonbridge Road with a victory over Imperial Tobacco Co. This will be their seventh game in the section; one against Railway Union, four against Monkstown and one against Three Rock Rovers, with the seventh to-day. They are not a great side, but they are sound in defence, and at half-back, and they have in R. P. Martin one of the few Leinster forwards who can get goals consistently. They will hardly make the same mistake as Corinthians of taking to-day's opponents too lightly, for with Sanderson in the centre and Wilson at full-back, Imperials can be a dangerous side, and the battle between the centre-halves, Power and Sanderson, should be extremely worth watching. Imperials have not got sufficient strength in attack to make it more than an interesting game.

There will be four League matches also, of which the best will be at Park avenue, where Railway Union meet Dublin University. It will be the first meeting between these two in this season's competition; as on a previous date the match was postponed, and as Railway have not been convincing lately, Trinity ought to get both points. Corinthians should keep pace with their University rivals by beating St. James's Gate, and Naas and Monkstown may overcome Dalkey and Avoca School respectively.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

FREE STATE CUP TIES

To-morrow's Test Between Sligo And St. James's Gate

WITH the Free State League pursuing a rather one-sided course, public interest will centre even more keenly than usual on the struggle for the Cup, the second round of which will take place to-morrow. Of the four ties, only one is in Dublin; but, as it happens to be the most attractive of the lot, the St. James's Gate enclosure at Crumlin will hardly hold all those who will want to see it. Sligo Rovers, the outstanding team in the Free State League, will be the draw, but it is fairly certain that they will have their work cut out to beat St. James's Gate and advance to the semi-final of the competition.

Up to last Sunday it really did look as if Sligo were invincible. Not only had they won all eleven matches comprising the first round of the League, but they had been successful by most convincing margins in the majority of cases. Then came the sudden and astonishing collapse of the defence, Waterford putting in eight goals at Kilcohan Park, and the bubble, to some extent, was pricked. St. James's Gate are good Cup-fighters, as was evidenced by their capture of the Leinster Senior trophy, and, in addition, they are good footballers; so, provided that both teams do not suffer from a violent attack of "Cup nerves," a splendid game should be witnessed.

TEAM-WORK TELLS

To no one man can Sligo point as a reason for their remarkable spell of success—perfect team-work has been the feature; but in Litherland they do possess the most thrustful centre-forward in the Free State, and Monaghan and Gourlay are always a menace on the wings. The halves are constructive, but the defence can be beaten, as Waterford showed. If they strike their best form, the Gate forwards can get goals; but, while their defence is quite sound, the eleven, as a whole, is hardly as smooth in combination as Sligo. Provided the latter have not lost confidence after their failure last week, they ought to just pull through.

Waterford stages the next tie in order of importance; for the home side, buoyed up by their recent performance, will have high hopes of disposing of the holders, Shamrock Rovers. They lack consistency, but are capable of extremely clever football which brings goals, and, like Sligo, their centre-forward, Walsh, and the wingers, O'Keeffe and McGoorty, are the men to watch. Rovers have not been convincing in any of the competitions so far this season, but they have a habit of rising to unexpected heights in the Cup, which they have almost made their property, and they will not go under easily, although they will find it difficult to avoid defeat.

FEARON'S AT CORK

In the other two ties, a team from the Free State League will meet an opponent from a lower grade, but Cork, even on their own territory, will find Fearon's Athletic of their own calibre. The Leinster League XI. have already two victories to their credit over senior opposition in Bray Unknowns and Brideville, and in every department are a more than useful lot. Cork are not a convincing side, but they may prove too experienced and strong to-morrow. Drumcondra travel to Longford to meet the local side, and they seem likely to qualify for the next stage.

There are two League games down for decision also, Brideville being engaged in both. They meet Shelbourne at Harold's Cross to-day, and Bray Unknowns at Bray to-morrow.

COURSING

THE DOG PUPPY FINALS

Hares Short: Stakes Divided At Newbridge

BY OUR COURSING CORRESPONDENT.

THE final of the Champion Puppy Stakes for the sixteen dogs qualified at the open country meetings during the season, and the Faircross Stakes for sixteen all-ages would, as it turned out, have filled in the day nicely at Newbridge yesterday; but with hares coming slowly to hand from beginning to end the Coolreagh Stakes for eight "duffers" upset the plans of the executive, and compulsory divisions, the result of failing light, were the outcome of the longest day we have had in the open this season. We had a lot of walking, and eight beats were called on, but it was a delightful afternoon, and generally the trials were of a high standard, although many hares showed the effects of their wet and sodden surroundings.

The dividers in the Puppy Stakes were the Trim winner, Autumn Pine and Careful Paddy, who qualified on the Newbridge preserves. The latter in his second round course put out the fancied Mellow Cutlet in one of the closest things of the day, the red collar getting the turn by a couple of lengths, and Mellow Cutlet, as the hare broke back, taking the second and the kill. Autumn Pine's best display was given against Model Type in the first round, beating him well at his own game behind a jerky hare, but he also ran a stylish second course with Clever Care, against whom he revealed his best pace. Hidden Talent had a very heavy first course with Cos in Airde, in which the Summerhill puppy stayed on a bit the better, and, although he got off lightly the second time the grueller at Faircross showed its effects when he went to slips with Autumn Pine.

Laurel Road, the Kerry qualifier for the Irish Derby at Powerstown Park, who won a good stake at St. Margarets, proved his versatility here. Nothing went up anything like as fast as he, and had the Faircross Stakes been run out he must have romped through. He also has a good mouth, and brought down his hares at the first drive. He had nothing to do in his first course, as Royal Line took hysteria in the run up, and was disqualified by the judge. Mary's Book, one of the four dividers, may have been lucky in his first course with Moleskin Myra, who swung away to the left when slipped and had no chance of fighting it out for the turn. Nomen Alterum raised two good flags and seemed to be going fast.

DOYLE'S FIGHT POSTPONED

TO MEET JIM WILDE ON MONDAY WEEK

Postponement has solved the difficulties of the National Sporting Club in connection with the ten rounds contest between Jack Doyle, the Irish heavy-weight, and Jim Wilde (Swansea), arranged for Monday. They will now meet a week later, February 15, and it has been arranged that the fight between Jimmy Walsh, light-weight champion, and Dave Crowley, already fixed for Monday week, will be included in the same programme. Efforts to obtain the services of Harry Staal, Dutch champion, as substitute for Wilde, who has been ill with influenza, ended in failure.

Mr. John Harding, general manager of the N.S.C., said yesterday that, in view of Wilde's illness, the Board decided that rather than risk disappointment to their patrons by would withdraw next Monday's show. Staal fought Jack London at York on Wednesday, and he felt unable to undertake another contest at such short notice.

Wilde was examined by a doctor yesterday at Swansea, and it was stated that he will be fit for February 15. Seven thousand tickets have been sold for the contest, and an official said that these tickets will be valid for February 15.

CRICKET

BRADMAN ON FIFTH TEST CHANCES

RICHARDSON SUGGESTS GRIMMETT FOR RIGG

ADELAIDE, Friday.

A. E. Fagg, the Kent batsman, has a swollen knee and has gone into a private hospital here, where he will remain probably for a fortnight. The doctors who are attending him say that there is no need to worry, but rest and treatment are necessary.

Don Bradman says that Australia, though they are elated at their success in the Test which ended yesterday, must not be carried away. The winning of the toss will give a tremendous advantage in the fifth Test, and there is likely to be a very close fight. Bradman's finger muscle is still troublesome, but is likely to be better within a week.

A P.A. Foreign Special message from Melbourne states:—Discussions on the composition of the Australian team for the fifth Test match, which begins on February 26, generally are in favour of making no change in the winning team, but Victor Richardson, the ex-captain of Australia, writing in the Age, advocates the replacing of K. Rigg. the Victorian batsman, by the veteran Test bowler, C. V. Grimmett.

The Herald's cricketing correspondent, on the other hand, considers that it would be unwise to weaken the batting and suggests that Rigg's excellent record on his home ground, Melbourne, should ensure his preserving his place. In the match just ended at Adelaide Rigg scored 20 runs in the first innings and seven in the second.

ST. GEORGE'S BRASS BAND

INAUGURAL CONCERT

It was gratifying to see such a large audience at the Metropolitan Hall, Lower Abbey street, for the inaugural concert given by the St. George's Brass Band, and it is to be hoped that such encouragement is a good augury for the future. This latest musical organisation has been brought into existence mainly through the enthusiastic efforts of Mr. C. G. Bannister, and its object is to encourage the growth in Dublin and throughout the Free State of brass bands, as distinct from brass and reed bands. There is no other purely brass band in the city, and when one considers that within a fifteen-mile radius of the centre of Manchester there are upwards of 60,000 members of brass bands it seems strange that there are not at least a few brass bands in Dublin and district.

It looks, however, as if the new band is going to supply a need and be an incentive to others to follow its example. It is fortunate to have at the helm a conductor who is such an enthusiast. Mr. Bannister himself plays all the brass instruments, and has won many prizes at the Feis Ceoil. In addition, he is the officially appointed assistant teacher of the Bandsmen's College of Music, Manchester, and assistant conductor of the Musical Art Society, Dublin.

The members of the band, who number twenty-six, range in age from eighteen years upwards, and, with one solitary exception, are all his own pupils. That they have been instructed along the right lines was manifest in their performance last night.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAMME

A feature that impressed itself on many members of the audience was the musical discernment shown in the selection of the programme. It was interesting, for example, to find as an item an excerpt from Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, arranged by the conductor for brass band—quite a clever arrangement, too

Of course, the playing was not exactly perfect; there were some unintentional effects in the opening march, "The Standard of St. George," by K. J. Alford. The cornets were not quite happy or unanimous, and the horns were also guilty of lapses, but the occasion possibly accounted for a good deal of the uncertainty. Generally the tone was bright and pleasant and not forced. They improved all-round in the playing of the Overture to Schubert's "Rosamunde," arranged by W. G. Chapman, and one readily pardoned minor lapses in such a difficult work. In the straightforward waltz, "Frou Frou," by H. Chatau, they were quite good, the three-four time and easy flow of the music showing the band in favourable colours. There was quite a delightful atmosphere also in their treatment of the Gavotte, "Premier Bonheur," by Salabert, and in a later Schubert "Suite." Other items in the programme included the Prelude from the third act of Wagner's "Mastersingers," the "Nimrod" excerpt, by Denis Wright, from Elgar's "Enigma" Variations, and at the conclusion Professor O'Dwyer's stirring Irish march, "Terna," arranged by the conductor.

As an example of the possibilities of the band, they played the accompaniment, specially arranged, of the Handel aria, "Where'er you walk," which was sung by Mr. John Davidson, and the voice part held its own quite well. The band also played the accompaniment for an encore song "All for a maiden fair."

The inaugural performance certainly was a great success, and if the band holds together it seems destined to have a very successful future.

BANDMASTER'S LIBEL ACTION

BELFAST, Friday.

Leave to serve subpœnas out of the jurisdiction of the Court on two British Army bandmasters and a former Commandant at Kneller Hall, the Army's music headquarters, was granted in the Northern High Court to-day.

The subpœnas are in connection with a pending libel action by Mr. Owen W. Gearly, former bandmaster of the First Battalion, Border Regiment, against Mr. E. Godfrey Brown, musical director of the Northern Ireland station of the B.B.C.

R. F. Gough, the well-known National Hunt jockey, whose leg was broken when Gomar fell with him in a steeplechase at Sandown Park in October last, will not be able to ride this season. The leg is not yielding to treatment.

Financial News & Notes

DUBLIN QUIET

BANK OF IRELAND ADVANCE

BRITISH INDUSTRIALS CHEERFUL

Markets closed on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday in extremely quiet fashion, but despite the lack of interest a firm tone prevailed.

The Free State Funds held steady to firm and the Second National Loan gained 10s. There was a little selling of Land Bonds, and they eased to 109 15/16, British Funds continued to improve and War Loan rose 5s.

Banks enjoyed fresh support, and Bank of Ireland stock advanced 2½ points, while Provincial Old recovered 1s. 6d.

Guinness failed to quote, but they looked sellers. Distillers Ord. gave way to 117s. 3d

The only movement in Rails was the sharp fall of 1½ points in Great Southern Guaranteed.

Dublin Tram Ord. eased to 13s. 6d.

Crowe Wilson Ord. dipped to 10s., but Todd Burns Pref. gained 1s.

Cement issues inclined higher and other local industrial changes, although small, were mostly in the upward direction.

Imperial Tobaccos did not change hands here, but advised good and closed buyers at 164s., with no shares offering under 165s. 3d.

Textiles were almost lifeless, and Calico Printers Ord. eased to 14s. 4½d.

Emmies spurted to 26s. 1½d. and Unilever Ord. made good headway, while Imperial Chemicals were the turn harder.

LONDON CHEERFUL

ARGENTINE RAILS SUPPORTED

A fairly considerable volume of business was transacted on the London Stock Markets yesterday, and although quotations in some sections fluctuated irregularly because of week-end profit-taking, conditions remained cheerful. sentiment being assisted by the sustained firmness of gilt-edged securities. Industrials, apart from weakness in Baird Television issues, following the announcement that the Marconi E.M.I. television system is to be used at Alexandra Palace, made a good showing, with Iron and Steels, Coal shares, and Cable stocks featuring, while numerous Kaffirs attracted speculative attention. Oil shares, after making fresh headway, eased off in the late dealings, but the Argentine Rail group exhibited a definitely stronger tone owing to the improved conditions in the country.

BRITISH FUNDS.

Initial dealings witnessed persistent investment buying of gilt-edged stocks, and dealers again marked prices higher all round. Subsequently, the market became quieter, and the best levels were not maintained. Nevertheless, Conversion Threes finished ¼ to the good, while advances were shown by Victory Bonds, Funding Fours, and others. India stocks came in for renewed attention, and also reached higher levels

FOREIGN BONDS.

The chief point of interest in Foreign Bonds was firmness of Brazilians. Certain Far-Easterns attracted support, but dealings were too limited to have much effect on quotations. A modest inquiry for Belgian Fours was the only noteworthy feature among Europeans, where Germans came on offer and closed dull.

RAILS.

Business in British Rails was practically non-existent, operators generally preferring to await the dividend announcements before entering into fresh commitments. L.M.S. Ord. lost the turn, and London Transport "C" were inclined to weaken, following the interim decision, but other stocks were maintained. Foreign Rails, after being idle for some days, changed hands freely, and Argentines went ahead all round, following the B. A. and Pacific and Argentine Great Western announcements. B.A. and Western jumped from 26½ to 29, and point gains occurred in "Bags" and several others. Cordoba Centrals also were prominently firm, and Entre Rios Pref. scored a smart rise. Colonials presented an easier appearance, but American Rails received support, and maintained an upward tendency.

INDUSTRIALS.

In the Industrial market considerable attention was directed to Television shares. Baird issues moved narrowly at first, but later the Deferred slumped, while the Preferred closed 9d. down. "Emmies" came in for speculative support, and finished strong. Cable and Wireless stocks continued to enjoy support, and Coal shares, stimulated by the Bolsover dividend and bonus, developed a firm undertone. Several of the leading Iron and Steel shares appreciated in response to active buying, and favourable movements were the rule in the Tobacco, Brewery, and Shipping groups. Aircrafts and Motors also went better in places, and the Textile section supplied some firm spots.

MINES.

With business less brisk, Mines became irregular in places, but Diamond shares went ahead on optimistic reports from Amsterdam, and many Kaffirs were in demand. "Writs" attracted particular attention, while West Wits, Randfontein, and Lace Props. also advanced. Goldfields were bought on bonus talk. West Africans provided little of interest, and Rhodesian Coppers eased off owing to lack of fresh interest.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET

Although business was not particularly brisk in the American section of the "street" market last evening, adverse Wall Street advices caused a rather sharp reaction in most of the leading issues.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

FURTHER BRIGHT FEATURES

Although business in the Industrial market remained on a moderate scale yesterday, there were a number of bright features. A little profit-taking, however, was noticeable towards the close. With Wall street in a selling mood the trans-Atlantic counters suffered a set-back in the late dealings. "Emmies" went ahead to 27s. 1½d. at one time on the official television plans, but they reacted later to 26s. 9d., which, however, left them 1s. 3d. up on balance. On the other hand, Baird issues were weak, the Defd. falling to 2s. 1½d. and the Pref. to 1s. 3d.

Firmness was displayed in the Iron and Steel section, profit-taking in those shares which had advanced during the week meeting with good resistance. Pressed Steel were in strong request, and put on 1s. Vickers met with buyers, and rose 7½d. to 36s., and T. W. Ward also improved 7½d. to 36s. 3d.

A firm tone was in evidence among Electrical Equipments. A keen demand arose for British Insulated on bonus hopes, and they advanced 2s to 134s. 6d.

AIRCRAFTS BETTER.

A firmer tone ruled among the Aircrafts, but changes as a rule were of small importance. Parnalls were a shade harder at 12s. 9d.

Little of interest occurred among the Motors, but a generally firm tone prevailed. Triplex Glass reacted to 8 7/16 following their previous sharp rise.

In the Textile group Lancashire Cotton Corporation New Ord. were in strong demand, and jumped 2s. 6d. to 23s. Dealings started in the New 5 per cent. 5s. Pref. shares and 5 per cent. Deb. stock, which closed at 23s. and 99, respectively.

Among Rayons, Courtaulds touched 57s. 6d. at one time on dividend hopes, but closed at 57s. 3d. Canadian Celanese went further ahead to 5½, but the American issue fell back to 6 1/16.

Stores issues were not particularly active.

Among Provision and Catering issues Scribbans and Spiers and Pond recovered.

Breweries received moderate support. Bass, Ratcliff improved 1s., and gains of 6d. were recorded by Guinness and several others.

TOBACCOS STRONGER.

Tobaccos came in for further attention under the lead of Gallahers, which closed 1/16 higher at 7¼, in anticipation of the annual report. "Imps" strengthened further to 8 9/32, and fresh buyers appeared for United Souths, the Ord. improving to 10 7/16 and the Def. to 10¼. Carreras "A" gained the turn.

Most of the interest in the Insurance section centred around Prudential issues on the increased distribution; the "A" shares advanced 5/16, and the "B" shares 2s. 6d. to 112s. 6d.

Although Miscellaneous issues continued to move irregularly, the tone, as a whole, was satisfactory. Turner and Newall came into renewed request, and there was a fair demand for Cape Asbestos Ord., which were eventually 1s. 6d. to the good. British Oxygens also showed to advantage. In other directions, British Ropes received a reasonable amount of support in anticipation of the annual result, finishing with a gain of 1s. 4½d. at 15s. 3d.

REDUCTION IN TURNOVER IN OILS

Following the activity of the earlier days of the week, the Oil Share Market had a tired appearance yesterday, and there was a tendency on the part of professional operators to take profits. Business, however, was still on a good scale, and it was noticeable that, while a certain amount of selling was in progress, the market was resistant to realisations, and generally prices reacted to only a slight extent.

RUBBERS SMALL

Although commodity conditions operated favourably on sentiment in the Rubber Share market yesterday, few operators displayed any inclination to open fresh commitments immediately prior to the week-end. Business reained on an extremely small scale, but as sellers were conspicuous by their absence and prices generally maintained a steady tendency, a few of the leading counters were able to show small gains. More activity was witnesssed in the commodity section, and spot rubber up to 10½d. per lb. A fall of 2,925 tons this week in rubber stocks in Britain is expected to be shown in Monday's figures. A big shipment to Russia is anticipated.

IMPERIAL TOBACCO COMPANY

TRADING PROFIT OF £10,642,952

INCREASE £368,348

A net trading profit of £10,642,952 is shown in the report of the directors of the Imperial Tobacco Co. for the year ended October 31, 1936. The net trading profit for 1934-35 amounted to £10,274,604.

FROM OUR LONDON FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

The expansion in the net trading profit of the Imperial Tobacco Co. for the year to October last is in accordance with the estimate formed when the preliminary figures were announced last month. The amount is returned at £10,642,952, an increase of £368,348. As already announced, the tax free distribution is raised from 24 to 25 per cent., while, although the allocation to general reserve is reduced from £500,000 to £250,000, the carry forward is £143,000 larger.

Interest in the report mainly centres in the changes shown in the balance sheet. The stock, including leaf in transit and advances to branches abroad for the purchase of leaf, etc., is returned at £33,304,786, an increase of fully £2,000,000, while the item of land, buildings, plant, etc., is £150,000 higher at £4,962,703, and there is a small increase in the investments in subsidiary and associated companies to £12,111,012. With respect to the last-named, it is again stated that in the aggregate the market value of the investments in associated companies is largely in excess of the book value. Government and other securities show a decrease of £2,776,000 at £7,702,771, the market value on October 31 last having been £8,240,098. Cash is £189,000 lower at £3,640,744.

The general reserve has been raised to £6,750,000. In anticipation of the issue of the report Imperial Tobacco Ordinary stock units yesterday rose to over 8¼.

The price of gold rose yesterday 2½d. to 142s. 2½d. per fine oz., including a premium of 1d. over the dollar, at 4.89¼. About £301,000 was disposed of in the market.

Silver recovered ⅛d. on Indian buying to 20 1/16d. per oz. for spot and 20d. for forward delivery.

Short loans were in quiet demand at ½ p.c., while bill rates were steady, fine three months' paper being quoted at 11/16 to ⅝ p.c.

The transfer of the first instalment of the French credit was made yesterday, but this had no effect upon rates.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

The renewed flight of French capital to foreign centres dominated the Foreign Exchange Market yesterday. As before, the French "control" concentrated its operations in the Paris market, and the bulk of the day's business in francs was transacted in that centre. At the same time, a pronounced demand for dollars on Continental account was apparent in the London market throughout the day, ad the British authorities found it necessary to intervene vigorously in the market to avert a marked fall in the value of sterling in relation to the dollar. The franc itself opened with a very weak tendency, but when the exchange passed the old official "peg" the French authorities intervened on a large scale, and maintained a determined resistance to a further depreciation for the remainder of the day. Most of the European currencies other than the franc had a similar trend to the dollar, early improvements in relation to sterling being more or less lost by the close.

LONDON MINING MARKET

KAFFIRS CONTINUE ACTIVE

As usual on the last working day of the week, the Mining market presented a quiet appearance yesterday. In the Kaffir department the newly-introduced "Writs" still commanded a considerable amount of attention, and, despite profit-taking, the fresh demand on home, Johannesburg and, to a certain extent, Paris account was sufficient to lift the price to over 1¾, the best price so far reached. The demand for the shares was well maintained.

Western descriptions generally maintained their popularity, and West Wits and several others went ahead, the prices in Johannesburg being mostly well ahead of those ruling on this side.

Among the producers, East Rand Props continued in strong request, and Geduld were also being bought for investment, while Randfontein enjoyed a sharp advance. The finance descriptions were also well in evidence.

Altogether, this department made quite a good showing at the close.

Interest in Rhodesians was inclined to dwindle. The Copper descriptions made a good start, but business was lacking, and later a fairly general set-back was witnessed. The shrinkages, however, were nowhere of importance and simply reflected a change of sentiment. The price of the metal was slightly harder. Chartered, in anticipation of a good report, were again being bought, and the Gold shares generally kept firm.

The leading Australians claimed very little attention. Barriers were quiet, and in the Miscellaneous section Indians were irregular, and Trepca eased on a little profit-taking. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Allied Bakeries' Capital Increase

Shareholders of Allied Bakeries, Ltd., approved, at an extraordinary general meeting held in London, resolutions increasing the capital of the company from £1,000,000 to £1,750,000 by the creation of 250,000 additional 5½ per cent. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each and 2,000,000 additional Ordinary shares of 5s. each. Mr. W. Garfield Weston, the chairman, explaining the reasons for the desired new capital, said that some months ago the company purchased the modern up-to-date business of J. Newbold and Sons, of Bradford, and circumstances had arisen which made the provision of additional capital imperative. Part of the additional capital was required in connection with a purchase which had been in negotiation for some time and was completed finally that morning. The company had purchased the business of R. Sharrock and Sons, of Manchester. The terms of the purchase were favourable to Allied Bakeries.

Rubber Trust Capital Increase

The directors of Rubber Plantations Investment Trust, Ltd., having made an offer to the shareholders of the Sumatra Tea Estates, Ltd., to exchange one Trust share for every two Sumatra Tea shares, it will be necessary to increase the capital of the Trust in order to give effect to this amalgamation. Accordingly, an extraordinary general meeting has been convened for February 12 for the purpose of increasing the capital to £2,750,000 by the creation of 250,000 shares of £1 each, convertible into stock on allotment.

Under the Weather

For years the Val de Travers Paving Co., Ltd., paid dividends of 10 per cent. per annum, but the dividend began to decline from 1930. The distribution for 1931 was 6¼ per cent., and for 1932 2½ per cent., since when nothing has been forthcoming. The company is one of the oldest joint stock companies, having been created in 1871. No dividend was paid in 1933, 1934 and 1935, and in the last-named year a net loss of £46,000 was incurred, which was mostly due to depreciation and special charges arising out of the measures adopted by the new management. A large proportion of the business is with Germany and Italy, and conditions have not been happy. The report for the year 1936 will not be available until May.

Wall Street and U.S. Steel

Wall street and Throgmorton street are at the present time vieing with each other in their speculative fervour. On the other side the movement is proceeding under cover of the boomlet in U.S. Steel shares, which are at their highest price since 1931. One of the stimulating reports is that the Steel Corporation are considering new financing to provide for £20,000,000 expenditure on new plant and extensions, and that the new capital will be offered to shareholders on bonus terms. One comment is that anyone who buys the shares at their present high price will be giving hostages to fortune.

Flight from the Franc

It is stated that a drop of approximately £28,500,000 in the gold reserve of the Bank of France, shown in the last return, was due to a withdrawal of that amount by the Exchange Equalisation Fund, suggesting that the resources of that account have been strained in the process of preventing undue fluctuations in the French exchange. For spot business the rate is pegged at about 105¼, but yesterday the discount on forward francs for three months advanced to over 3 1/16 discount, equivalent to a high interest rate. It is evident also that the Treasury is compelled to borrow from the Bank of France, despite the credit recently arranged in London. A fresh flight from the franc points to the possibility of a further official devaluation of that currency at least to the limit allowed by the present law.

Clarence Hotels Co.

The fortieth ordinary general meeting of the Clarence Hotels Co., Ltd., was held yesterday at the Clarence Hotel. Mrs. C. M. Murphy presided. Dividends of 6 per cent. on the Preference shares and 8 per cent. on the Ordinary shares were declared. Mr. M. D. O'Brien was re-elected director and Messrs. Craig, Gardner and Co. were elected auditors. The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the directors and management for the very successful manner in which the company's business has been conducted.

ROOSEVELT'S "BOMBSHELL" DEPRESSES WALL STREET

Reuter's Telegrams.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Wall Street was completely surprised by Mr. Roosevelt's sudden message to Congress anent the reconstitution of the United States Supreme Court. The "ticker" fell five minutes behind the floor, as nervous operators lightened their commitments pending study of the Presidential move. Opinion was diversified regarding the ultimate effect on the market of this demarché, and prices fluctuated widely in the later dealings. Though the list moved above the day's low levels, the close was weak. Sales totalled 3,320,000 shares—the heaviest total for three months.

The market closed weak. Losses of fractions to two dollars were recorded by the Steel, Farm Implement, and Industrial divisions, with particular heaviness in Allied Chemical, Deere, and Timken Roller.

Sterling Exchange opened ½ down at 4.88 11/32, but improved to 4.89¼ during the morning. The rate dropped to 4.89 1/32 in the afternoon, but finally advanced, and closed ⅛ lower—compared with the previous close—at 4.89 7/32.

Silver was unchanged at 44¾.

APPOINTMENT OF AN ASSIGNEE

INTERESTING BELFAST CASE

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

There was a further development in the bankruptcy proceedings concerning the affairs of W. H. Gransden, sole partner of the firm of Messrs. M'Giffin and Stoney, stockbrokers, Donegall Chambers, Belfast, in the High Court, Belfast, to-day, before Mr. Justice Brown.

Mr. J. D. Condy, who appeared for Messrs. Robert Easton and Son, stockbrokers, Glasgow, applied to have Mr. H. Trevor Montgomery appointed as Creditors' Assignee, and mentioned that he represented creditors to the extent of £27,757.

Mr. Warnock said that he represented Mr. Megaw and other creditors to the total of £23,435. He objected to the appointment of Mr. Montgomery. He admitted that Mr. Condy represented creditors for a larger amount, and was entitled to nominate a Creditors' Assignee, unless his lordship was satisfied that it would be in the better interests of the estate that some other person should be appointed.

His Lordship—Whom do you want appointed?

Mr. Warnock—Mr. W. L. Gorman.

Proceeding, Mr. Warnock said he had received a copy of the account of Mr. Gransden with Messrs. Easton, and it was an amazing document, as his lordship would see, when he told him that between November 30 and December 11 Mr. Gransden's open account with Messrs. Easton was for £169,000. That was in less than fourteen days. In addition to that, he had an option account, which amounted to £15,122 between September and December. He thought his lordship would have very little difficulty in coming to the conclusion that these were gambling transactions. The person appointed as Assignee would have to contend that these were gambling transactions. On the facts as indicated, he had advised his clients that the transactions ought to be investigated, and if they were the nominee of Messrs. Easton was not the person to be appointed.

The figures he had given alone were sufficient to create the strongest suspicion, and he suggested that it never was intended, either by Messrs. Easton or Mr. Gransden, that these shares should be taken up.

The bankrupt, giving evidence, said that he had been dealing with Messrs. Eastons for a considerable time.

Mr. Warnock—I see from your account that between certain dates you had transactions with Messrs. Easton amounting to £169,000?—Yes, according to the statement.

Am I right in saying that a relatively small portion of these shares were actually bought by you during that period?—That is quite right. They are mainly carry-over transactions.

His Lordship—Does that mean that you had no intention of taking up the stock?—No, none whatever.

Mr. Warnock—And the great majority of these transactions do not represent transactions for clients? They were transactions of your own?—Most of them. Some were for clients.

Did they hold security which represented this as cover?—No, There was no question of holding security. It was purely a question of speculation on contango.

His Lordship—They did not buy the stocks?—They bought the stocks and held them until the end of the account.

Mr. Warnock—There was no intention on your part of taking up the stock?—No; none whatever.

And Messrs. Easton knew that?—Certainly.

The case was adjourned for a fortnight.

BELFAST "RENT STRIKE"

DECREES FOR POSSESSION

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

Two Sheriff's bailiffs who failed to enforce an ejectment order for possession of a house at the Glenard estate, Ardoyne, Belfast, on Thursday made an attempt to-day to reach an agreement with the tenant whereby the house would be vacated. When Mr. Robert Henderson, Under-Sheriff, a bailiff and several policemen went to the house at Glenard Drive a crowd of about 200 people, anticipating another siege, gathered and greeted them with derisive cheers. Mr. Henderson talked with the tenant for some time, but subsequently went away.

Four other tenants of the estate, all stated to be no-rent strikers, were at the Belfast Summons Court to-day ordered to be evicted. They were:—Edward Hill, 110 Ardglen Gardens; Thomas Dooley, 113 Glenard Drive; Patrick Murray, 141 Glenard Drive, and Thomas Geehan, 141 Glenard Park.

Mr. P. Gorfunkle, for the agent of the estate, Frederick McKibbin, F.A.I., said that it was not a question with these people of not being able to pay the rent; it was a case of their refusing to pay.

Murray, whose case was the first to be called, said that he had refused to pay until the condition of the houses was rectified.

Mr. McWilliam, R.M.—I am not going to hear any more of that. I give a decree.

LAST NIGHT'S DANCES

SOUTH COUNTY DUBLIN HARRIERS

The South County Dublin Harriers' Hunt dance, which was held at Woodtown Park, Rathfarnham, last night, was highly successful, and went with all the swing and gaiety of former years. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey very kindly lent Woodtown Park for the occasion. A large number of the members of the South County Dublin Harriers and other hunts were present.

Mrs. Harvey spared herself no trouble during the evening, and saw to the enjoyment of those present. She was wearing a pretty apricot-coloured satin frock, tied with a wide sash of the same material. Mrs. Sean MacEntee came in a royal blue crepe frock, and Mrs. Larminie's dress was of black cloque, worn with a coatee of the same material, and livened with a spray of pink carnations. Black was also worn by Mrs. Wilson; her frock was of black chiffon, cut on Princess lines. Dark brown velvet was worn by Miss Sheila Meyers, and an unusual frock of mauve satin was worn by her sister, Miss Olga Meyers. Mrs. Luce was rather a late arrival; her pretty frock was of navy blue taffeta. A royal blue satin frock was worn by Miss A. Duff, and a lovely white cloque, one with a red floral design, was worn by Miss Manning.

PEARSE STREET FIRE

EVIDENCE TAKEN FROM EXPERTS

In the sense that he had never known of a fire occurring previously where gas cylinders were stored, the outbreak at Pearse street was unique, said Mr. E. C. McKinnon, chief engineer, Chloride Electrical Storage Co., Ltd., England, in his evidence before the Pearse Street Fire Tribunal in the Four Courts yesterday.

Referring to the charging of batteries, he said that he had never heard of an explosion in a battery-charging department, and he did not think that such an explosion was on record.

In reply to Mr. D. Fawsitt, for the Attorney-General, the witness said that celluloid battery-cases would not light up quickly, but would smoulder slowly.

Mr. Alan K. Jackson, electrical engineer, said that he examined the electrical installation at 164 Pearse street in 1933, and he reported at that time that the wiring was unsatisfactory. He took out the wiring completely, and installed new circuits, which were proved satisfactory on test.

CYLINDER TESTS

Mr. Samuel Warnock Aitken, manager, Industrial Gas Company, Irish Free State, described the various tests to which the cylinders found in the Pearse street building after the fire were subjected, and the dates on which they were tested. The coal-gas cylinder was, he said, filled in Belfast.

To Mr. McGuckin, he said that there were no Board of Trade regulations governing the handling of cylinders, but there were recommendations issued by the British engineering standard associations, which were observed in England and in this country. The oxygen cylinder was made in Germany, and that which contained the coal-gas was produced in Britain.

The Tribunal adjourned until 10.30 a.m. to-day.

CONGREGATIONAL YOUTH DRAMATIC SOCIETY

The Congregational Youth Dramatic Society played very successfully the farce, "Happy Days," by Wilfred Massey, in the Lecture Hall of York Street Congregational Church, Dublin, last night, and will give a second performance to-night. The setting of the play and the lighting have been delightfully done, and the parts were played last night with a finish that indicated hard and enthusiastic rehearsal. Mr. Fred Fox played Reggie Blougham with a nice understanding, and Miss Doris Judge, as his fiancée, was splendid. The rest of the cast was as follows:—Ruth Eltringham, Miss E. Fox; Mrs. Lash, Miss M. Orr; Jimmy Harbottle, Mr. R. Fox; Bagshot Pilkington, Mr. B. Lorimer; Twinkle Farrell, Miss N. Simmons; Miss Twinge, Miss I. Fairweather; Cordelia A. Pakenstacker, Miss D.
